JUNIOR CUP FINAL.

The juniors provided the holiday attraction for followers of the soccer code, and a good crowd gathered at Dalymount Park to witness the final ties of the Junior Cup and Minor Cup. In the former Edenville were opposed to Chapelizod, and both sides gave a nice exhibition, Chapelizod eventually winning by 2 goals to 1. The combination and finish of the winning forwards justified this result, as though Edenville had quite as much of the play all through, their forwards proved too slow in front of goal, and failed to finish to any advantage. Through the field there was little between them, the defence of either side being a feature. Chapelizod took the lead in the opening few minutes, and by good defensive play on the part of the full-backs succeeded in holding it for twenty-five minutes, when a well-placed corner enabled Mulvaney to equalise. Edenville worked hard to gain the lead, and might have done so had the inside forwards availed themselves of the chances made for them by Dempsey, on the left wing.

Starting the second half on level terms, Edenville repeatedly broke through the Chapelizod defence, but failed in front of goal. Half-way through this period Bolton whipped up a good pass at midfield, and raced clean through to score what proved the winning goal. Edenville had the best of the closing play, but failed to score. Result:—

Edenville 1

MINOR CUP FINAL.

In the minor event Wasps (holders) were rather decisively beaten by a much better side in Park View, who were well served in all departments, and the score of 3-1 in their favour about represents their superiority. For the greater part of the opening moiety the play was of a very even nature. Nolan gave Park View the lead as the result of ten minutes' play, and twenty minutes later Byrne equalised, the score remaining unchanged at the interval. In the second half the holders fell away badly, and Park View, scoring twice per Nevins, ran out good winners. Result:—

Park View 3
Wasps 1

MOTOR CYCLING.

BUNDORAN AND BACK TRIAL.

The two days' trial of the Leinster Motor Cycle Club to Bundoran and back came to a termination yesterday evening, when the first of the twenty-four survivors of Saturday's run to the County Donegal seaside resort reached the Knockmaroon Gate of the Phœnix Park a few minutes after six o'clock. The return journey proved as unproductive of incidents as the first day's run, and only one of those who left Bundoran failed to check-in at the finish. The more southern route taken to avoid crossing into Northern Ireland did not prove so difficult as some anticipated, although it involved the crossing of some mountainous country. So that the competitors would not have to make their way through the race traffic from Fairyhouse, the concluding stage of the trial route ran through Trim, Kilcock, and Maynooth, along the Liffey valley to the finish, where the following riders reported:—

J. A. Carvill, 3½ h.p. B.S.A.; N. Lepler, 3½ h.p. N.U.T.; H. E. Bell, 7 h.p. James, and sidecar; Miss B. Moran, 2¾ h.p. Velocette; C. S. Maguire, 4¼ h.p. Humber, and sidecar; A. G. Mitchell, 2¼ h.p. Velocette; T. G. Henry, 2¼ h.p. Velocette; Geo. Briggs, 2¼ h.p. O.K.; H. V. Briggs, 4 h.p. Triumph; W. E. S. Gilmour, 10 h.p. Leprachan; H. C. Cathcart, 4¼ h.p. Humber; H. Adair, 4 h.p. B.S.A., and sidecar; R. Humphreys, 2¼ h.p. Velocette; J. Healy, 2¾ h.p. James; F. Holmes, 2¾ h.p. Bitso; J. J. Beggan, 4 h.p. Triumph; T. E. Greene, 3½ h.p. Douglas; W. J. Egan, 4 h.p. Indian; H. V. M'Donough, 4 h.p. Triumph; G. V. B. Cooke, 2¾ h.p. Sunbeam; J. H. Patton, 3½ h.p. James; J. B. Keegan, 4 h.p. Norton, and sidecar; H. G. Ellerker, 2¾ h.p. A.J.S.

The weather on both days was very favourable, and consequently the proportion of awards to finishers is likely to prove higher than usual.

C. TOLLEY WINS SCRATCH MEDAL.

Cyril Tolley, the former Amateur Champion, won the Scratch Gold Medal at the Rye Easter Meeting yesterday, with 74. H. Gillies, the English international, won the silver medal.

RUGBY.

ENGLAND WINS THE CHAMPIONSHIP.

ENGLAND .... 12 points
FRANCE .... 3 points

(PRESS ASSOCIATION FOREIGN TELEGRAM.)

PARIS, Monday.

French sporting circles displayed unprecedented interest in the Rugby International at Colombes this afternoon between England and France. A huge crowd of enthusiasts besieged the gates as early as 10 o'clock this morning, quite content to wait five hours until the match was due to begin. Later in the day it was found necessary to run an extensive service of special trains and omnibuses in order to cope with the immense numbers of people travelling to Colombes. When the game started nearly 40,000 people were present.

The Frenchmen made one change in the advertised team, Clement, who was indisposed, being replaced by Magann.

France won the toss, and England kicked off. After both sides had found touch the French forwards dribbled into the English 25, where they were awarded a free kick for off-side, from which Beguet scored a penalty goal, the game then being less than five minutes old. England set up a hot attack, which took the ball to the region of the French line. From a scrummage which followed the Frenchmen found touch. More scrummages followed, and from one of these the ball went to Behoteguy, the French left centre three-quarter, who, however, fumbled the pass. Wakefield pounced on him, secured, and just managed to touch down for a try. Luddington took the kick, but Lasserre, rushing forward, succeeded in stopping the ball with his hands. With the scores equal England continued to press, and nearly scored again. The French three-quarters, however, were equally active, especially Jaurreguy, who, had he not been so closely attended by Lowe and Myers, would, undoubtedly, have broken through on more than one occasion. A strong English attack was just developing when the whistle blew for half-time.

After a few brief exchanges, which marked the opening of the second half, came the most brilliant individual performance of the match. Gaining possession in his own 25, Jaurreguy, swerving with amazing speed, evaded all attempts at capture, and reached the English 25, where, however, he was collared and forced to pass to Lasserre. A desperate struggle ensued, which resulted in the French pack carrying the ball over the English line, but they could not touch down. Pressure on the English goal was relieved, only for the Frenchmen to set up another fierce but fruitless attack. Davies, less conspicuous in the first half, stood out prominently at this period, his kicking into touch again and again saving a dangerous situation. Then, quite suddenly, the Frenchmen fell away, and the Englishmen assumed complete mastery. The terrific pace at which the game had been played from the start had, no doubt, told upon the home team. A series of English attacks finally broke down the French defence for Conway to dash over for a try, which Luddington converted. A few minutes later Davies attempted a dropped goal, but he miskicked and failed. He quickly atoned for his mistake, however, for a minute or so later he gained possession, and after swerving clear dropped a beautiful goal. The remaining three minutes produced no further score, and England thus won by 12 points to 3, a victory which gives them the International Championship.

Mr. Freethy (Wales) was in charge of the game, and some of his decisions, especially those awarding free kicks to England, did not meet with the approval of the crowd.

It was a hard, fast and open game. The Englishmen dominated the play in the first half, their forwards, who were the heavier pack, showing a marked superiority over the Frenchmen. After the change of ends the Frenchmen rallied, and had the better of the exchanges until ten minutes from time, when they seemed to tire, and collapsed before the fierce English attack. The home three-quarters were in fine form, especially Jaurreguy on the left wing, who was prominent on several occasions with brilliant runs. Even in the closing stages, after England had gained the lead, they made some brilliant dashes, and more than once were within an ace of scoring. Davies and Kershaw, the English half-backs, fully maintained their reputation as a classic combination, while the pack, as a whole, put in some splendid work. On the whole, the score accurately represented the merits of the respective sides. Result:—

England—2 goals (1 dropped) 1 try (12 points).
France—1 penalty goal (3 points).

MIDNIGHT WIRE FROM BIRMINGHAM.

FROM A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

BIRMINGHAM, Monday Night.

It has been a rush and a scurry to travel here from Kempton Park; but, in the little while left to collect some news relative to the card to-morrow, I find that DOUBLE BLOOM and ERRAND BOY are well spoken of in regard to the Tamworth Handicap.

It was plain to see at Nottingham, if the race for the Bestwood Handicap was closely followed, that Double Bloom was none too lucky, and a fine opportunity awaits here for the colt to atone for defeat.

CLOTH O' GOLD appeals to me most in the Sutton Plate, for the youngster was desperately unlucky in the race that he ran in at Liverpool.

The Burton Handicap is the chief event, and, from what is said, FINNART'S BAY will add to his recent victory.

DRYAD is well for the Packington Handicap.

PHILTER should win the Rugeley Stakes. The colt came under observation at Lincoln, and was unlucky to trip at the jump off. The three-year-old is quite a good-looking sort.

SPECIAL SELECTIONS FOR TO-DAY.

Daily Graphic:—Double—Impetuous and Abanazar.

AMERICAN CHAMPION TO PLAY IN BRITISH OPEN EVENT.

The question as to whether [illegible] American Open Champion [illegible] British Open Championship [illegible] Briar Cliff Club [illegible] for that purpose.

BIRMINGHAM.

TO-DAY'S SELECTIONS.

If the weather holds, there should be again a large attendance, and, judging by the large entries, fields should be well above the average. The going is in excellent order, and there is every prospect of some good sport. The principal race on the card is the Burton Three-Year-Old Handicap, for which there looks like being a field of a dozen or so. Of these I like best Verdict, Tranquil, Lieutenant, and Plumb Square. Verdict, it will be remembered, was never beaten last year. Still, she has a big weight, and I fancy something will be found to beat her. Lieutenant and Plumb Square have recently run sufficiently well to show that they are fit and well, which at this time of year is greatly in their favour. Believing will have benefited by his recent race, I make him my choice. Other selections:—

PLUMB SQUARE

MARY STREET, DUBLIN

WOMAN AND HER HOME.

A PLEA FOR BONNETS.

"I intended an ode
And it turned to a sonnet.
It began à la mode—
I intended an ode—
But Rose crossed the road
In her latest new bonnet.
I intended an ode,
And it turned to a sonnet."
—Austin Dobson.

HERE was someone who recognised all the charm of a bonnet, that most deliciously feminine headgear. A hat, smart and elegant though it may be, is, after all, only a hat—but a bonnet! It is a veritable poem. Mischief lurks beneath its spreading brim, mystery veils its naughty wearer's eyes, and what an awfully becoming frame it makes for a riot of curls! Truly the Victorian maidens knew what they were about when they ordered their beloved "pokes."

With bonnets one must wear dangling curls, and every woman knows in her secret heart that curls become her. What about the straight-haired, ex-bobbed damsels, you ask? Was there not straight hair a hundred years ago, and yet did not every lady appear with her full quota of clustering curls? Despite their reputations as modest violets, the Victorians were adept at making art serve nature.

Reading an old newspaper, I found a bride who wore "a bonnet of white crinoline, very wide and trimmed with many roses." Can you see her pretty rosy face framed in its delicate brim, and all round the pink roses matching her blushes?

Gun bonnets, with their broad, straight brims and wide neck frills, are charming for little girls. In coloured gingham, tied with long strings they would not only look lovely, but would save many pairs of little eyes from strain in the bright sun.

We have revived the crinoline, and made it more beautiful than its original inspiration; we have resurrected the billowing petticoat; we have reclaimed a thousand "dear foolishnesses" of the gracious days; so why not the bonnet, with all its witchery?

ELIZABETH KENT.

THE BRIDE'S OUTFIT.

WITH so many fashionable weddings drawing near, the London shops are displaying exquisite outfits for the modern bride. The new models are cut and fashioned as only the best artists in dress can fashion dainty garments of the intimate type. Lawn and crêpe de chine hold equal favour as fabrics for underclothes.

The pale tones of mauve, of flesh pink and faintest delicate yellow are to be seen in most shops, and, although these colours show up the artistic designs very well, ivory and white, as ever, are the most popular.

In place of lace trimmings, tiny hand tucks and drawn thread work, with wee frills of white washing net, are à la mode. Valenciennes and filet are not so favoured as formerly; these have been set aside for plain hems of net or those that show the most intricate and finest hand-worked trellises and wreaths of flowers and leaves worked in white silk.

This exquisite hand embroidery generally unites the net hem or frill or an inset yoke or medallion to the lawn or crêpe it adorns.

Medallion initials or crests or ciphered letters, embroidered on a plain net background or worked on filet mesh, is one of the favoured forms of adornment on camisoles, knickers, nightdresses and chemises, worked in square or oval shapes.

Nightdresses are things of sheer beauty; many of them still show very low necks and no sleeves, with a very definite waistline, accentuated by pin tucks rather than slotted ribbons, which used to be so fashionable. Ribbons, like laces, are now démodés so far as smart lingerie is concerned.

Corsets are increasingly intriguing. There are waist corsets, eminently suited for sports wear and dancing, that are no more than a band of satin with suspenders, brocaded in a bird of paradise design. Delicate moire silks, especially in white, are much used for corsets destined for bridal outfits, bands of heavy satin ribbon in the form of lines or lattice work being used for the tops of these new low-cut models.

EAR-RINGS.

NO ornament connected with woman's attire has had so many changes of taste as the wearing of ear-rings. It was at one time, and may be so still, a common belief that the piercing of the ears (to receive these ornaments) was good for the eyesight. Be this as it may, when fashion decreed that ear-rings were no longer the mode, these ear-rings vanished, except by a few who, accustomed to their use, did not wish to give them up.

But it is, if one thinks about it, a slightly barbaric fashion, and not very far removed from that of the dark ladies who wear rings through their noses; but yet the wearing of ear-rings makes a great difference in the appearance of some persons, and adds a charm that is indescribable.

Of the form of the ear-ring, and the material of which it is composed, there is no count—gold is indispensable for the pin or clasp, but diamond, pearl and all precious stones have been pressed into the service of this little ornament, while as for shape and size their designs is legion—long and short, mere single drops, or a hanging tassel of brilliants, all take their place at my lady's ear, while in this green island of ours, the humble bog oak, polished and carved, holds its own among its more valuable sisters.

BLACK AND WHITE.

PREVAILING NOTE IN PARIS FASHION.

IF a young man's fancy turns towards love in the spring, woman's fancy is undoubtedly inclined towards the new clothes which have made their way to our shores, and part of her time is spent at buying, or at least looking at, the chic French models which are on view in the showrooms.

After the restrictions of Lent, there is a natural rebound towards a bright and gay outlook on life, and this often finds expression in the garments worn. That being so, it is somewhat strange that the prevailing note in Paris is black, or black combined with white, and although it sounds sombre in reality it is by no means so in actual fact.

One reason, perhaps, is that, in common with Italian and Spanish women, a Frenchwoman looks her very best when robed in black. When black is worn by a Parisienne it is black expressed in the very best materials, such as satin, crêpe, marocain, and georgette. For afternoon wear at teas, picture shows, etc., a simply-made black satin, cut with a low neck and long, tight sleeves, coming well down over the hands, is worn. A black hat of small dimensions is not considered out of place: the whole toilette serves as a background to the beautiful jewels worn in the afternoon in Paris.

Coloured stones, with a few exceptions, are not seen, but strings of pearls, pearl ear-rings, either studs or long, pearl-shaped ear-rings, are used, as well as diamond ornaments. Diamonds, if worn in the daytime, require to be used with restraint, and this the Frenchwoman understands to a nicety. Her diamonds are small, of the first water, set in black onyx or black enamel. Emeralds are used by those lucky enough to possess them. For instance, a cabochon emerald, slung on a platinum chain, so slim as to be almost invisible, is considered elegant, so is a big emerald set in a ring. These are the fashions in stones adopted by the leaders of the Paris mode.

Some of the newest black frocks are strikingly elegant. A long, clinging robe of rich black crêpe-de-chine, made high to the chin, was fashioned with wide, long sleeves, somewhat like hanging panels, having pleated frills inside them of ivory net, a soft ivory jabot was worn in front. A black marocain gown had narrow lines of dull silver embroidery, and was accompanied by a cloak to match, bordered with the same trimming, and lined with silver-white satin. Some very elegant gowns in supple black velvet are shown, and are being bought for spring; all these afternoon dresses are accompanied by their own special cape or cloak, some short, some long. The short capes which hang at the back are used by girls, to whom they prove eminently becoming.

For young girls there are some charming little costumes, carried out in white repp, serge, kasha, or crêpe. A bright touch of colour is introduced into these smart little costumes, but even here a slight introduction of black is often found. A costume of rough ivory serge, with a loosely-cut short coat, with wide sleeves ending half-way down the arm, was piped with black ciré braid. The skirt had the inverted side pleats, with flat panel back and front. In all the dresses for out-doors skirts are ankle length and full enough for comfortable walking.

Several dresses have low necks and no sleeves, a style by no means permissible, except for quite young girls, and even then only if the arm is particularly well modelled.

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE.

IRISH-BRED HORSES SUCCEED.

SOUTHAMPTON WINS THE PRINCIPAL RACE AT MANCHESTER.

ARCHIBALD RIDES WELL.

(From Our Travelling Correspondent.)

LONDON, Monday.

The National Stud-bred horse, Bhuidhaonach, as I anticipated, won the Queen's Prize at Kempton Park this afternoon, gaining a comparatively easy victory by a length from Thoughtless, with an outsider in Galway Prince third. This half-brother to The Panther is a more than useful four-year-old, and I expect to see him win more good races this season.

After the bold show he made in the Liverpool Cup, where he was third to Clochnaben, the chance of Bhuidhaonach seemed a splendid one this afternoon, for he was very favourably handicapped. However, strong support for several others of the fifteen runners made him compaartively easy to back at 5 to 1. When Fox took him into the lead at the distance nothing had a chance against him, and he probably had a good deal in hand of the others. He was sweating a good deal in the Paddock, and last year he had the reputation of being not altogther in love with his work, but here he ran his race out very truly.

A Great Finish.

Argo, who was second favourite, ran disappointingly, and so did Double Up, who was well fancied by Frank Hartigan's stable; but the winner overshadowed everything else. Thoughtless was supported each way by his connections, but they thought, as it proved, that he had just a little too much weight. The victory of Bhuidhaonach compensated his trainer, Captain Gooch, for the many disappointments he had last year with Poisoned Arrow, and this season with Roman Bachelor in the Lincolnshire. There is no more competent trainer in England than Gooch, who before the war was a dealer in horses at Banbury.

Milewater has sadly deteriorated since he ran second to Spike Island in the Irish Two Thousand Guineas last year. Here the son of Glasgerion ran in a selling plate, but Telepathy beat him very easily, although he had every chance. Last year Telepathy won this race, beating Clochnaben, who has mounted to quite giddy heights in handicaps since then.

Archibald, who won on Telepathy, rode a great finish on Captain Bewicke's Double Entendre to beat Back Stair by a short head in the Rendlesham Two-Year-Old Plate. There is no better jockey riding in any country than this clever American, who won both the Irish Guineas and Derby last year on Spike Island.

Southampton's Victory.

To an Irish-bred horse, in Lord Woolavington's Southampton, also fell the principal race at Manchester, the rich Lancashire Steeplechase. This brilliant son of Southannan has been under a cloud for a long time, and has not run since he made so poor a show in the Grand Sefton at Liverpool last November. Last week he was taken to Gatwick racecourse for a school, but fell at the first fence. To-day he was ridden by Robert Gore's stable lad Robson, and there was little, if any, fancy for him on the part of the general public. But over the easy Manchester fences he reproduced all his old-time brilliant form and, fairly smothering the opposition, won in a canter by five lengths from Maureen Bawn, a 20 to 1 chance, with Keep Cool third.

The National favourite, Forewarned, was favourite again, but he gave a very poor display, and finished absolutely last, after being pulled up.

Maureen Bawn ran a splendid race, and loud shouts were raised for the Irish candidate when she came with a rattle at the last fence: Southampton, however, was going very easily, and had not the slightest difficulty in shaking off the challenge of the daughter of Morena.

Major Robinson's remarkable ex-hunter Templescoby, who was the mount of Major Doyle, ran a fine race and was in front a mile from home, where Southampton took the lead from him, and then finished fourth. He did much better than his stable companion Conjuror II., who fell after they had gone half way.

Chin Chin also fell, and, good as Habton is, she found the distance just too far for her with her burden of 12st. 7lb.

The Failures.

Notable Irish failures at the meeting were Mr. Albert Lowry's False Report, who was favourite for the Pendleton Hurdle, but was never going like a winner, and Ugly Duckling, who was third in a great race for the Kersal Hurdle, where West Countryman beat Son o' Lee by a short head. Both jockeys—Frank Wootton on the winner, and Tommy Burns on the second—being seen at their best.

At Birmingham, Mr A. McCann's Ulula, ridden by Carty, won the Water Orton Plate from four other runners. Ulula had shown such speed at Lincoln that he was backed down to 5 to 4, and justified the confidence in him by scoring easily by half a length from Cadabra.

As at Kempton, a Liverpool Cup failure won the principal event. This was Steamer, who had been well backed each way at Liverpool, and just missed a place. Here he was favourite and won comfortably by half a length from Treviso. In the Coventry Plate, as I anticipated, La Bergeronnette gained a very easy victory.

To-day's Probable Winners.

The jumping fixture at Manchester tomorrow makes more appeal than does the racing under Jockey Club Rules at Birmingham and Newcastle. The field will be a small one for the Jubilee Hurdle, and I think it will be won by one of Coulthwaite's—either Fariray or King David. Personally I prefer the chance of Fariray. Gore will supply a formidable candidate for the £500 Steeplechase from among Beggar's End, Sir Huon and Silver Ring. Of these I prefer the chance of the consistent Beggar's End.

After the bold show made by Maureen Bawn, Soothing Glass, who finished in front of her in Soldier Bill's race at Baldoyle, must have a chance, but for the winner I take Mr. O'Reilly's Zenon, who has never quite come into his own on this side yet, and missed an easy engagement to-day in view of this event.

At Birmingham, I like the chance of Lieutenant in the Burton Handicap, while Cloth of Gold should be a good thing for the Sutton Plate. At Newcastle, Olioid should win the Brunton Selling Plate, and Tommy Long the Meldon Selling Welter.

GALTEE MORE.

MANCHESTER.

It was not by any means a great day so far as the weather went at Castle Irwell for the opening afternoon of the Eastertide gathering which particularly marks the close of the important so-called illegitimate season. Naturally, there was a very big attendance present, despite the clashing of meetings here, there, and everywhere. A bit soft in places, the track yet yielded fairly good going on the whole, and the big race, with its fifteen competitors, was worth going a long way to see, though the light was never over-grand. From first to last Forewarned and Keep Cool dominated the market; but, at the same time, the top weight, Habton, had plenty of followers, and so had Chin Chin and the Grand National third, Conjuror II. Southampton, too, had many followers, and, taking up the running at about half-way, he was never afterwards headed, and won in a canter by five lengths. Forewarned never looked like winning, neither did Keep Cool, who, however, ran into third place.

Habton set a good pace to Keep Cool, Wingate, Chin Chin, with Templescoby, Southampton, and Maureen Bawn next, Silent Sands being left at the post. After going half way Templescoby took up the running, with Southampton, Chin Chin, Habton, and Vaulx the next lot. A mile from home Southampton drew out, followed by Maureen Bawn, and won very easily by five lengths; ten lengths separated second and third. Templescoby was fourth, Turkey Buzzard fifth, Vaulx sixth, Habton seventh, Wingate eighth, and Test Match next. Conjuror II. fell. Time, 7 mins. 21½ secs.

INTERESTING RACING.

STEAMER WINS SPRING HANDICAP.

A holiday crowd of tremendous proportions—undoubtedly constituting a record in the history of this meeting—watched some very interesting racing at Bromford Bridge yesterday, though some measure of disappointment was felt at the backward display of Will Somers, who, running in His Majesty's colours, flattered at the distance only to deceive, and dropped back hopelessly to the very last position.

In this event, the principal item on the card, the Birmingham Spring Handicap of 500 sovs., Steamer was made favourite after a large amount of money had been invested on Treviso. The favourite proved a clever winner, with Treviso a length and a half behind for second place.

Young Lane, in the jockeys' division, was the only one to pull off a dual victory—on Ellabeck gelding and Steamer.

2.0—BROMSGROVE SELLING PLATE of £200. Five furlongs.

FAIRYHOUSE.

ENORMOUS ATTENDANCE.

IRISH GRAND NATIONAL.

BE CAREFUL'S NARROW VICTORY.

Seldom if ever has the Ward Union Hunt been favoured with a more delightful day for their annual celebration, nor has a bigger crowd been seen at Fairyhouse for a very considerable period. The partial dislocation of the railway service, owing to the blowing up of a M.G.W.R. bridge near Clonsilla cannot have had much effect on the attendance, which must have established a "record," or very nearly so, and we have rarely seen more people at the meeting. This was striking testimony to the popularity of the fixture with Dubliners, who flocked in their thousands to the course, and never has the road been so extensively availed of; so much so, indeed, that the first couple of miles of the return journey was rather wearisome as the result of the congested traffic. With the conditions overhead so favourable, the great holiday gathering had a most enjoyable time, and their pleasure was not lessened to any serious extent by the failure of some of the favourites to realise expectations, for betting on these occasions is usually very mild, and there is little or no heavy wagering. As always, it was a thoroughly sporting reunion, the racing well maintaining the Fairyhouse standard, and all concerned in the carrying out of the meeting must be congratulated on the brilliant success achieved.

Although better-class fields have contested the Irish Grand National in some previous years, few of them have been associated with a more exhilarating finish than that provided by Be Careful and James Pigg yesterday. The pair battled it out with rare determination from the last fence, after jumping which James Pigg, who had gone a trifle wide at the turn, assumed command; but Be Careful, responding gamely to the efforts of his rider, got his head in front in the last few strides to snatch a head victory. Redbrae and Balrennit carried the bulk of the money, and the latter, setting a strong pace, was in the van until grief overtook him about a mile from home, whilst Redbrae was well beaten when he fell at the second last fence. Another to bite the dust was Green Wavelet, who, unfortunately, sustained fatal injuries, which was a very bad stroke of luck for Miss O'Brien.

Be Careful, who was one of the outsiders of the party, is trained by his owner, Mrs. F. Blacker, of Castle Martin, Newbridge, who bred, broke, and hunted Music Hall before disposing of him to Mr. Kershaw, for whom he won last year's Grand National at Liverpool.

The Maiden Plate was also a very exciting affair, and, as in the big race, resolved itself into a match in the concluding stages, the horses concerned being Rathmore and Taughmonagh. Ruddy Glow, carrying the colours of the veteran Tipperary sportsman, Mr. W. P. Hanly, was prominent for the greater portion of the journey, and when he was done with the pair mentioned singled themselves out, and a dour struggle it was, Rathmore only winning on the post. Prince Florentine, the favourite, could get no nearer than fifth, behind Pride of Delvin.

Though there were only six starters for the Percy Maynard Cup, a race instituted in memory of one of the most popular Masters the Ward Union Hounds ever had, it furnished quite a good contest, which eventuated in the success of the favourite, Ballinacrad, who could afford to make several mistakes at his fences, and yet, thanks to his superior speed on the flat, won very easily, indeed, thus going one better than last year, when he finished second to Gipsy Belle II. in the corresponding event.

That much-coveted trophy, the Ward Hunt Cup, as usual, aroused considerable interest locally, and each of the nine runners could boast a following; but Mrs. Drummond was always a pronounced favourite, a preference she fully justified. Guy Fawkes and Silloge were in front for better than two miles, when the former dropped back, and, with grief overtaking several of the others, the race for the last half mile became a duel between Mrs. Drummond and Thirty Bob, ridden by their respective owners, Mr. James Daly and Mr. T. Singleton. The latter closed with the leader as they swung into the straight, and the pair took the penultimate obstacle abreast, but Thirty Bob made a mistake at the final obstacle, and the favourite, drawing away, scored very comfortably.

The fifteen runners for the King's Cup included last year's winner, Clara Boy, who, however, never looked like repeating history, whilst Money, carrying the colours of the Master, Mr. T. Levins Moore, and which, to judge by the wagering, was well fancied, only flattered to deceive, for, after showing a bold front for a little more than two miles, her bolt was shot. Volage Lass then assumed a useful lead, but a blunder half a mile from home put her out of court. Kilbarry, who had been jumping beautifully, was then acclaimed the winner, and he certainly looked like landing the spoils until Harry Hart came on the scene, and his superior turn of speed on the flat enabled the Greenmount representative to win, with a trifle in hand. He was ridden by that capable amateur, Mr. P. J. Osborne, who earlier in the day had steered Ballinacrad to victory in the Percy Maynard Cup.

The newly instituted Staghunters' Sweepstakes proved the good thing it was generally voted to be for South Lake, who is a half-brother by Lochryan to Southampton, the winner of the Lancashire Steeplechase, and both were bred by Mr. H. M. Hartigan.

For the wind up, Silvermore, who was such a disappointment on the flat, romped away with the Fairyhouse Plate, for which he left off a hot favourite. Details:—

1.0—PERCY MAYNARD MEMORIAL CHALLENGE CUP, value 150 sovs., with 150 sovs. added; second received 30 sovs.; third, 20 sovs., and fourth 10 sovs. A farmers' race. Weight for age, etc. 3 m.

Betting—5 to 4 agst. MRS. DRUMMOND, 7 to 1 each Silloge, Deerpark, and Guy Fawkes, 8 to 1 Signet Ring, 100 to 8 any other.
Silloge settled down from Guy Fawkes, Mrs. Drummond, Deerpark, Funny Fool, Irish Industry, and Thirty Bob, for a mile, when Guy Fawkes took up the running. After half-way Irish Industry refused, and a mile from home Mrs. Drummond went to the front, and, resisting the challenge of Thirty Bob, won by three lengths; a bad third. Signet Ring and Guy Fawkes were pulled up, and Deerpark and Funny Fool fell. Time—9 mins. 34 3-5 secs.

Betting—5 to 2 agst. Redbrae, 3 to 1 Balrennit, 5 to 1 King's Courier, 6 to 1 James Pigg, 100 to 8 each BE CAREFUL, Brendan's Glory, or any other.
Balrennit set a strong pace, followed by Be Careful, Majestic, Redbrae, Green Label, James Pigg, and Mr. Georgie, with Brendan's Glory last, for a mile and a half, when Mr. Georgie, whose rider lost an iron, was pulled out. There was little change amongst the others until a mile from home, when Balrennit fell, and brought down Green Wavelet. Be Careful then came on from James Pigg, Redbrae, and King's Courier. Shortly afterwards Redbrae was beaten, and fell at the second last fence. James Pigg headed Be Careful after the last fence, but the latter, challenging again, won a fine race by a head; eight lengths divided second and third. King's Courier was fourth, and Green Label the only other to finish. Time—7 mins. 38 secs.

Her Boy settled down from Money, Connolly's Folly, Kilbarry, Sea Wave, Tipperkevin, Volage Lass, Rooskey Boy, and Harry Hart, until a mile from home, when Volage Lass came on from Kilbarry, Harry Hart, Tipperkevin, and Rooskey Boy. At the third last fence Kilbarry headed Volage Lass, but failed to resist the challenge of Harry Hart, who won by five lengths; ten lengths divided second and third. Claress was fourth, Rooskey Boy fifth, Volage Lass sixth, Her Boy seventh. Time—6 mins. 53 1-5 secs.

Betting—3 to 1 agst. Prince Florentine, 4 to 1 RATHMORE, 6 to 1 each Ruddy Glow, Charles Stuart, and Pride of Delvin; 7 to 1 Royal End, 100 to 8 any other.
Brother Charles refused the first fence, and The Count II. and Alice Quickthorn fell at the second, and White Rock was pulled up after half a mile. Prince Florentine settled down from Taughmonagh, Rathmore, Croboy, The Regiment, and Ruddy Glow till half a mile from home, when Taughmonagh came on from Rathmore, Ruddy Glow, and Prince Florentine. In the straight Rathmore took command, and although headed by Taughmonagh on the flat came again, and won a great race by a head; ten lengths divided second and third. Pride of Delvin was fourth, and Prince Florentine the only other to complete the course.
Time—5 mins. 38 1-5 secs.

Kerry Blue made play from Clongiffin, Mick McQuaid, and Silvermore to the third last fence, where Silvermore came away, and won in a canter by twenty lengths; forty lengths divided second and third. Kilmora fell at the second fence and Kerry Blue at the second last fence.

WATERFORD AND TRAMORE.

GROSVENOR BOY'S FINE FINISH.

There has rarely, if ever, been a better day's racing at Tramore than that which was witnessed yesterday by a big bank holiday crowd, and the enjoyment of a thoroughly entertaining afternoon's sport was enhanced by the brilliant sunshine which prevailed throughout the proceedings. Fields were of nice strength, and the going was in tip-top condition. Maddenstown Lodge and Rathvale stables were strongly represented. Mr. Frank Barbour's colours were carried in four races, but his only success was that which Fly Rose obtained in the last event of the day against a solitary opponent, Orientalis.

Mr. Parkinson, on the other hand, saddled a couple of winners in Grosvenor Boy—one of the long string of Mr. Musker's animals which are now in his charge—and Fane Lady, both of which were ridden by M. Connors, but he had to ride a particularly fine finish on Grosvenor Boy to win the Tramore Plate from Edgar's Fame, which was always in front until a couple of furlongs from the end.

Another capital set-to was that for the Woodstown Plate, which was secured by Pearlmore. It was thought that with Belgian Boy Mr. Parkinson would bring off the treble, but he could only get third, being beaten by Pearlmore and Never Mind. The winner, which is trained by Mr. Brabazon, was on grass up to a month ago, and nothing like fit; indeed, so little did the trainer favour its chance that he did not have a farthing on the horse, who, however, was well supported in the betting at 4 to 1.

The layers had much the better of it on the day, and the defeats of Doctor's Call, Belgian Boy, and Shanacowl were severe reverses. Shanacowl, however, made a fair show in the Doneraile Plate, being in front until nearing home, when he failed to resist the challenge of Drifting Prince, the outsider; but in the Castletown Plate, Doctor's Call, the favourite, cut up wretchedly, for though he finished second to Boomerang, he was never really in the fighting line until well in the straight.

2.0—TRAMORE PLATE of 40 sovs. A hurdle race. For maidens. 1½ m.

Mrs. E. Watson's Hoopless, a, 10-8 E. Forrestal 0
Mr. M. Curran's Explanation, 5, 10-3 S. Regan 0
(Winner trained by J. J. Parkinson.)
Betting—2 to 1 each agst. GROSVENOR BOY and Soot, 3 to 1 Edgar's Fame, 6 to 1 Explanation, 10 to 1 others.
Myrtle Leaf cut out the work from Edgar's Fame and Hopeless for half a mile, when Edgar's Fame took it up from Myrtle Leaf, Soot, and Grosvenor Boy. Three furlongs from home Soot took second place, followed by Grosvenor Boy, and the latter challenging Edgar's Fame up the straight, won a fine finish by a head; a neck separated second and third. Explanation was fourth, and Hopeless fifth.

2.30—THE CASTLETOWN PLATE of 40 sovs. A handicap hurdle race. 1½ m.
Mr. J. T. Purcell's br. g. BOOMERANG, by Cipango—Noble Lady IV., 6, 10-12

(Winner trained by Owner.)
Betting—Evens Doctor's Call, 4 to 1 each agst. The Wilderness and Black Lass, 5 to 1 BOOMERANG, 6 to 1 Fetherney, 10 to 1 Herald.
Boomerang settled down from Fetherney, Black Lass, Wilderness, and Herald, and making practically all the running, won by two lengths; four lengths separated second and third. Fetherney was fourth, Black Lass fifth, and Doctor's Call last throughout.

3.0—STEWARDS' PLATE of 40 sovs. A handicap steeplechase. 2 m.

Mr. G. Lynch's Fair Oaks, a, 10-2.....Hourihan 0
Mr. E. Hogan's Gift Sale, a, 9-11.....D. Kiely 0
(Winner trained by J. J. Parkinson.)
Betting—2 to 1 agst. FANE LADY, 3 to 1 Koko, 4 to 1 Donyland, 6 to 1 Fair Oaks, 10 to 1 Gift Sale, 50 to 1 Korsukan.
Fane Lady made play from Fair Oaks, Donyland, Koko, and Gift Sale, and so they ran for three-quarters of a mile, when Gift Sale became second, after which came Koko, Donyland, and Fair Oaks. But Fane Lady was never headed, and won full of running by three lengths; six lengths separated second and third. Korsukan was fourth. Fair Oaks was pulled up.

Mr. F. S. Myerscough's Step Up, 5, 8-3
Jos. Harty 0
(Winner trained by L. Brabazon.)
Betting—Evens Belgian Boy, 4 to 1 agst. PEARLMORE, 5 to 1 Glen Reagh, 8 to 1 Knighton, 10 to 1 any other.
Pearlmore made the running from Step Up, Belgian Boy, Glen Reagh, and Never Mind, and there was little change in that order, Pearlmore leading throughout, and resisting a resolute challenge by Never Mind close home to win a splendid finish by a head; a neck separated second and third. Aquadulcis was fourth, and Knighton fifth.

4.0—DONERAILE PLATE of 40 sovs. A steeplechase. For maidens. 2 m.

Betting—2 to 1 agst. Shanacowl, 4 to 1 Bachelor's Kiss, 5 to 1 Ready Response, 6 to 1 Off the Bat, 100 to 8 DRIFTING PRINCE or any other.
Bachelor's Kiss showed the way to Drifting Prince, Ready Response, Full Strength, Beggar, and Off the Bat for half a mile, when Shanacowl came on from Drifting Prince and Off the Bat. Three furlongs from home Shanacowl was still in front of Drifting Prince, with Bachelor's Kiss at the head of the others; but Drifting Prince challenged the leader shortly afterwards, and won easily by six lengths; two lengths separated second and third. Ready Response was fourth, and Captive next.

Betting—3 to 1 on FLY ROSE.

KEMPTON PARK.

GOOD FIELDS.

BHUIDHAONACH CLEVERLY WINS THE QUEEN'S PRIZE.

Holiday-makers took full advantage of the glorious conditions, and, with the exception of the members' enclosure, it was quite a Jubilee Stakes crowd at Kempton. Lord Durham, who is not so frequently seen on a racecourse as in the days of his Jockey Club Stewardship, was present, and he and Lord Derby officiated as Stewards. The judge's box was occupied by Major George Wilmot, in place of the veteran official, Mr. C. A. Robinson, though I am pleased to say that the latter is not ill, as was currently reported in the paddock.

So far as the number of runners is concerned, it was a satisfactory field for the Queen's Prize, though a paddock inspection revealed many of the runners as not nearly thoroughly fit, and amongst these can be included Juniso and Highbrow. Recent form was, of course, best represented by Bhuidhaonach, and in improving upon his Liverpool Cup position he gained a thoroughly popular win, for in an open market the crowd had made him favourite. A very prominent display was that of Hunt Law, who led until well in the straight, when he dropped out, probably through lack of condition, for he has stayed a longer distance than a mile and a half when fit. Thoughtless momentarily took the lead after Hunt Law was done with, but he had no sooner done so than Fox challenged on Bhuidhaonach, who proved an exceedingly clever winner.

It was hoped to recover the stable losses of Thoughtless with Legend in the Easter Stakes, but Gray's mount did not escape interference at the turn, and could then never get on terms with Heliaster, on whom Gardner was always riding a winning race.

Herbert Jones, the King's jockey, was naturally disappointed when, after making the journey expressly to ride Mosaic in the Rendlesham Plate, it was found that the youngster was amiss, and could not run, for it had been hoped to get a line for the Royal two-year-olds. Excuses had been made for Grand Excel at Lincoln. The colt was again one of the worst away from the gate, and is probably an over-rated youngster. The Liverpool winner, Double Entendre, however, was very nippy from the corner, and had always got the race won, though Back Stair, a very good-looking son of Greenback, whose stock are doing so well, and who had been well galloped, was only beaten by a head, and is a distinctly smart two-year-old.

Recess and Rossmoyne put up a most exciting struggle for the Rothschild Handicap, and after being narrowly beaten by Recess, Smirke, who had the mount on the other, had to be lifted out of the saddle and be carried into the weighing room. He had caught the rails when close home, cut through his boot, and very badly damaged his foot—a mishap which will prevent his riding for some time.

NEWCASTLE.

SNOW CREST WINS BIG EVENT.

J. THWAITES'S TREBLE.

Newcastle Spring Meeting opened yesterday afternoon under most unpropitious conditions, rain falling heavily almost throughout the racing. The attendance, under the circumstances, was exceptionally good. The chief event, the Spring Handicap, was run in a heavy downpour, and little or nothing could be seen of the horses until about three furlongs from home. Then Johnny Roebuck was seen, followed by Snow Crest; but coming up the straight the latter challenged, and young Jones, bringing Botterill's mare away in fine style, won by three lengths from the favourite, Colindale.

Of the five that faced the starter for the Bentinck Stakes only Windswept was supported for any money, and Thwaites had an exceedingly easy task to credit C. F. Kenyon with the race. In the Benton Selling Plate most backers again pinned their faith to Kenyon's representative, Samaritan; but at the distance Ledson, on Downholme, had the race in safe keeping.

Marcel Wave was always favourite for the Gosforth Park Juvenile Stakes, but the Botterill filly let punters down badly, finishing last, and Thwaites registered a second success for Kenyon on Brandon Hall.

The Elswick Selling Handicap was a good betting race, six starters having quotation. It was an outsider of the party, however, The Merchant, a 7 to 1 chance, that caught the judge's eye, Wagstaffe landing the spoils for the Rooney establishment cleverly. The winner was bought in for 240 guineas.

J. Thwaites gained a third win by riding Gold Willow to victory in Tyne Handicap, making all the running, and concluding the day's sport in a fitting manner.

2.15—BENTINCK STAKES of £5 each, with £200 added. Three-year-olds. 1 m.
Mr. Kenyon's b. g. WINDSWEPT, by Rochester—Noturnia, 8-9 ....J. Thwaites 1
Capt. J. Renwick's SKIVICK, 8-12.........Crisp 2
Major Renwick's WHITE EMPRESS, 8-9...Parker 3
Also ran—West Green (Clancy), Canterland (Ledson). (Winner trained by Bazley.)
Betting—6 to 4 on WINDSWEPT, 4 to 1 agst. Skivick, 6 to 1 Canterland, 10 to 1 any other.
Won by six lengths; ten lengths.

2.45—BENTON T.Y.O. (S.) PLATE of £150. 5 f.
Major W. Renwick's DOWNHOLME, 8-12 Ledson 1
Mr. Morris' WALLPAPER, 8-12.........A. Broady 2
Mr. Kenyon's SAMARITAN, 8-9.....J. Thwaites 3
Also ran—Crook (G. Girdley), Petit Corona (P. Jones). (Winner trained by W. Renwick.)
Betting—7 to 4 agst. Samaritan, 2 to 1 Petit Corona, 3 to 1 Wallpaper, 5 to 1 DOWNHOLME, 10 to 1 any other.
Won by four lengths; three lengths.
The winner was bought in for 250 gns.

3.15—GOSFORTH PARK JUVENILE STAKES of £3 each, with £200 added. 5 f.
Mr. Kenyon's BRANDON HALL, 8-1...Thwaites 1
Mr. Arthur's POOR DEVIL, 8-4 ....Weston 2
Lady Swinburn's MILREGA, 8-1..........Crisp 3
Also ran—Sugar Cane (D. M'Guigan), Corrie Ray (Ledson), Marcel Wave (P. Jones). (Winner trained by Bazley.)
Betting—5 to 2 agst. Marcel Wave, 7 to 2 BRANDON HALL, 4 to 1 each Milrega and Corrie Ray, 10 to 1 any other.
Won by two lengths; a neck.

3.45—NEWCASTLE SPRING HANDICAP of £500. 1¼ m.
Mr. Botterill's b. m. SNOW CREST, by Jackdaw—Betty Snow, 7, 7-12...........P. Jones 1
Mr. Mason's COLINDALE, 4, 7-8........P. Brown 2
Mrs. Renwick's ROCK DRILL, 7, 7-13..T. Weston 3
Mr. Read's Yokel, 5, 8-12 ....R. Crisp 0
Mr. Brook's Johnny Roebuck, 6, 8-5...A. Walker 0
Mr. Kenyon's Orpi, 6, 9-6 ....C. Parker 0
Mr. Boazman's Dancer, 5, 8-0..........J. Ledson 0
Sir R. Liddell's Shucks, 4, 7-10 ......A. Shannon 0
Sir G. Renwick's Antranik, 4, 7-12......Thwaites 0
(Winner trained by Botterill.)
Betting—2 to 1 agst. Colindale, 9 to 2 Antranik, 5 to 1 each SNOW CREST and Rock Drill, 8 to 1 Dancer, 10 to 1 any other.
From the start Johnny Roebuck was followed by Antranik, Snow Crest, Dancer, Rock Drill, Colindale, and Yokel, no change taking place until rounding the turn into the straight, where Antranik was beaten. Colindale had moved up, followed by Rock Drill. In the line for home Snow Crest was well clear, the favourite then taking second place, to be beaten by three lengths; ten lengths separated second and third. Johnny Roebuck was fourth, Orpi fifth, Antranik sixth, and Yokel last.

4.15—ELSWICK (S.) HANDICAP of £200. 5 f.

Won by a length; a length and a half.

SELECTIONS FOR TO-DAY.

Rain had fallen heavily over the district during the week-end, and the racing yesterday would not ease the going to any extent, and as a result the course will be on the soft side. Runners from the overnight position are on the small side, but many of the horses engaged can come on this morning. Fields, however, do not promise to be strong numerically. The chief event is the Gosforth Park Three-Year-Old Handicap. I would not look beyond Wellwisher for the winner if Miss Keyser's colt is sent from Lambourne. In his absence Sobriety should win. Only four are left in for the Killingworth Stakes, and a paying policy is to take youngsters that have had their eyes opened in public. The only one in this instance is Paint Box, who finished seventh to Pretty Bess colt. As Olioid missed a race on the opening afternoon, the Newmarket trainer, R. W. Colling, should claim a winning bracket, for running behind Pretty Bess colt on the Carholme should be a good enough guide. With Felkington, Carnaween, and Scamander to select from, Peacock looks like saddling a winner, but danger crops up from the chosen of Honeycomb or My Bird from the Scottish quarters presided over by Burns. Selections:—

Killingworth Stakes—Paint Box.
Brunton Plate—Olioid.

SPORTING PARAGRAPHS.

Green Wavelet, while running in the Irish Grand National at Fairyhouse yesterday, fell and sustained fatal injuries.

Mr. P. J. Osborne was seen to distinct advantage in the saddle yesterday at Fairyhouse, where he steered two winners.

J. Moloney, who rode Be Careful to victory in the Irish Grand National yesterday, was also on Halston when he won the race last year.

It was an interesting coincidence that Southampton and South Lake, who are half-brothers, both bred by Mr. H. M. Hartigan, should win races about the same time yesterday, the former at Manchester and South Lake at Fairyhouse.

TUESDAY, APRIL 3, 1923.

NEWS SUMMARY.

IRELAND.

The Midland and Great Western Railway bridge at Clonsilla was damaged by an explosion early yesterday morning, but the railway company made arrangements for the conveyance of passengers to the Fairyhouse Races.

The body of a young man, said to be named Bonfield, was found on Saturday afternoon on a farm at Clondalkin, County Dublin. He had been shot through the head.

At Clones and other border towns the operation of the Customs barrier is causing uneasiness to traders.

It is expected that the Government will extend the time during which the Irish railway companies can consider the grouping question.

In an attack on National troops in North County Louth on Sunday a sergeant was killed and a private soldier wounded. A civilian was found shot dead after the attack.

The twenty-first annual congress of the Irish Union of Distributive Workers and Clerks took place at Limerick yesterday. The annual report spoke of the improved financial position of the Union.

A captain of the National Army and a local leader were killed in a fight in the Glen of Aherlow, County Tipperary, on Sunday.

GREAT BRITAIN.

Arrangements for the wedding of the Duke of York and Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon in Westminster Abbey are practically complete.

ABROAD.

Another ballroom record has been set up by a New York woman, who danced for twenty-seven hours without stopping.

The Government of Angora has decided to appeal to the country. Ismet has stated in the Assembly that, while he hopes for peace, the nation is ready to fight. The new Lausanne Conference is expected to open on April 16.

Lord Carnarvon is passing through the crisis of his illness; it is stated that there is "very little hope."

Our Correspondent in Moscow describes how the anti-religious movement in Soviet Russia is extending.

President Ebert, in a message to Krupp's, describes the shooting there on Saturday as "an infamous action." German accounts of the tragedy say that the French soldiers were neither attacked nor menaced, but were over-nervous.

SPORTING.

At Fairyhouse yesterday Mrs. F. Blacker's Be Careful won the Irish Grand National.

At Manchester Southampton won the Lancashire Handicap Steeplechase.

At Kempton Park the Queen's Prize was won by Bhuidhaonach.

COURT AND PERSONAL.

Princess Christian and Princess Helena Victoria arrived at Windsor Castle last Saturday on a visit to the King and Queen. Princess Beatrice is still at Vernet-les-Bains, and will not return to London for some weeks. Lady Patricia Ramsay, who has been staying with the Duke of Connaught at Beaulieu since she left Gibraltar, returned to London last Saturday, and is now in residence at Clarence House.

• • •

The King of the Belgians and Princess Marie have left Brussels for Genoa to meet the Queen of the Belgians and the Duke of Brabant, on their return from their trip to Egypt. The Queen of Sweden has arrived at her villa at Capri, where she will remain for three weeks. The King of Sweden is on the Riviera, and has been taking part in several of the recent tennis tournaments.

• • •

Princess Mary, accompanied by Viscount Lascelles and the Countess of Harewood, will visit the annual Show of the Hackney Horse Society at Doncaster to-day. They will watch the judging from the new pavilion, which has been erected in honour of Princess Mary's visit. The Princess and Lord Lascelles will leave Goldborough Hall for London about the middle of this month.

• • •

Many British people are spending the Easter holidays in the South of France. Among the latest arrivals at Cannes are Lord Michelham, Lord and Lady Vernon, Viscount and Viscountess Ednam, the Duke of Manchester, Lord and Lady Castlemaine, Lord Hunter, Baroness Furnival, the Countess of Scarbrough, Lady Paget, Lord and Lady Glenarthur, and Sir Ian Malcolm. At Biarritz the visitors include Sir Edward and Lady Holt, Lord Inverclyde, who was joined on Saturday by Lady Inverclyde, Sir Glyn and Lady West, and Lady Brinckman.

• • •

The Governor of Victoria, the Earl of Stradbroke, accompanied by the Countess of Stradbroke, left Melbourne on Saturday for England. General Sir William and Lady Pulteney spent Easter with Viscount and Viscountess Burnham at Hall Barn, and will leave to-day for Monte Carlo. The Countess of Gosford has left London for Paris, and will be away for three months. The Earl and Countess of Lindsey will leave Naples shortly for Rome, where they will stay for some time before returning to London.

• • •

Lord and Lady Plunket are staying at Brighton. Lord and Lady Forteviot are on their way back from New York. Lady Aline Vivian has left London for a fortnight's fishing on Deeside. She will return to London about the middle of the month, and will be joined by her eldest daughter, Miss Celia Vivian, who will be one of this season's débutantes.

• • •

The Norman Tower, Windsor Castle, so long the home of Sir Dighton Probyn, has now been allocated to Colonel Clive Wigram, C.B., Equerry-in-Waiting to His Majesty. Mrs. Wigram, who is the only daughter of Colonel Sir Neville Chamberlain, K.C.B., and Lady Chamberlain, is well known in Dublin, where she resided before her marriage.

Doctor Speares has left 17 Lower Fitzwilliam street until April 16th.

Miss Barry will be at 25 St. Stephen's Green all this week.

'Spring Wraps in delightful designs for smart afternoon, protective, and general wear are now on view at Switzer's, Grafton street.

BRITISH EDUCATION POLICY.

Addressing the National Union of Teachers' Conference at Brighton yesterday, the new President, Mr. E. J. Sainsbury, London, condemned the present policy of the Board of Education as a bureaucratic attempt to carry out by administration what the Geddes Committee recommended to be done by legislation, and as reactionary in the extreme.

The Near East.

The Allies' latest Note to the Turkish Government seems to have found a mixed reception in Angora. The tone of the document is admirable. It concedes almost all the points which Ismet Pasha demanded in his last communication to the Allies, and agrees to reopen the whole economic problem which the unsigned Treaty of Lausanne purported to solve. Furthermore, the Allies consent to a revision of the capitulations clauses of the Treaty. This difficulty, perhaps, is the most formidable of all. The Allies insist that their nationals shall have certain privileges in Turkey. At first the Turks refused to consider anything in the nature of pre-war capitulations; but when Ismet Pasha saw that Lord Curzon and his French and Italian colleagues were resolute he yielded the point on the condition that the capitulations should be reciprocal. In other words, the Turks propose now that when one of their nationals is tried in London, for instance, for some offence against British law, a Turkish judge shall sit on the Bench with one of His Majesty's judges. The fact that the Allies should have consented even to discuss such a startling proposal is sufficient proof of their anxiety to make every allowance for Turkish sentiment. Yet there seems to be grave doubt in regard to the resumption of the Lausanne Conference.

Political circles in Angora are divided sharply on the Treaty issue. The men who were prominent in the campaign against the Greeks—Mustapha Kemal, Ismet, and the rest—are in favour of accepting the Lausanne terms; but the more violent local politicians, many of whom took no active part in the struggle, have become "die-hards" of the most virulent type. Within the past few days matters have taken a very sinister turn. The leader of the Opposition to the Kemalist Government, one Ali Shukri Bey, has been murdered. In addition to his post as Deputy for Trebizond, Shukri held the position of editor of Tan, a strongly anti-Kemalist newspaper. Last week he was invited to dine at the house of Osman Aga, one of the principal Kemalist "bosses," who was largely responsible for the Greek massacres in Pontus; and some days afterwards his dead body was found in a newly dug grave. He had been strangled. A warrant was issued immediately for the arrest of Osman, but he managed to escape the vigilance of the Turkish law. The murder has aroused the greatest indignation in Nationalist quarters. Reports from Angora foreshadow the fall of the Government if the assassins of Shukri go unpunished, while the unpopularity of Mustapha Kemal and his associates is prejudicing very gravely the chances of an early peace in the Near East.

Mustapha Kemal and his colleagues have decided to put their fortunes to the test without further delay. They had intended to hold a General Election after the signing of the Lausanne Treaty in its revised form, but now they propose to consult the electorate at once. Under the new Turkish electoral law the elections will be held on a wider suffrage than any which the Turkish people ever have enjoyed in the past; and the peace party ought to have a good chance of success. Turkey has been in a state of war virtually for the past twelve years. Successive defeats in the field have lowered the moral of the nation, while trade and commerce have been at a stand-still since the time of the Balkan wars. Turkey needs peace more urgently than any other nation in Europe. The Treaty which is proposed by the Allies gives her far more than she expected after the Armistice of 1918, and she has every reason to congratulate herself on the success of her curious diplomacy. If the people allow themselves to be misled into the rejection of the Allies' terms, they will be committing themselves to another period of suffering, without the slightest prospect of a successful issue. Mustapha Kemal is wise enough to recognise this fact; but his prestige has been lowered by the murder of Shukri Bey, and his enemies will strain every nerve to defeat his policy of peace.

Partition in Sport.

Ireland is one of the few countries in the world where political differences have been allowed to invade the field of sport. For many years the Gaelic Athletic Association has declared war on the "foreigner." It permitted no members of the British Army or of the Royal Irish Constabulary to take part in its contests and it banned Rugby and association football and hockey as "foreign" games. Now, as one might have supposed, the last possible excuse for such discrimination has vanished. The Free State is her own mistress and no "foreign" soldiers or policemen remain within her borders. The excellent games of Rugby and "soccer" are "a badge of slavery" in the new Ireland to precisely the same extent as in France and Belgium, where they are played with fervour. This sensible point of view is gaining ground within the ranks of the Gaelic Athletic Association. At its annual congress in Dublin on Sunday a motion for the deletion of the rule against "foreign" games was defeated by fifty votes against twelve, but in circumstances which suggest that the decision was not final. The motion was proposed by the Cork Board and was supported strongly by Mr. McCarthy, T.D., the re-elected President, and by Mr. Breen, the unsuccessful candidate for the Presidency. The old-time bitterness was lacking almost entirely from the discussion. The majority of those who stood upon the ancient ways disclaimed all prejudice against the "new" games. They defended their case with the argument that the Gaelic games still required a measure of protection if they were to hold their own in the future, and that the time was not opportune for change. We hope that the opponents of reform will be converted quickly to a more reasonable frame of mind. In the first place, the spirit of coercion is alien from the spirit of sport: every game ought to be allowed to stand upon its merits. In the next place, it is every good Irishman's duty to promote his country's unity by discouraging the survival of barriers of politics, class and creed. Even now, in spite of the attitude of the Gaelic Athletic Association, sport is an important agent in the levelling of such barriers. It is maintaining a friendly contact between North and South and is feeding a generous sympathy and rivalry between our Southern schools and universities. Queen Elizabeth's foundation has welcomed the Gaelic game of hurling. The nationalist tradition of University College, Dublin, has not debarred it from being at this moment a promising and popular candidate for the blue ribbon of Rugby football in the Province of Leinster. Surely this is the better way. How can any protestant against the partition of North and South defend a policy of partition between Southern Irishmen?

Japanese Politics.

The "Westernisation" of Japan, once a source of æsthetic regret to Western sentimentalists and afterwards a source of alarm to Western statesmen, is now taken for granted by the general public. An examination of the achievements of the forty-sixth session of the Imperial Diet, which has just been prorogued, suggests that, while the process is continuing, it has not advanced quite so rapidly as some had supposed. We learn, however, that in the late session members of the Lower House indulged, for the first time in Japanese history, in fisticuffs. Even the ceremonious decorum of the Senate was rudely shattered on one occasion by an acrid exchange of personalities between two noblemen who ought to have known better. We might conclude from these incidents that Japan has not much further to go in the way of "Westernisation"; but we learn also that in this same session a Bill has ratified the jury system, while another enactment, having for its object the popularising of racing, establishes a pari-mutuel system. Other Acts amend the income tax law on the basis of the British Finance Act of 1922, enhance the grants made to elementary schools and limit child labour in factories. That the old Japan still exists alongside of the new is shown by the declaration of the House of Representatives in favour of a Bill which seeks to abolish the historic "Social Orders." This declaration followed upon a demand of the Eta, one of the outcast clans of Japanese, for equal treatment. The Eta and Hinin (parish) class rank politically with the Heinin or Commoners, but suffer from many social disabilities against which they are now in revolt. As there are several millions of them, it seems likely that they will succeed.

Easter Monday.

Spring sunshine is a wonderful generator of the holiday spirit and, in response to the noble effort which it made yesterday, Dublin fared afield en masse. The density of the road traffic was such as to suggest that every able-bodied man in Ireland already has defeated the Customs barrier by providing himself with a motor car. By three o'clock in the afternoon the People's Park was a seething broth of human young. The Zoological Gardens have not welcomed such a crowd of visitors on a bank holiday for several years. The elephant, who is acquiring a waist of honourable proportions, like the mandarin in "Kai Lung," and has been fitted with a new saddle in consequence, trudged to and fro under shouting pyramids of children until he threatened to give way at the knees. The quadrumana withdrew early behind a mask of characteristic indifference, and their Oriental dignity contrasted sharply with the Occidental levity of their visitors. At every golf course around Dublin the first tee was crowded by ten o'clock and even the beaches, though their season is still afar off, had their share of intelligent ozone-worshippers. A fine bank holiday convinces us that the human race was intended to enjoy life. Dublin might be excused, perhaps, for forgetting the art of enjoyment; but yesterday showed that the holiday spirit still lives, and that, if they are given half a chance, the Irish people can get as much innocent amusement out of life as their neighbours.

IRELAND'S TRIALS.

BISHOP GAUGHRAN'S ADVICE.

Speaking at the 8 o'clock Mass, of which he was celebrant, in Mullingar Cathedral on Easter Sunday, the Most Rev. Dr. Gaughran, Roman Catholic Bishop of Meath, referred to the great lessons to be drawn from the resurrection of Christ—namely, that they should look upon the trials and afflictions of life not as evils. For the past ten years, he said, Ireland had had her share of trials of various sorts, and more than her share. Who would have imagined, or thought, ten years ago that they would have to pass through such a period of trial and suffering? But, if they placed their trust in God, in due time He would bring good out of evil. Ireland had her Calvary, but if the people only placed their confidence in God, she would also have her glorious resurrection.

CUNARD CRUISES.

A TRIP ROUND THE WORLD.

The Cunard liner Mauretania arrived at Southampton yesterday, thus completing a very successful cruise from New York to the Mediterranean and back to the United Kingdom.

Since leaving England some two and a half months ago she has steamed nearly 14,000 miles and called at eight ports, including Madeira, Cadiz, Gibraltar, Monaco, Naples, Alexandria, Haifa, Constantinople, Phaleron Bay, Ajaccio and Lisbon.

Over 600 passengers availed themselves of this opportunity of seeing the wonders of the Mediterranean in the world's fastest liner. Four hundred passengers landed at Southampton, the majority of whom sail back to America in the same steamer next Saturday.

Another notable cruise by a Cunarder terminated on Saturday, when the steamer Laconia arrived at New York. She started from the American port last November on a trip round the world. She steamed outwards through the Panama Canal to Japan and China, thence to India, and back through the Suez Canal and Mediterranean to New York.

She has steamed over 30,000 miles and called at twenty-seven different ports. With the exception of one occasion, when bad weather delayed her arrival in Japan, she has consistently arrived at her various ports at scheduled time.

More than 400 passengers took advantage of this opportunity of seeing the world under ideal conditions of comfort and travel.

The Samaria, another Cunarder, has just left Manila on a similar cruise, but in the reverse direction to the Laconia.

LORD CURZON'S CURE.

Lord Curzon leaves for France this afternoon for a ten days' absence, in order to complete the treatment for phlebitis, which he was receiving at the hands of a French specialist last August. It was then interrupted by the developments in the International situation.

LUXOR TREASURES.

Problems Which Confront the Chemists.

(BY A. LUCAS, DIRECTOR, CHEMICAL DEPARTMENT, EGYPTIAN GOVERNMENT.)

LUXOR, March 14.

In previous articles mention has been made of some of the chemical problems met with in connection with the recent discovery of the tomb of Tutankhamen and the manner in which these have been solved. It may be of interest, however, to describe in detail the way in which the problems present themselves and to show how they must be settled before the work can be proceeded with.

Many of the objects are in such a condition that before they are photographed, recorded, packed or transported to Cairo, they must be cleaned, strengthened, and repaired. Any error in treatment might ruin them, and would probably be irreparable.

Thus, some of the articles are of wood covered with plaster (gesso), which in turn is gilt or painted, and also frequently ornamented with coloured inlay. How is such an object to be treated? Manifestly, the first thing to do is to remove superficial dust, which may usually be done by means of a small pair of bellows, or by gentle brushing with an artist's small, soft, dry brush. A duster cannot be used, as this might catch in any loose inlay or loose gold and cause damage. After removing the loose dust, although there is a considerable improvement in the appearance, neither the gold (or paint) nor inlay is yet bright and clean.

Use of Water.

At this stage it frequently seems probable that treatment with water might be helpful, but before water is used it must be known whether it will cause any injury. What will be the effect of water on the dry wood, what on the gilt or paint, what on the gesso, what on the inlay, and what on the cementing material? Before these questions can be answered the nature and properties of all these materials must be analysed. The nature of the materials must also be known before the object can be correctly described. What, for example, is the composition of the coloured inlay? Is it glass, faience, or stone?

Very little chemical work has been done on many of the problems mentioned, and of that little a considerable proportion of the results are so scattered in scientific journals that they cannot easily be traced. Frequently, too, the chemist has not been in sufficiently intimate contact with the archæological side of the question, and, therefore, from the results of a single analysis of a small fragment of a specimen, about which he knows little or nothing, he refrains from giving a definite opinion.

At this point, too, other chemical problems present themselves. For instance, what are the nature and cause of the strongly adherent amorphous coating frequently found on faience inlay or of the white coating on faience vessels? From the reply to these questions the nature of the chemical changes that have taken place may be deduced and so methods of cure may be devised. A chemical analysis, therefore, of all surface incrustations or deposits is essential.

Cement.

Again, what is the composition of the various cementing materials originally used? How was gesso made to adhere to wood or gold fastened to gesso? What cement was used for inlay on gesso and for inlay on jewellery respectively? What is the best cementing material for refastening loose gold or loose inlay, since a material employed by the Ancient Egyptians in the dry climate of Upper Egypt is not necessarily suitable for the damper climate of museums?

Other problems concern the nature and method of formation of the patina on the gold and silver, and whether it shall be preserved or removed, and how this shall be done. Perhaps few things in connection with the tomb of Tutankhamen have been referred to oftener than the sealed doorway leading from the ante-chamber to the sepulchral hall. The nature of the cement-like material covering this and the other doorways must be determined, and this can only be done by chemical analysis. Many of the alabaster vases are found with their original content. This requires analysis, and any chemical change the material may have undergone must be investigated.

The above are just a few of the questions that confront the chemist engaged in the present archæological work, and which he must be prepared to answer. The solutions of many of the problems, however, have already been found, and it is hoped that ultimately all may be answered.

GOLDEN FRUIT.

PEACHES TEN SHILLINGS EACH IN PARIS.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Monday.

The first peaches of the season were sold here yesterday at the Central Halles, at thirty-four and thirty-eight francs apiece. The first cherries and strawberries also appeared in the market, and sold at somewhat less exaggerated prices.

INDEPENDENT LABOUR.

MR. CLIFFORD ALLEN NEW PARTY CHAIRMAN.

The Independent Labour Party Conference was resumed in London yesterday, when voting for the election of the chairman of the Party for the ensuing year was announced as follows:—Mr. Clifford Allen, 282 votes; Mr. James Maxton, M.P., 161; and Mr. Morgan Jones, M.P., 25. Mr. Clifford Allen was, therefore, declared elected.

The situation in the Ruhr came up for discussion, and Mr. Morgan Jones, M.P., maintained that while British troops remained on the Rhine, French designs in the Ruhr would be prevented from reaching full fruition.

Baillie P. J. Dolan, of Glasgow, who followed, said that the Scottish Divisional Council demanded the withdrawal of all troops irrespective of their nationality. The Independent Labour Party repudiated in its entirety the Versailles Treaty, to which they were not a party.

A resolution was carried condemning the invasion of the Ruhr as being a militarist and capitalist aggression on a defenceless people, demanding the complete withdrawal of all armies of occupation from Germany, and, in any case, the withdrawal of the British forces, in order that Great Britain might be dissociated formally "from this outrage."

M. Jean Longuet, of the Executive of the French Socialist Party, said that had it not been for the unfortunate split in the Socialist movement in France when the Communists joined the Third International, M. Poincaré would never have dared to enter upon his abominable Ruhr adventure.

Mr. Robson, Middlesborough, said that there were leaders in their movement to whom the very word Russia was anathema, and members were beginning to doubt the sincerity of their leaders. A Workers' International was wanted, and, declared the speaker, they are not prepared to allow a few leaders, whether Trotsky, Lenin or MacDonald, to stand in the way of unity.

Mr. Southall, Birmingham, declared that some of their leaders were flirting with the Second International.

"Some of us down in pews, he added, looking up at the platform, will have to pray for one or two of you up in the pulpit, that your souls may be saved from everlasting Amsterdamnation. We make speeches here but they do things in Russia."

MUTINY VETERAN DEAD.

The death is reported from Newport, Mon., of Mr. E. P. Donoghue, an Indian Mutiny veteran, at the age of 85. Mr. Donoghue had seven sons serving with the Colours in the Great War.

END OF KILMAINHAM HUNGER-STRIKE.

It has been ascertained that the 90 women prisoners who were reported recently to be on hunger-strike in Kilmainham Prison in order to obtain certain privileges ceased their strike at midnight on Thursday. Two of them were removed to hospital. The strike lasted six days.

Mr. Samuel Hall has completed this Easter fifty years' service as a bellringer at Wigan parish church.

ABBEY THEATRE.

"She Stoops to Conquer."

LAST night at the Abbey Theatre "She Stoops to Conquer" was performed, for the first time so far as the Abbey Company is concerned.

It is somewhat remarkable that the work of only two eighteenth century dramatists who wrote in English can find a "public" nowadays; and that both of those dramatists, Goldsmith and Sheridan, should have been Irishmen. Goldsmith, indeed, has established an amazing reputation—as a dramatist—on the strength of only two comedies. That he deserves his reputation there can be scarcely any doubt; "She Stoops to Conquer" is filled with good things, and, judging by yesterday's performance, there appears to be no reason why it should ever become "stale." In spite of the long asides, and the somewhat marked exits and entrances in the play, it has plenty of good dramatic situations, and the character drawing is delightfully done.

It is said that every actor of comedy feels that his repertoire is incomplete until he has added to it the part of Tony Lumpkin. That feeling one can easily understand, since Tony has the best part in a great comedy. Mr. Barry Fitzgerald plays Tony this week. If he is not ideal for the part, he acted it with great ability—and with great simplicity, too, that captured the audience at once.

Miss Crowe, as Kate, was quite charming, her first entry was very effective, and Mr. Shields, as her lover, Marlowe, also played well. Mr. Dolan acted Hardcastle with dignity. Miss Delany was amusing as ever as Mrs. Hardcastle. Mr. McCormick spoilt his good acting by a bad make-up; he looked more like an elderly dissipated rake than young Hastings.

The production of the play was good, except for one thing; the music in the fifth act was far too loud. Indeed, it might have been omitted altogether. PRIOR.

NEW LONDON PLAY.

"AT MRS. BEAM'S" AT THE ROYALTY.

LONDON, Monday.

Messrs. Dennis Eadie and Norman MacDermott presented, at the Royalty Theatre, to-night a comedy by Mrs. C. K. Munro, entitled "At Mrs. Beams." It tells us all about a group of people living at a boarding-house. They are the usual middle class folk.

When a mysterious couple appear, Miss Shoe, the moving spirit of the boarding-house, decides the man is the notorious Paris murderer, because he has a mole on his ear, and a big trunk in his room. She builds up and expounds her theory in a most ingenious manner, and is not in the least confounded when the pair turn out to be thieves, instead of a murderer and victim.

The story does not matter much; what does matter is Miss Jean Cadell, playing Miss Shoe, the inquisitive busybody.

Miss Cadell must have sojourned long in the land of boarding-houses to have presented so finished a study of such an objectionable type. Her interpretation of the part was perfect. She kept the audience roaring with laughter. Miss Adela Mavis plays Laura Pasquali very convincingly. Miss Phyllis Stuckey, as the foolishly frivolous Mrs. Stone, more than half in love with the thief, acted excellently; and Miss Frances Wetherall did splendidly as Mrs. Bebb, a sceptical Irishwoman.

Mr. Ronald Massey and Fred O'Donovan, in small parts, were true to type. Mr. Dennis Eadie's playing of the crook, Dermott, in my opinion, was entirely unconvincing. He suggested a man of the world having a joke—never a plausible villain or a sneak thief.

One feels that the author knows intimately the majority of his characters, but does not love them. His irony and contempt is obvious. An occasional phrase here and there recalls the biting sarcasm of another of the younger dramatists, Mr. Maltby.

There is nothing very kindly or tolerant in "At Mrs. Beams," but one cannot help admiring the cleverness with which the characters are drawn. They are everyday types, with their manners and morals, carefully and shrewdly observed and held up for our ridicule. Mrs. Munro's next play should be of great interest.

RELIGION IN RUSSIA.

PRAYERS AND CINEMA IN A CHURCH.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

MOSCOW, Sunday Midnight.

The religious situation here is a series of contrasts approaching paradoxes. In one wing of the ancient church you see the devout worshipping with traditions a thousand years old; in the other, there is a new cinematograph show, with hilarious laughter at the antics of a foreign comedian. Russia countenances both.

The Tsar's Government suppressed Roman Catholics, Jews—any religion but the Established Greek. The Soviet Government declares itself tolerant of any religion, but also tolerant against religion; Jehovah and anti-Semitism, Christ and anti-Christ march together.

Take to-day's contrast. It is Palm Sunday with the Greek Catholic Church. Easter Sunday with the Roman Catholic churches, while the Hebrews are celebrating the Passover. At the Elevation of the Host in the Roman churches thousands of persons, mostly women, fell to the ground, kissing the floor. The procession before the churches was endless, the masses crossing themselves three times on going in and three times on going out, while hundreds of beggars received million rouble notes to buy bread.

Now take the other side of the picture. Take this morning three newspapers and read:—Petrograd—A Polish University students' meeting approved the sentence on Monsignor Budkiewicz. Kharkof—Peasants at Odessky have turned the Greek church into an orphanage. Gomel—Jewish labourers decided to work through the Passover and hold anti-Passover demonstrations. The city's Council decided to requisition one-third of the churches and the synagogues for homeless children—altogether fifteen buildings. Tiflis—Georgian peasants have decided to cut off the priests' salaries, turn the church into a reading room, and use the bronze in the church bells for money in aiding their sons. Kharkof—The Jewish Council of Workers resolves—"We must close the synagogues, which are centres of re-action, Chauvinism, and Zionism, and open them as centres of Communist education."

Thus daily the anti-religious movement is reported in the Press. Chiefly concerning the movement is the League of Communist Youth, which Lenin, Trotsky, and Bucharan called "the hope of the world." The League is composed largely of University and upper school students. They held their first and largest demonstration in Moscow here in their anti-Christmas campaign.

FUTURE OF VILNA.

LETTS DISPUTE LEAGUE'S DECISION.

FROM OUR DIPLOMATIC CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Monday.

The Lithuanian Government, profoundly dissatisfied at the loss of Vilna, has addressed to the Council of the League of Nations a request that the ruling of the Permanent Court of International Justice may be sought on two specific points involving interpretations of Article 15 of the Covenant, this being the article on which the Council's recommendations of the provincial line of demarcation between Poland and Lithuania was based.

Whether the Council can reasonably decline such a request is an interesting question, which will have to be decided at the Council sittings at Geneva the week after next. But the matter appears to be only of academic importance, for the final decision as to Poland's eastern frontier was given, as prescribed by Article 87 of the Treaty of Versailles, by the Conference of Ambassadors, and not by the Council of the League of Nations.

TO SUCCEED DR. JOWETT.

At to-day's meeting of the Glasgow Presbytery of the United Free Church, the business will include consideration of the letter of resignation from the Rev. Dr. John A. Hutton, in connection with his call to succeed Dr. Jowett in the pastorate of Westminster Congregational Church, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.

LONDON LETTER.

EASTER MONDAY.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
MONDAY NIGHT.

The early morning to-day was cold and cheerless, but that fact did not prevent thousands of people from taking advantage of the many excursion trains provided by the railway companies for a day at the seaside. It is estimated that quite 50,000 trippers left London for the day. About half-past ten the sun began to shine, and the remainder of the day was very fine, with a cool wind. In the afternoon all the people left in London seemed to be promenading the streets or riding on the omnibuses. The City of London, generally deserted on holidays, was unusually crowded, both sides of the main thoroughfares being occupied by slowly moving family parties. Many of the visitors were from the country, and they seemed to have a desire to see St. Paul's Cathedral, the Mansion House, and the Bank of England. The first was opened and visited by thousands; the second is never open to the public, and the third was in the hands of the whitewashers and decorators.

A Horse Parade.

The motor car has displaced the horse in many directions, but the van horse parade, which is a feature of the Easter Monday attractions at Regent's Park, has lost none of its popularity. This event is held under the auspices of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and every year attracts entries from most of the large distributing firms who still employ horse transport. It was evident from the fine condition of the animals in the Park to-day that they had been well cared for, and the judges must have had some difficulty in awarding the prizes. It is a great event for London carmen and their numerous relatives and friends, and affords a pleasing spectacle to all horse-lovers among the public. In the early afternoon the West End was quite gay with cavalcades of decorated vans with rosetted horses driven by a proud driver. One display by a well-known firm of mineral water makers was a splendid advertisement for the firm. Six vans were drawn by a dozen of the finest horses one could wish to see.

"Flagmen."

A number of interpreters of the London General Omnibus Company have been on duty during the holidays at the principal traffic points in the West End, and though there are few foreigners in town just now, it is reported that the interpreters have been useful in quite a number of cases. The languages spoken are indicated by the wearing of national flags on the arm, and they are already known as the "Flagmen." The schoolboy on holiday has proved too fond of airing his linguistic accomplishments, but most of the attempts to deceive the Flagmen by means of questions in a foreign tongue have brought a reply in English.

The Miners' Strike.

The strike of some 40,000 miners in the Rhondda Valley was ordered for to-day as a protest against the employment of non-union labour at some of the pits. The number of non-union men is estimated at about 5,000. The curious thing about the order is that on account of the holidays all the pits were closed down to-day, and will not reopen until Wednesday. Until then it will be impossible to tell how many men will comply with the order. The situation is an interesting one, because when the last strike notices were served only 40 per cent. of the men refused to work, and the threatened strike had to be abandoned.

The Britannia.

The King's racing yacht Britannia, which His Majesty finds himself able to use this year, is now undergoing some extensive repairs at Cowes, in order that she may be ready for this season's regattas. After her thirty years' service it has been found necessary to renew the bottom planking and re-copper it. Rapid progress is being made, and the fitting out of the yacht will begin immediately after Easter, while the trial will take place in May. Every sportsman will be glad that the King can enjoy his favourite sport once again.

Milk Prices.

The price of milk in London was reduced yesterday from 8d. to 6d. per quart, and the lower rate will continue for the next six months. The inclusion of the month of April in the summer period is not regarded with favour by the farmers, who are to receive 1s. a gallon, which price is to include delivery in London. By accepting an equal division of the year into summer and winter, however, the farmers are guaranteed against the price falling during the middle of the summer, and the agreement, which was arrived at last September between the National Farmers' Union and the National Federation of Retail Dairymen, should benefit both the parties to the agreement and the consumer.

Stamps.

Nearly two million pounds' worth of stamps will be exhibited at the Royal Horticultural Hall in May, including the one example of the rarest stamp in the world—a one cent British Guiana of 1856, which was recently sold for £7,600. The world's championship in stamp collections is to be decided, and up to the present there are some six hundred entries, with many wonderful collections. America is sending over many competitors with some most important collections. It seems that the number of collectors has increased enormously since the close of the war. So many stamps have been issued since then that a new zest was given to an old hobby.

Emigration.

Emigrant bookings to America from this country have now ceased until July 1st, as the British quota, as laid down in the United States Immigration Restriction Act, has been reached for the current fiscal year, which ends on June 30th. British passengers who come within such exempted categories as ecclesiastics, theatricals, commercial visitors and tourists, who do not intend to prolong their stay for more than six months, are now eligible for admission. Asked whether the ban applied to Ireland, a shipping agent replied that until a quota had been allotted to the Free State it would appear that the British quota must be taken as operative in respect of Ireland for the present.

Dutch Bulbs.

The Dutch bulb-grower is an industrious individual so far as the distribution of literature describing his productions is concerned. He has, apparently, redoubled his efforts during the past few days; for every householder in London appears to have received at least one catalogue, and in some cases two or three have been delivered by the same post. The price lists emphasise the economy of buying Dutch bulbs, which are described at some length, and the blooms are illustrated. The blooms may turn out as massive as shown in the pictures, but the quaint English used in the description is sometimes difficult to follow, as the following extract from a circular received to-day shows:—"I say therewith you have no flowers in your garden for less or no money."

The bill fixing the period of service in the French Army at eighteen months has been adopted both by the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies, and has passed into law.

A recent sale at Aix-la-Chapelle of timber obtained from the exploitation of German forests by Belgian foresters yielded 848,700f. (£6,860). Two more sales are to be held in the next few days.

TUESDAY, APRIL 3, 1923.

NEWS SUMMARY.

IRELAND.

The Midland and Great Western Railway bridge at Clonsilla was damaged by an explosion early yesterday morning, but the railway company made arrangements for the conveyance of passengers to the Fairyhouse Races.

The body of a young man, said to be named Bonfield, was found on Saturday afternoon on a farm at Clondalkin, County Dublin. He had been shot through the head.

At Clones and other border towns the operation of the Customs barrier is causing uneasiness to traders.

It is expected that the Government will extend the time during which the Irish railway companies can consider the grouping question.

In an attack on National troops in North County Louth on Sunday a sergeant was killed and a private soldier wounded. A civilian was found shot dead after the attack.

The twenty-first annual congress of the Irish Union of Distributive Workers and Clerks took place at Limerick yesterday. The annual report spoke of the improved financial position of the Union.

A captain of the National Army and a local leader were killed in a fight in the Glen of Aherlow, County Tipperary, on Sunday.

GREAT BRITAIN.

Arrangements for the wedding of the Duke of York and Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon in Westminster Abbey are practically complete.

ABROAD.

Another ballroom record has been set up by a New York woman, who danced for twenty-seven hours without stopping.

The Government of Angora has decided to appeal to the country. Ismet has stated in the Assembly that, while he hopes for peace, the nation is ready to fight. The new Lausanne Conference is expected to open on April 16.

Lord Carnarvon is passing through the crisis of his illness; it is stated that there is "very little hope."

Our Correspondent in Moscow describes how the anti-religious movement in Soviet Russia is extending.

President Ebert, in a message to Krupp's, describes the shooting there on Saturday as "an infamous action." German accounts of the tragedy say that the French soldiers were neither attacked nor menaced, but were over-nervous.

SPORTING.

At Fairyhouse yesterday Mrs. F. Blacker's Be Careful won the Irish Grand National.

At Manchester Southampton won the Lancashire Handicap Steeplechase.

At Kempton Park the Queen's Prize was won by Bhuidhaonach.

COURT AND PERSONAL.

Princess Christian and Princess Helena Victoria arrived at Windsor Castle last Saturday on a visit to the King and Queen. Princess Beatrice is still at Vernet-les-Bains, and will not return to London for some weeks. Lady Patricia Ramsay, who has been staying with the Duke of Connaught at Beaulieu since she left Gibraltar, returned to London last Saturday, and is now in residence at Clarence House.

* * *

The King of the Belgians and Princess Marie have left Brussels for Genoa to meet the Queen of the Belgians and the Duke of Brabant, on their return from their trip to Egypt. The Queen of Sweden has arrived at her villa at Capri, where she will remain for three weeks. The King of Sweden is on the Riviera, and has been taking part in several of the recent tennis tournaments.

* * *

Princess Mary, accompanied by Viscount Lascelles and the Countess of Harewood, will visit the annual Show of the Hackney Horse Society at Doncaster to-day. They will watch the judging from the new pavilion, which has been erected in honour of Princess Mary's visit. The Princess and Lord Lascelles will leave Goldborough Hall for London about the middle of this month.

* * *

Many British people are spending the Easter holidays in the South of France. Among the latest arrivals at Cannes are Lord Michelham, Lord and Lady Vernon, Viscount and Viscountess Ednam, the Duke of Manchester, Lord and Lady Castlemaine, Lord Hunter, Baroness Furnival, the Countess of Scarbrough, Lady Paget, Lord and Lady Glenarthur, and Sir Ian Malcolm. At Biarritz the visitors include Sir Edward and Lady Holt, Lord Inverclyde, who was joined on Saturday by Lady Inverclyde, Sir Glyn and Lady West, and Lady Brinckman.

* * *

The Governor of Victoria, the Earl of Stradbroke, accompanied by the Countess of Stradbroke, left Melbourne on Saturday for England. General Sir William and Lady Pulteney spent Easter with Viscount and Viscountess Burnham at Hall Barn, and will leave to-day for Monte Carlo. The Countess of Gosford has left London for Paris, and will be away for three months. The Earl and Countess of Lindsey will leave Naples shortly for Rome, where they will stay for some time before returning to London.

* * *

Lord and Lady Plunket are staying at Brighton. Lord and Lady Forteviot are on their way back from New York. Lady Aline Vivian has left London for a fortnight's fishing on Deeside. She will return to London about the middle of the month, and will be joined by her eldest daughter, Miss Celia Vivian, who will be one of this season's débutantes.

* * *

The Norman Tower, Windsor Castle, so long the home of Sir Dighton Probyn, has now been allocated to Colonel Clive Wigram, C.B., Equerry-in-Waiting to His Majesty. Mrs. Wigram, who is the only daughter of Colonel Sir Neville Chamberlain, K.C.B., and Lady Chamberlain, is well known in Dublin, where she resided before her marriage.

* * *

Doctor Speares has left 17 Lower Fitzwilliam street until April 16th.

* * *

BRITISH EDUCATION POLICY.

Addressing the National Union of Teachers' Conference at Brighton yesterday, the new President, Mr. E. J. Sainsbury, London, condemned the present policy of the Board of Education as a bureaucratic attempt to carry out by administration what the Geddes Committee recommended to be done by legislation, and as reactionary in the extreme.

The Near East.

The Allies' latest Note to the Turkish Government seems to have found a mixed reception in Angora. The tone of the document is admirable. It concedes almost all the points which Ismet Pasha demanded in his last communication to the Allies, and agrees to reopen the whole economic problem which the unsigned Treaty of Lausanne purported to solve. Furthermore, the Allies consent to a revision of the capitulations clauses of the Treaty. This difficulty, perhaps, is the most formidable of all. The Allies insist that their nationals shall have certain privileges in Turkey. At first the Turks refused to consider anything in the nature of pre-war capitulations; but when Ismet Pasha saw that Lord Curzon and his French and Italian colleagues were resolute he yielded the point on the condition that the capitulations should be reciprocal. In other words, the Turks propose now that when one of their nationals is tried in London, for instance, for some offence against British law, a Turkish judge shall sit on the Bench with one of His Majesty's judges. The fact that the Allies should have consented even to discuss such a startling proposal is sufficient proof of their anxiety to make every allowance for Turkish sentiment. Yet there seems to be grave doubt in regard to the resumption of the Lausanne Conference.

Political circles in Angora are divided sharply on the Treaty issue. The men who were prominent in the campaign against the Greeks—Mustapha Kemal, Ismet, and the rest—are in favour of accepting the Lausanne terms; but the more violent local politicians, many of whom took no active part in the struggle, have become "die-hards" of the most virulent type. Within the past few days matters have taken a very sinister turn. The leader of the Opposition to the Kemalist Government, one Ali Shukri Bey, has been murdered. In addition to his post as Deputy for Trebizond, Shukri held the position of editor of Tan, a strongly anti-Kemalist newspaper. Last week he was invited to dine at the house of Osman Aga, one of the principal Kemalist "bosses," who was largely responsible for the Greek massacres in Pontus; and some days afterwards his dead body was found in a newly dug grave. He had been strangled. A warrant was issued immediately for the arrest of Osman, but he managed to escape the vigilance of the Turkish law. The murder has aroused the greatest indignation in Nationalist quarters. Reports from Angora foreshadow the fall of the Government if the assassins of Shukri go unpunished, while the unpopularity of Mustapha Kemal and his associates is prejudicing very gravely the chances of an early peace in the Near East.

Mustapha Kemal and his colleagues have decided to put their fortunes to the test without further delay. They had intended to hold a General Election after the signing of the Lausanne Treaty in its revised form, but now they propose to consult the electorate at once. Under the new Turkish electoral law the elections will be held on a wider suffrage than any which the Turkish people ever have enjoyed in the past; and the peace party ought to have a good chance of success. Turkey has been in a state of war virtually for the past twelve years. Successive defeats in the field have lowered the moral of the nation, while trade and commerce have been at a stand-still since the time of the Balkan wars. Turkey needs peace more urgently than any other nation in Europe. The Treaty which is proposed by the Allies gives her far more than she expected after the Armistice of 1918, and she has every reason to congratulate herself on the success of her curious diplomacy. If the people allow themselves to be misled into the rejection of the Allies' terms, they will be committing themselves to another period of suffering, without the slightest prospect of a successful issue. Mustapha Kemal is wise enough to recognise this fact; but his prestige has been lowered by the murder of Shukri Bey, and his enemies will strain every nerve to defeat his policy of peace.

Partition in Sport.

Ireland is one of the few countries in the world where political differences have been allowed to invade the field of sport. For many years the Gaelic Athletic Association has declared war on the "foreigner." It permitted no members of the British Army or of the Royal Irish Constabulary to take part in its contests and it banned Rugby and association football and hockey as "foreign" games. Now, as one might have supposed, the last possible excuse for such discrimination has vanished. The Free State is her own mistress and no "foreign" soldiers or policemen remain within her borders. The excellent games of Rugby and "soccer" are "a badge of slavery" in the new Ireland to precisely the same extent as in France and Belgium, where they are played with fervour. This sensible point of view is gaining ground within the ranks of the Gaelic Athletic Association. At its annual congress in Dublin on Sunday a motion for the deletion of the rule against "foreign" games was defeated by fifty votes against twelve, but in circumstances which suggest that the decision was not final. The motion was proposed by the Cork Board and was supported strongly by Mr. McCarthy, T.D., the re-elected President, and by Mr. Breen, the unsuccessful candidate for the Presidency. The old-time bitterness was lacking almost entirely from the discussion. The majority of those who stood upon the ancient ways disclaimed all prejudice against the "new" games. They defended their case with the argument that the Gaelic games still required a measure of protection if they were to hold their own in the future, and that the time was not opportune for change. We hope that the opponents of reform will be converted quickly to a more reasonable frame of mind. In the first place, the spirit of coercion is alien from the spirit of sport: every game ought to be allowed to stand upon its merits. In the next place, it is every good Irishman's duty to promote his country's unity by discouraging the survival of barriers of politics, class and creed. Even now, in spite of the attitude of the Gaelic Athletic Association, sport is an important agent in the levelling of such barriers. It is maintaining a friendly contact between North and South and is feeding a generous sympathy and rivalry between our Southern schools and universities. Queen Elizabeth's foundation has welcomed the Gaelic game of hurling. The nationalist tradition of University College, Dublin, has not debarred it from being at this moment a promising and popular candidate for the blue ribbon of Rugby football in the Province of Leinster. Surely this is the better way. How can any protestant against the partition of North and South defend a policy of partition between Southern Irishmen?

Japanese Politics.

The "Westernisation" of Japan, once a source of æsthetic regret to Western sentimentalists and afterwards a source of alarm to Western statesmen, is now taken for granted by the general public. An examination of the achievements of the forty-sixth session of the Imperial Diet, which has just been prorogued, suggests that, while the process is continuing, it has not advanced quite so rapidly as some had supposed. We learn, however, that in the late session members of the Lower House indulged, for the first time in Japanese history, in fisticuffs. Even the ceremonious decorum of the Senate was rudely shattered on one occasion by an acrid exchange of personalities between two noblemen who ought to have known better. We might conclude from these incidents that Japan has not much further to go in the way of "Westernisation"; but we learn also that in this same session a Bill has ratified the jury system, while another enactment, having for its object the popularising of racing, establishes a pari-mutuel system. Other Acts amend the income tax law on the basis of the British Finance Act of 1922, enhance the grants made to elementary schools and limit child labour in factories. That the old Japan still exists alongside of the new is shown by the declaration of the House of Representatives in favour of a Bill which seeks to abolish the historic "Social Orders." This declaration followed upon a demand of the Eta, one of the outcast clans of Japanese, for equal treatment. The Eta and Hinin (pariah) class rank politically with the Heimin or Commoners, but suffer from many social disabilities against which they are now in revolt. As there are several millions of them, it seems likely that they will succeed.

Easter Monday.

Spring sunshine is a wonderful generator of the holiday spirit and, in response to the noble effort which it made yesterday, Dublin fared afield en masse. The density of the road traffic was such as to suggest that every able-bodied man in Ireland already has defeated the Customs barrier by providing himself with a motor car. By three o'clock in the afternoon the People's Park was a seething broth of human young. The Zoological Gardens have not welcomed such a crowd of visitors on a bank holiday for several years. The elephant, who is acquiring a waist of honourable proportions, like the mandarin in "Kai Lung," and has been fitted with a new saddle in consequence, trudged to and fro under shouting pyramids of children until he threatened to give way at the knees. The quadrumana withdrew early behind a mask of characteristic indifference, and their Oriental dignity contrasted sharply with the Occidental levity of their visitors. At every golf course around Dublin the first tee was crowded by ten o'clock and even the beaches, though their season is still afar off, had their share of intelligent ozone-worshippers. A fine bank holiday convinces us that the human race was intended to enjoy life. Dublin might be excused, perhaps, for forgetting the art of enjoyment; but yesterday showed that the holiday spirit still lives, and that, if they are given half a chance, the Irish people can get as much innocent amusement out of life as their neighbours.

IRELAND'S TRIALS.

BISHOP GAUGHRAN'S ADVICE.

Speaking at the 8 o'clock Mass, of which he was celebrant, in Mullingar Cathedral on Easter Sunday, the Most Rev. Dr. Gaughran, Roman Catholic Bishop of Meath, referred to the great lesson to be drawn from the resurrection of Christ — namely, that they should look upon the trials and afflictions of life not as evils. For the past ten years, he said, Ireland had had her share of trials of various sorts, and more than her share. Who would have imagined, or thought, ten years ago that they would have to pass through such a period of trial and suffering? But, if they placed their trust in God, in due time He would bring good out of evil. Ireland had her Calvary, but if the people only placed their confidence in God, she would also have her glorious resurrection.

CUNARD CRUISES.

A TRIP ROUND THE WORLD.

The Cunard liner Mauretania arrived at Southampton yesterday, thus completing a very successful cruise from New York to the Mediterranean and back to the United Kingdom.

Since leaving England some two and a half months ago she has steamed nearly 14,000 miles and called at eight ports, including Madeira, Cadiz, Gibraltar, Monaco, Naples, Alexandria, Haifa, Constantinople, Phaleron Bay, Ajaccio and Lisbon.

Over 600 passengers availed themselves of this opportunity of seeing the wonders of the Mediterranean in the world's fastest liner. Four hundred passengers landed at Southampton, the majority of whom sail back to America in the same steamer next Saturday.

Another notable cruise by a Cunarder terminated on Saturday, when the steamer Laconia arrived at New York. She started from the American port last November on a trip round the world. She steamed outwards through the Panama Canal to Japan and China, thence to India, and back through the Suez Canal and Mediterranean to New York.

She has steamed over 30,000 miles and called at twenty-seven different ports. With the exception of one occasion, when bad weather delayed her arrival in Japan, she has consistently arrived at her various ports at scheduled time.

More than 400 passengers took advantage of this opportunity of seeing the world under ideal conditions of comfort and travel.

The Samaria, another Cunarder, has just left Manila on a similar cruise, but in the reverse direction to the Laconia.

LORD CURZON'S CURE.

Lord Curzon leaves for France this afternoon for a ten days' absence, in order to complete the treatment for phlebitis, which he was receiving at the hands of a French specialist last August. It was then interrupted by the developments in the International situation.

LUXOR TREASURES.

Problems Which Confront the Chemists.

(BY A. LUCAS, DIRECTOR, CHEMICAL DEPARTMENT, EGYPTIAN GOVERNMENT.)

LUXOR, March 14.

In previous articles mention has been made of some of the chemical problems met with in connection with the recent discovery of the tomb of Tutankhamen and the manner in which these have been solved. It may be of interest, however, to describe in detail the way in which the problems present themselves and to show how they must be settled before the work can be proceeded with.

Many of the objects are in such a condition that before they are photographed, recorded, packed or transported to Cairo, they must be cleaned, strengthened, and repaired. Any error in treatment might ruin them, and would probably be irreparable.

Thus, some of the articles are of wood covered with plaster (gesso), which in turn is gilt or painted, and also frequently ornamented with coloured inlay. How is such an object to be treated? Manifestly, the first thing to do is to remove superficial dust, which may usually be done by means of a small pair of bellows, or by gentle brushing with an artist's small, soft, dry brush. A duster cannot be used, as this might catch in any loose inlay or loose gold and cause damage. After removing the loose dust, although there is a considerable improvement in the appearance, neither the gold (or paint) nor inlay is yet bright and clean.

Use of Water.

At this stage it frequently seems probable that treatment with water might be helpful, but before water is used it must be known whether it will cause any injury. What will be the effect of water on the dry wood, what on the gilt or paint, what on the gesso, what on the inlay, and what on the cementing material? Before these questions can be answered the nature and properties of all these materials must be analysed. The nature of the materials must also be known before the object can be correctly described. What, for example, is the composition of the coloured inlay? Is it glass, faience, or stone?

Very little chemical work has been done on many of the problems mentioned, and of that little a considerable proportion of the results are so scattered in scientific journals that they cannot easily be traced. Frequently, too, the chemist has not been in sufficiently intimate contact with the archæological side of the question, and, therefore, from the results of a single analysis of a small fragment of a specimen, about which he knows little or nothing, he refrains from giving a definite opinion.

At this point, too, other chemical problems present themselves. For instance, what are the nature and cause of the strongly adherent amorphous coating frequently found on faience inlay or of the white coating on faience vessels? From the reply to these questions the nature of the chemical changes that have taken place may be deduced and so methods of cure may be devised. A chemical analysis, therefore, of all surface incrustations or deposits is essential.

Cement.

Again, what is the composition of the various cementing materials originally used? How was gesso made to adhere to wood or gold fastened to gesso? What cement was used for inlay on gesso and for inlay on jewellery respectively? What is the best cementing material for refastening loose gold or loose inlay, since a material employed by the Ancient Egyptians in the dry climate of Upper Egypt is not necessarily suitable for the damper climate of museums?

Other problems concern the nature and method of formation of the patina on the gold and silver, and whether it shall be preserved or removed, and how this shall be done. Perhaps few things in connection with the tomb of Tutankhamen have been referred to oftener than the sealed doorway leading from the ante-chamber to the sepulchral hall. The nature of the cement-like material covering this and the other doorways must be determined, and this can only be done by chemical analysis. Many of the alabaster vases are found with their original content. This requires analysis, and any chemical change the material may have undergone must be investigated.

The above are just a few of the questions that confront the chemist engaged in the present archæological work, and which he must be prepared to answer. The solutions of many of the problems, however, have already been found, and it is hoped that ultimately all may be answered.

GOLDEN FRUIT.

PEACHES TEN SHILLINGS EACH IN PARIS.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Monday.

The first peaches of the season were sold here yesterday at the Central Halles, at thirty-four and thirty-eight francs apiece. The first cherries and strawberries also appeared in the market, and sold at somewhat less exaggerated prices.

INDEPENDENT LABOUR.

MR. CLIFFORD ALLEN NEW PARTY CHAIRMAN.

The Independent Labour Party Conference was resumed in London yesterday, when voting for the election of the chairman of the Party for the ensuing year was announced as follows:—Mr. Clifford Allen, 282 votes; Mr. James Maxton, M.P., 161; and Mr. Morgan Jones, M.P., 25. Mr. Clifford Allen was, therefore, declared elected.

The situation in the Ruhr came up for discussion, and Mr. Morgan Jones, M.P., maintained that while British troops remained on the Rhine, French designs in the Ruhr would be prevented from reaching full fruition.

Baillie P. J. Dolan, of Glasgow, who followed, said that the Scottish Divisional Council demanded the withdrawal of all troops irrespective of their nationality. The Independent Labour Party repudiated in its entirety the Versailles Treaty, to which they were not a party.

A resolution was carried condemning the invasion of the Ruhr as being a militarist and capitalist aggression on a defenceless people, demanding the complete withdrawal of all armies of occupation from Germany, and, in any case, the withdrawal of the British forces, in order that Great Britain might be dissociated formally "from this outrage."

M. Jean Longuet, of the Executive of the French Socialist Party, said that had it not been for the unfortunate split in the Socialist movement in France when the Communists joined the Third International, M. Poincare would never have dared to enter upon his abominable Ruhr adventure.

Mr. Robson, Middlesborough, said that there were leaders in their movement to whom the very word Russia was anathema, and members were beginning to doubt the sincerity of their leaders. A Workers' International was wanted, and, declared the speaker, they are not prepared to allow a few leaders, whether Trotsky, Lenin or MacDonald, to stand in the way of unity.

Mr. Southall, Birmingham, declared that some of their leaders were flirting with the Second International.

"Some of us down in pews, he added, looking up at the platform, will have to pray for one or two of you up in the pulpit, that your souls may be saved from everlasting Amsterdamnation. We make speeches here but they do things in Russia."

MUTINY VETERAN DEAD.

The death is reported from Newport, Mon., of Mr. E. P. Donoghue, an Indian Mutiny veteran, at the age of 85. Mr. Donoghue had seven sons serving with the Colours in the Great War.

END OF KILMAINHAM HUNGER-STRIKE.

It has been ascertained that the 90 women prisoners who were reported recently to be on hunger-strike in Kilmainham Prison in order to obtain certain privileges ceased their strike at midnight on Thursday. Two of them were removed to hospital. The strike lasted six days.

Mr. Samuel Hall has completed this Easter fifty years' service as a bellringer at Wigan parish church.

ABBEY THEATRE.

"She Stoops to Conquer."

LAST night at the Abbey Theatre "She Stoops to Conquer" was performed, for the first time so far as the Abbey Company is concerned.

It is somewhat remarkable that the work of only two eighteenth century dramatists who wrote in English can find a "public" now-a-days; and that both of those dramatists, Goldsmith and Sheridan, should have been Irishmen. Goldsmith, indeed, has established an amazing reputation—as a dramatist—on the strength of only two comedies. That he deserves his reputation there can be scarcely any doubt; "She Stoops to Conquer" is filled with good things, and, judging by yesterday's performance, there appears to be no reason why it should ever become "stale." In spite of the long asides, and the somewhat marked exits and entrances in the play, it has plenty of good dramatic situations, and the character drawing is delightfully done.

It is said that every actor of comedy feels that his repertoire is incomplete until he has added to it the part of Tony Lumpkin. That feeling one can easily understand, since Tony has the best part in a great comedy. Mr. Barry Fitzgerald plays Tony this week. If he is not ideal for the part, he acted it with great ability—and with great simplicity, too, that captured the audience at once.

Miss Crowe, as Kate, was quite charming, her first entry was very effective, and Mr. Shields, as her lover, Marlowe, also played well. Mr. Dolan acted Hardcastle with dignity. Miss Delany was amusing as ever as Mrs. Hardcastle. Mr. McCormick spoilt his good acting by a bad make-up; he looked more like an elderly dissipated rake than young Hastings.

The production of the play was good, except for one thing; the music in the fifth act was far too loud. Indeed, it might have been omitted altogether. PRIOR.

NEW LONDON PLAY.

"AT MRS. BEAM'S" AT THE ROYALTY.

LONDON, Monday.

Messrs. Dennis Eadie and Norman MacDermott presented, at the Royalty Theatre, to-night a comedy by Mrs. C. K. Munro, entitled "At Mrs. Beams." It tells us all about a group of people living at a boarding-house. They are the usual middle class folk.

When a mysterious couple appear, Miss Shoe, the moving spirit of the boarding-house, decides the man is the notorious Paris murderer, because he has a mole on his ear, and a big trunk in his room. She builds up and expounds her theory in a most ingenious manner, and is not in the least confounded when the pair turn out to be thieves, instead of a murderer and victim.

The story does not matter much; what does matter is Miss Jean Cadell, playing Miss Shoe, the inquisitive busybody.

Miss Cadell must have sojourned long in the land of boarding-houses to have presented so finished a study of such an objectionable type. Her interpretation of the part was perfect. She kept the audience roaring with laughter. Miss Adela Mavis plays Laura Pasquali very convincingly. Miss Phyllis Stuckey, as the foolishly frivolous Mrs. Stone, more than half in love with the thief, acted excellently; and Miss Frances Wetherall did splendidly as Mrs. Bebb, a sceptical Irishwoman.

Mr. Ronald Massey and Fred O'Donovan, in small parts, were true to type. Mr. Dennis Eadie's playing of the crook, Dermott, in my opinion, was entirely unconvincing. He suggested a man of the world having a joke—never a plausible villain or a sneak thief.

One feels that the author knows intimately the majority of his characters, but does not love them. His irony and contempt is obvious. An occasional phrase here and there recalls the biting sarcasm of another of the younger dramatists, Mr. Maltby.

There is nothing very kindly or tolerant in "At Mrs. Beams," but one cannot help admiring the cleverness with which the characters are drawn. They are everyday types, with their manners and morals, carefully and shrewdly observed and held up for our ridicule. Mrs. Munro's next play should be of great interest.

RELIGION IN RUSSIA.

PRAYERS AND CINEMA IN A CHURCH.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

MOSCOW, Sunday Midnight.

The religious situation here is a series of contrasts approaching paradoxes. In one wing of the ancient church you see the devout worshipping with traditions a thousand years old; in the other, there is a new cinematograph show, with hilarious laughter at the antics of a foreign comedian. Russia countenances both.

The Tsar's Government suppressed Roman Catholics, Jews—any religion but the Established Greek. The Soviet Government declares itself tolerant of any religion, but also tolerant against religion; Jehovah and anti-Semitism, Christ and anti-Christ march together.

Take to-day's contrast. It is Palm Sunday with the Greek Catholic Church, Easter Sunday with the Roman Catholic churches, while the Hebrews are celebrating the Passover. At the Elevation of the Host in the Roman churches thousands of persons, mostly women, fell to the ground, kissing the floor. The procession before the churches was endless, the masses crossing themselves three times on going in and three times on going out, while hundreds of beggars received million rouble notes to buy bread.

Now take the other side of the picture. Take this morning three newspapers and read:—Petrograd—A Polish University students' meeting approved the sentence on Monsignor Budkiewicz. Kharkof—Peasants at Odessky have turned the Greek church into an orphanage. Gomel—Jewish labourers decided to work through the Passover and hold anti-Passover demonstrations. The city's Council decided to requisition one-third of the churches and the synagogues for homeless children—altogether fifteen buildings. Tiflis—Georgian peasants have decided to cut off the priests' salaries, turn the church into a reading room, and use the bronze in the church bells for money in aiding their sons. Kharkof—The Jewish Council of Workers resolves—"We must close the synagogues, which are centres of re-action, Chauvinism, and Zionism, and open them as centres of Communist education."

Thus daily the anti-religious movement is reported in the Press. Chiefly concerning the movement is the League of Communist Youth, which Lenin, Trotsky, and Bucharan called "the hope of the world." The League is composed largely of University and upper school students. They held their first and largest demonstration in Moscow here in their anti-Christmas campaign.

FUTURE OF VILNA.

LETTS DISPUTE LEAGUE'S DECISION.

FROM OUR DIPLOMATIC CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Monday.

The Lithuanian Government, profoundly dissatisfied at the loss of Vilna, has addressed to the Council of the League of Nations a request that the ruling of the Permanent Court of International Justice may be sought on two specific points involving interpretations of Article 15 of the Covenant, this being the article on which the Council's recommendations of the provincial line of demarcation between Poland and Lithuania was based.

Whether the Council can reasonably decline such a request is an interesting question, which will have to be decided at the Council sittings at Geneva the week after next. But the matter appears to be only of academic importance, for the final decision as to Poland's eastern frontier was given, as prescribed by Article 87 of the Treaty of Versailles, by the Conference of Ambassadors, and not by the Council of the League of Nations.

TO SUCCEED DR. JOWETT.

At to-day's meeting of the Glasgow Presbytery of the United Free Church, the business will include consideration of the letter of resignation from the Rev. Dr. John A. Hutton, in connection with his call to succeed Dr. Jowett in the pastorate of Westminster Congregational Church, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.

LONDON LETTER.

EASTER MONDAY.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON
MONDAY NIGHT.

The early morning to-day was cold and cheerless, but that fact did not prevent thousands of people from taking advantage of the many excursion trains provided by the railway companies for a day at the seaside. It is estimated that quite 50,000 trippers left London for the day. About half-past ten the sun began to shine, and the remainder of the day was very fine, with a cool wind. In the afternoon all the people left in London seemed to be promenading the streets or riding on the omnibuses. The City of London, generally deserted on holidays, was unusually crowded, both sides of the main thoroughfares being occupied by slowly moving family parties. Many of the visitors were from the country, and they seemed to have a desire to see St. Paul's Cathedral, the Mansion House, and the Bank of England. The first was opened and visited by thousands; the second is never open to the public, and the third was in the hands of the whitewashers and decorators.

A Horse Parade.

The motor car has displaced the horse in many directions, but the van horse parade, which is a feature of the Easter Monday attractions at Regent's Park, has lost none of its popularity. This event is held under the auspices of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and every year attracts entries from most of the large distributing firms who still employ horse transport. It was evident from the fine condition of the animals in the Park to-day that they had been well cared for, and the judges must have had some difficulty in awarding the prizes. It is a great event for London carmen and their numerous relatives and friends, and affords a pleasing spectacle to all horse-lovers among the public. In the early afternoon the West End was quite gay with cavalcades of decorated vans with rosetted horses driven by a proud driver. One display by a well-known firm of mineral water makers was a splendid advertisement for the firm. Six vans were drawn by a dozen of the finest horses one could wish to see.

"Flagmen."

A number of interpreters of the London General Omnibus Company have been on duty during the holidays at the principal traffic points in the West End, and though there are few foreigners in town just now, it is reported that the interpreters have been useful in quite a number of cases. The languages spoken are indicated by the wearing of national flags on the arm, and they are already known as the "Flagmen." The schoolboy on holiday has proved too fond of airing his linguistic accomplishments, but most of the attempts to deceive the Flagmen by means of questions in a foreign tongue have brought a reply in English.

The Miners' Strike.

The strike of some 40,000 miners in the Rhondda Valley was ordered for to-day as a protest against the employment of non-union labour at some of the pits. The number of non-union men is estimated at about 5,000. The curious thing about the order is that on account of the holidays all the pits were closed down to-day, and will not reopen until Wednesday. Until then it will be impossible to tell how many men will comply with the order. The situation is an interesting one, because when the last strike notices were served only 40 per cent. of the men refused to work, and the threatened strike had to be abandoned.

The Britannia.

The King's racing yacht Britannia, which His Majesty finds himself able to use this year, is now undergoing some extensive repairs at Cowes, in order that she may be ready for this season's regattas. After her thirty years' service it has been found necessary to renew the bottom planking and re-copper it. Rapid progress is being made, and the fitting out of the yacht will begin immediately after Easter, while the trial will take place in May. Every sportsman will be glad that the King can enjoy his favourite sport once again.

Milk Prices.

The price of milk in London was reduced yesterday from 8d. to 6d. per quart, and the lower rate will continue for the next six months. The inclusion of the month of April in the summer period is not regarded with favour by the farmers, who are to receive 1s. a gallon, which price is to include delivery in London. By accepting an equal division of the year into summer and winter, however, the farmers are guaranteed against the price falling during the middle of the summer, and the agreement, which was arrived at last September between the National Farmers' Union and the National Federation of Retail Dairymen, should benefit both the parties to the agreement and the consumer.

Stamps.

Nearly two million pounds' worth of stamps will be exhibited at the Royal Horticultural Hall in May, including the one example of the rarest stamp in the world—a one cent British Guiana of 1856, which was recently sold for £7,600. The world's championship in stamp collections is to be decided, and up to the present there are some six hundred entries, with many wonderful collections. America is sending over many competitors with some most important collections. It seems that the number of collectors has increased enormously since the close of the war. So many stamps have been issued since then that a new zest was given to an old hobby.

Emigration.

Emigrant bookings to America from this country have now ceased until July 1st, as the British quota, as laid down in the United States Immigration Restriction Act, has been reached for the current fiscal year, which ends on June 30th. British passengers who come within such exempted categories as ecclesiastics, theatricals, commercial visitors and tourists, who do not intend to prolong their stay for more than six months, are now eligible for admission. Asked whether the ban applied to Ireland, a shipping agent replied that until a quota had been allotted to the Free State it would appear that the British quota must be taken as operative in respect of Ireland for the present.

Dutch Bulbs.

The Dutch bulb-grower is an industrious individual so far as the distribution of literature describing his productions is concerned. He has, apparently, redoubled his efforts during the past few days; for every householder in London appears to have received at least one catalogue, and in some cases two or three have been delivered by the same post. The price lists emphasise the economy of buying Dutch bulbs, which are described at some length, and the blooms are illustrated. The blooms may turn out as massive as shown in the pictures, but the quaint English used in the description is sometimes difficult to follow, as the following extract from a circular received to-day shows:—"I say therewith you have no flowers in your garden for less or no money."

The bill fixing the period of service in the French Army at eighteen months has been adopted both by the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies, and has passed into law.

A recent sale at Aix-la-Chapelle of timber obtained from the exploitation of German forests by Belgian foresters yielded 648,700f. (£6,860). Two more sales are to be held in the next few days.

ROYAL DUBLIN SOCIETY 3 APR 1923

ANOTHER NEAR EAST CONFERENCE.

ISMET HOPES FOR PEACE,

BUT SAYS ANGORA IS READY FOR WAR.

ELECTION OF NEW ASSEMBLY.

FROM OUR DIPLOMATIC CORRESPONDENT.
LONDON, Monday.

It seems now fairly certain that the Lausanne Conference will resume its labours in its old setting on or about April 16th, which happens to be the date on which the Council of the League of Nations opens its thirty-fourth session an hour's journey down the Lake of Geneva.

Lord Curzon will not take part in the Lausanne discussions, the head of the British delegation being almost certainly Sir Horace Rumbold, the British High Commissioner at Constantinople, who was at Lausanne as the second delegate of Great Britain through the whole of the conference which ended on February 4th.

The fact that it has been decided to hold new elections in Turkey may delay the final ratification of any agreement reached at Lausanne, for Ismet Pasha has hitherto been regarded as a complete plenipotentiary, in the sense that the Assembly undertook in advance to ratify the agreement that he signed. If there is to be a new Assembly, its concurrence can clearly not be counted on beforehand.

The Press Association's Special Correspondent in Constantinople telegraphed last night:—Speaking in the Assembly in explanation of the Note of the Allies, Ismet Pasha said that he hoped that a satisfactory settlement would be reached, but that the nation was ready for war failing such settlement.

A Reuter's Constantinople message, dated this morning, says:—The Turkish reply to the latest Note from the Powers will be despatched to-morrow. It accepts the proposal for the resumption of negotiations at Lausanne, and suggests the date as April 16th.

The reply makes certain reservations in regard to the economic and judicial questions.

GOVERNMENT TO "RUSH" ELECTIONS.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Monday.

The first group in the Chamber, composed of supporters of the Government, presented a motion yesterday in favour of holding fresh elections within the next two months. After some remarks by Ismet Pasha and Mustapha Kemal Pasha, in support of the motion, it was voted unanimously.

The Chamber will remain in session until the election of new deputies.

The news has created general surprise, as it was totally unexpected. It is diversely interpreted. The most probable explanation is that the Government, apprehensive of the growing strength of the Opposition, has resorted to this course, in order to eliminate undesirables, and "rush" the elections before the Opposition's organisation is ready. The deputies of the Opposition will be tied to Angora, and unable to participate in the electoral campaign.

The murder of Ali Shukri, which has greatly stirred public opinion, may have influenced the Government's action. Shukri's body was found buried in a wood not far from the house of the notorious Osman Agha, near Tchankaya. This man was largely responsible for the extermination of the Greeks in the Pontus.

Shukri dined with Osman on the night of his disappearance. Osman, who holds the rank of Colonel in the Nationalist Army, fled before he could be arrested. His lieutenant, Mustapha Captan, leader of the irregulars, has been arrested.

The Opposition demands a public trial.—(Press Association's Special Correspondent.)

The Times Special Correspondent at Constantinople states in a message dated yesterday:—Public attention is occupied with the prospects of the general election, so dramatically sprung upon the country, which had not expected it before the ratification of peace. It is reported that twenty-four seats are to be allotted to Constantinople in virtue of the new electoral arrangements.

Mustapha Kemal Pasha, who is Deputy for Ertogrul, announced in the Grand Assembly his intention to stand again, in a speech in which he deprecated the idea that a dictatorship was possible in democratic Turkey which was devoted to the maintenance of a popular sovereignty. It will be remembered that, according to the Constitution, although the Assembly, like the English long Parliament, voted its own dissolution, the present Chamber will continue to function until the new body is elected to take its place. Consequently, the dissolution does not denote a hiatus of any sort or interference with pending legislation.

Responsible Turkish opinion, while surprised at the suddenness of the decision, generally welcomes the prospect of the election as enabling the country to return a more genuinely representative Assembly composed of men with wider experience. The opinion is expressed that, as the existing Administration is the result of a Coalition of groups, it is unlikely that the Government can exercise much pressure in favour of individual candidates.

MURDERED DEPUTY.

CONFIDENCE IN GOVERNMENT SHAKEN.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.
FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
CONSTANTINOPLE, Monday.

A message from Angora confirms the assassination, for political purposes, of Ali Churki Bey, Deputy for Trebizond. The position of the Government is said to have been badly shaken by the tragedy. Three persons have already been arrested for complicity in the crime.

Proposals for the reconstruction of the City of Angora, which has been definitely selected as the permanent Turkish capital, upon plans patterned after the City of Washington, have been submitted to the Turkish National Government by an American firm, it is learned here.

RAILWAY OUTRAGE.

CLONSILLA BRIDGE DAMAGED.

Early yesterday morning the Midland and Great Western Railway bridge at Clonsilla was badly damaged by a mine explosion, the object of the outrage evidently being to prevent passengers from reaching the Fairyhouse races.

The bridge is on the main road for Fairyhouse and Navan. The attempt to blow it up was made at about four o'clock in the morning, but the damage was not so extensive as to interfere with rail and road service beyond that point.

The first "up" train from Kingscourt was not damaged, and the railway company transferred passengers from one train to the other, across the breach, and thus took them on to Fairyhouse.

The wrecking of the bridge caused great inconvenience. It blocked traffic on the line during the morning, and many passengers intending to travel by an early special train left Broadstone when they heard that a bridge had been blown up, believing that the train would not run.

The rumour that no trains were running to Fairyhouse quickly spread in Dublin, and resulted in a rush for seats in chars-à-banc and motor cars. As much as £2 was paid for a seat.

The first special race train left Dublin at 11 o'clock, and it and the following trains were filled with passengers. Women were not allowed to travel, and many fruit-dealers were greatly disappointed at losing a good day's profits.

Members of the Railway Protection Corps gave all the assistance possible at the damaged bridge, and the railway company had men early at work repairing the line.

SHOT AT CLONDALKIN.

YOUNG MAN'S BODY FOUND ON A FARM.

The dead body of a young man was discovered on Saturday afternoon on the farm of Mr. John Dowling, Newlands Villa, Clondalkin, near Dublin.

The young man had been shot through the head, apparently at close range. There was nothing on the body to identify it. The appearance of the remains would indicate that they had been lying for many hours at the spot where they were found.

The body was discovered by a man employed on a farm adjoining that of Mr. Dowling. Residents in the district state that at about seven o'clock on Friday evening shots were heard from the direction in which the body has been found, but little notice was taken of the firing at the time.

The Civic Guards at Rathcoole had the body removed to the Carnegie Library, Clondalkin, and circulated a description of it.

The body has been identified by Mr. John Bonfield, of 103 Moyne road, Rathmines, as that of his son.

An inquest will be held at Clondalkin at 12 o'clock to-day.

LODGER'S DEATH IN BRAWL.

At Birmingham yesterday, William Payne was remanded on a charge of murdering William Lewis Osborne in a lodging house. The police story is that Osborne and another lodger quarrelled, upon which Payne, who is the proprietor of the establishment, intervened. A fight ensued and Osborne fell, expiring some time later. It was indicated that the charge would probably be reduced to one of manslaughter.

RAILWAY GROUPING

EXTENSION OF TIME LIMIT.

The period of three months allowed by the Free State Government to the Irish railway companies within its jurisdiction, in which to agree among themselves upon a scheme for the grouping of the railways, has elapsed, and the companies have not been able to arrive at a satisfactory settlement.

The date that was mentioned by the Minister of Commerce and Industry in the Dail in January last was the 31st of March. A high railway official said yesterday that the whole question was still in the melting-pot. Although directors and managers of the principal systems were in conference for several days last week, they had not been able to complete their task. A number of small railways in the County of Cork, it is stated, will come under the control of the Great Southern and Western Company.

It was stated by the Minister that if the railway companies failed to come to an arrangement by the end of March, the Government would take the matter in hand and propose a scheme, which they would enforce.

It is understood that the Government will extend the time allowed in the first instance, so as to afford the companies a further opportunity of agreeing to a scheme.

SOUTHAMPTON DEPOT.

FORD MOTOR COMPANY'S SCHEME HELD UP.

The fate of Southampton as the potential headquarters of the Ford Motor Company is trembling in the balance.

Mr. Ford ten years ago decided that the town, with its miles of wharves and docks, would be ideal for his purposes, and a certain amount of progress had been made when the war broke out. After the war everything seemed favourable for the realisation of the Ford dream of a vast Southampton dépôt, employing 2,000 men, but a new and surprising obstacle was discovered.

It appeared that the jetty or wharf part of the scheme could not be carried through unless the purchasers satisfied certain claims in respect of the strip of mud marking the river frontage. These claims have been the subject of long argument, and apparently the end is not yet in sight, and it may well be that the Southampton plans may yet find a resting place in a pigeon hole.

AUSTRALIA'S CAPITAL.

GOVERNMENT NOT TO WAIT FOR "MARBLE HALLS."

PERTH (W.A.), Monday.

Mr. Stewart, the Federal Minister of Works and Railways, in the course of a speech here to-day, said that the policy of the Commonwealth Government was to transfer the capital to Canberra as soon as possible, without awaiting the creation of any marble halls.—(Reuter.)

Canberra, the agreed "Federal capital," is in New South Wales. The administration of the town will be directed by the Commonwealth Government, and not by the State of New South Wales. In the 1920-21 Budget £150,000 was provided for the laying out of the new city. In the meantime, Melbourne is the seat of the Government.

FORD'S FUTURE.

WILL CORK SUPPLY THE FREE STATE?

IMPORT TAX EFFECTS.

BY OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

The world has credited Mr. Henry Ford with the possession of a valuable gift. He has foresight in a remarkable degree. It might be termed "Ford-sight." While his peace ship was sailing the ocean on that mission of colossal failure—his attempt to end the war—he was probably thinking of the probable effects of the war on the future fiscal policy of Great Britain.

Would it cause her to waver in her traditional adherence to the policy of free trade? Would the fact that her export trade in motor cars had disappeared, as the result of the turning of her factories into arsenals, result in her protecting her home markets against American cars, the makers of which, with the world at their feet, had developed their mass production policies to undreamt of limits?

He answered these questions in the affirmative, and determined to get inside the tariff wall which he foresaw Great Britain would erect after the war. As a County Cork man, his eyes naturally turned to Ireland, and he purchased from the Corporation of Cork the municipal estate at Marina Park, with the intention of erecting a factory there for the production—in part, at least—of the Ford car for British consumption.

Remarkable as was the foresight of the great Henry in forecasting England's future fiscal policy as far as the motor trade was concerned, he apparently did not visualise the possibility of Home Rule being granted to Ireland, with unfettered powers in respect of taxation. He did not foresee that in the course of a relatively short period of time his Cork factory would be outside the tariff wall of Great Britain.

POPULARITY OF FORDS.

Two things have tended to cause considerable speculation and discussion as to how the change in the fiscal status of the Irish Free State will affect the Ford car in Ireland and the Ford factory in Cork. One of these is the undeniable fact that the Ford car is the most popular motor vehicle in Ireland—that is, to judge its measure of popularity by the number of cars in use. If price was not the main consideration with the purchaser of a motor car, no one would prefer a Ford to a Rolls-Royce.

The Minister of Local Government recently informed the Motor Legislation Committee that they ought to have welcomed his new system of rating for horse power taxation, as it reduced the licence duty on a Ford by £5 per year, and thus affected 75 per cent. of the cars in use in Ireland. That was absurd for two reasons.

It is ridiculous to say that three out of every four motor cars in use in Ireland are Fords; the proportion is nothing like so high. Further, Mr. Ernest Blythe overlooked the circumstance that, as most of the Fords in use in Ireland are employed in hire service, and consequently are hackney vehicles in the eyes of the law, their contribution to the Road Fund is not affected by a change in the rate of horse-power license duty.

But that there are more Ford cars in use in Ireland than any other make will be readily granted by anyone familiar with Irish motor matters.

FREE STATE'S ONLY MOTOR FACTORY.

The second factor that has brought the Ford into the fiscal limelight is the fact that the Ford factory in Cork is the only establishment of its class in the Irish Free State. The precise relation of the Cork factory to the parent company in America is not known to the public. In name, at any rate, it is an independent concern, its title being "Henry Ford and Son," and its chief product, the agricultural tractor, is not called a Ford, but a Fordson. Nor do we know its relation to Ford (Great Britain), Ltd., the company that handles the Ford car in Great Britain and Ireland.

We need not concern ourselves about these things; they are matters of internal domestic economy, that are of interest only to the shareholders in the respective companies. It may be assumed that the relation between the three concerns is close. The essential fact is that the Ford factory in Cork has been making parts for Fords, which are assembled into the completed vehicles in the works of Ford (Great Britain), Ltd., at Trafford Park.

A SILLY RUMOUR.

It is not only in Ireland that the Ford matter has been the subject of discussion. It has been talked about in England to quite as great an extent. One newspaper—a trade journal—which should have known better, gave publicity to a rumour that it was the intention of the Free State Government to impose an export tax on all Ford parts leaving Ireland.

Our new rulers may be inexperienced in fiscal matters, but the rawest of them cannot be so ignorant of the elements of economic laws as not to know that the only object of an export tax would be to restrict exports. Far from wanting to restrict exports, it will be the object of our new Government to encourage aur manufacturers to export their surplus products to all quarters of the globe, and in as large quantities as the world can consume them.

THE NEW TAX ON FORDS.

If Ford parts made in Cork will not be subject to an export duty on leaving Ireland, they will be liable to the import tax of Great Britain on entering that country. True, the duty will be at the "Colonial preference" rate of 22.2 per cent.—the same as the parts of the Ford that are made in the Ford Canadian factory pay on reaching England.

Only those who are in the confidence of the heads of the Ford works at Cork and Manchester are aware of the extent of the trade between the two concerns. Mr. J. J. Walsh has made himself responsible for the statement that 10,000 "complete sets" are made every year in Cork. Even when note is taken of Mr. Walsh's reservation that some of these are parts for commercial vehicles, and consequently not subject to import duty, few people will be disposed to accept the accuracy of the Postmaster-General's figures.

TARIFF TROUBLES.

Cork has become alarmed at the possibility of its losing the Ford factory because of this new import tax on Irish exports—the inevitable result, as is the duty on English motor cars coming to Ireland, of Ireland's changed fiscal status.

In countries where changes in tariffs are everyday affairs, as in the United States, Governments are accustomed to squeals from manufacturers whose interests are likely to be affected by the changes. Such protests usually receive consideration from the home Government, whose duty it is to protect and encourage the home producer and exporter, but the Free State authorities will be able to do little, save by friendly negotiation, to mitigate the effect of the fact that the Ford Cork factory is now outside the tariff wall of Great Britain.

It has long been a "sore point" with the English motor car manufacturer that at a time when restrictions on the erection of buildings not wanted for war purposes were in force, and when steel was as difficult to procure as gold, Mr. Henry Ford was allowed to build his factory in Cork. Great Britain will give Ford imports from Cork the same preferential rating as she accords to similar products coming from other parts of the British Empire. She could not make an exception in favour of an American competitor, even when he is "domiciled" in the Irish Free State.

A POSSIBLE POLICY.

Incidentally it may be pointed out that the incorporation of Empire-produced parts—that is, Cork parts—in the Manchester assembled Ford would add to the likelihood of the cars getting the "Colonial preference" rate from the Free State. Even without the use of such parts, it is pretty certain the Ford cars coming to the Irish Free State will be so favoured as against other American cars, on the ground that 25 per cent. of their value is the result of labour within the British Empire. If this should be the case, they will pay but 22.2 per cent. as English cars.

What Mr. Ford may do—it seems, in fact, an obvious course—is to cease the export of parts from Cork to Manchester, save those intended for vehicles not subject to import duty; and to use the parts for the making of complete cars for sale in the Irish Free State.

If the parts that are made in Cork are manufactured from raw material not subject to import duty, we should then have an Irish Ford car free from all import taxes. Would it be marketed at a price approaching that of the Ford in New York?

A Ford car at a round £100 would be an attractive proposition.

THE TRAGEDY AT ESSEN.

GERMANS DENY CHARGE OF PROVOCATION.

HERR EBERT'S STRONG COMMENT.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.
FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
COLOGNE, Monday.

The tragedy at Essen cast a deep gloom over the Easter holidays. Public opinion is shocked to the most profound depths. The feelings of the majority of the people, however, are more of a sorrowful than of a revengeful nature.

The German story is briefly as follows:—When the French officer, accompanied by a detachment of soldiers, entered Krupp's works, the sirens were sounded as a signal for the cessation of workmen. A crowd of workmen gathered round the motor vehicle hall, where the French had taken up their position to await the arrival of the Engineering Commission. The Commission duly arrived, but, apparently, in view of the feeling of the crowd, at once left, forgetting to inform the officer of their departure.

A deputation of workmen offered to secure a safe passage for the troops through the crowd, but the officer refused to leave till he had seen the members of the Commission. He waited for two and three-quarter hours, and then, thinking that his men were in danger, cleared a way through the crowd by means of rifle shots. As a result ten people were killed, and over thirty wounded, some of whom are not expected to recover.

Later in the day a French car was stopped in the streets of Essen and its occupants assaulted and mishandled.

The tragedy coincided with the arrival in Essen of the Papal delegate, Monsignor Testa, who visited the wounded in hospital.

To-day is the last of one of the most depressing Easter holidays in the experience of the Rhineland. The hotels report a very bad week, and the crowds on the roads were far less than is usual at this time of the year.

To-day the Cologne races, however, drew a "record" crowd. The prizes totalled 12,000,000 marks (£120.)

SHOT FROM BEHIND.

KRUPP'S DOCTOR'S STORY.

ESSEN, Monday.

Two of the wounded in Saturday's shooting affair have died, bringing the number of deaths up to eleven; while the recovery of three others is very doubtful.

The doctor in charge of Krupp's Hospital assured me that his examination of the dead and wounded convinced him that in at least ten cases the bullets struck their victims from behind.

A member of the Workmen's Council, who was despatched to the French Divisional Commander by his comrades shortly before the shooting took place, to request the withdrawal of the troops, and a director of Krupp's, both denied in statements to me that any missiles were thrown.

It is obvious, however, that some change in the attitude of the crowd must have occurred about eleven o'clock which induced the French—who had taken no steps for several hours—to open fire. It is probable that missiles, in fact, were thrown.

The doctor himself denied the story that dum-dum bullets were used. He had thought so at first, owing to the terrible holes made by the bullets on exit, but these were due to the short range at which they were fired. Only two persons were hit below the knee, which explains the high proportion of deaths.

The funerals will probably take place on Wednesday, and the expenses will be borne by Krupp's. The Germans anticipate that the French will prohibit a public funeral, but learn that General Jacquemot has said that no objections will be raised to this.—(The Times Correspondent.)

"AN INFAMOUS ACTION."

PRESIDENT EBERT'S MESSAGE.

BERLIN, Sunday.

Following yesterday's incident at Krupp's works at Essen, President Ebert has addressed a telegram to Herr Krupp von Bohlen and the managing director of Krupp's works, in which he expresses horror at the "monstrous blood bath which French militarism has introduced among peaceful and defenceless workmen."

He expresses heartfelt sympathy for the relatives of the victims, and hopes that many who were wounded by "an infamous action" will soon recover.

In a telegram the Chancellor says that the French troops fired with machine guns on workmen who "only protested peacefully and without threats against forcible entry into German workshops. Humane feelings will everywhere be aroused by the dreadful outrage."—(Reuter.)

NO NEGOTIATIONS YET.

GERMANY MUST MAKE FIRST OVERTURES.

FROM OUR DIPLOMATIC CORRESPONDENT.
LONDON, Monday Night.

Despite certain hints of Italian activity in the direction of mediation between France and Germany, I can find no basis for any promise of early diplomatic action.

It is, of course, a fact that Signor Mussolini and M. Jaspar discussed the Ruhr situation during their recent meeting at Milan. It is also a fact that both Belgium, equally with Italy, would be heartily glad to see the Ruhr adventure at an end. Both Powers may be relied on to counsel moderation when actual negotiations are opened between France and Germany, but there is no sign that either of them will, or can, do anything to initiate such negotiations beyond making it clear to Germany that they consider that she ought to make definite proposals.

Whether she will be disposed to do that on the morrow of the Essen fracas is doubtful, but there is some question of a speech by the Foreign Minister, Dr. Rosenberg, in the course of this week which may throw some fresh light on the situation.

CONDEMNED PRELATE.

NO REFERENCE IN CHURCH SERMONS.

MOSCOW, Monday, 2 a.m.

The Commissar of Justice, M. Kursky, informs me that the prelate Budkiewicz is still alive. Last night the Roman churches were packed with crowds expecting to hear word of Monsignor Budkiewicz, but the prelate's name was not mentioned in a single church.

At the Roman Church of SS. Peter and Paul a new priest was suddenly called to officiate. He delivered a fiery oration with tears streaming from his eyes, but, although everyone knew that he referred to the condemned prelate, the name of Budkiewicz was never mentioned. In fact, it was very noticeable that Article 68 of the law code defining what constitutes counter-revolution was strictly adhered to.

DANCE FEAT.

NEW YORK WOMAN SETS UP 27-HOUR RECORD.

NEW YORK, Monday.

What is claimed to be "an endurance dance record" of 27 hours without stopping, has been established by Miss Alina Cummings, who started in the ballroom at 6.57 p.m. on Saturday evening and retired from the floor at 9.57 p.m. on Sunday night.

Miss Cummings, who is described as a slender blonde, aged 32, exhausted six male partners in the performance of this feat.—(Reuter.)

NORTHERN EDUCATION.

CRITICISM OF THE NEW BILL.

NATIONALIST M.P.'S PROTEST.

The Education Bill which has been introduced in the Northern Parliament was criticised at a meeting of the Londonderry County Technical Instruction Committee, at Coleraine.

The Principal and Secretary (Mr. W. D. Cousins), in a review of the provisions of the bill, said that urban technical committees would retain their present powers, and 26 county schools and all itinerant classes would come under the Regional Committees. Towards this provision he was not favourable—either all technical committees should continue to function as at present, or all should come under the new authorities. If they wanted to see a properly co-ordinated scheme they should favour the latter course. It did not seem sensible to allow, say, the Technical School in Holywood to retain its own Technical Committee, and to compel the committee in Limavady, for example, whose operations were much more extensive, to come under the Regional Committees. He felt sure that the good sense of the 14 urban committees, now that the evil of county control, which they feared, was dispelled, would bring them in under the Regional Committees.

Mr. Boyle (solicitor, Limavady, and Secretary to the Hon. the Irish Society) said that he saw several glaring deficiencies in the present bill. On the question of rating, were the urban areas of Coleraine and Limavady, whose schools were so largely attended by pupils from the rural areas, to bear the cost out of the urban rates? The bill could not be allowed to go through in its present form.

Mr. George Leeke, M.P., said that this seemed to be a revolution in the way of education. This Northern Parliament, in going in for legislation, was trying to carry through a high-speed programme. The public should be consulted. They could very well carry on under the education system they had at present. With their Constitution in the making, or rather soon to be firmly established, this was not the time to introduce contentious legislation. He agreed that education in Ireland at present had many defects. The most important question at the moment was that of rating. Agriculture at present was labouring under a very heavy load, and any further tax would kill it. Until the voice of the county and the district councils and farmers' representatives had been heard this bill should be deferred.

Mr. Boyle proposed, and Mr. S. S. Young, J.P., seconded a resolution that a deputation should approach the Ministry with a view to obtaining its opinion on the construction of the bill, in so far as it affected technical instruction work in County Derry.

The resolution was passed, Mr. Leeke remarking that he knew he would not get a seconder for an amendment. He protested against any deputation going.

The Chairman, Mrs. Macausland, Messrs. E. M. F. G. Boyle, Rowley Elliott, J.P.; and D. H. Christie were appointed as a deputation.

INJURED ROYALTY.

JAPANESE PRINCESS AND PRINCE RECOVERING.

BERNAY, Monday.

This evening the condition of Princess Kitashirtakawa and Prince Asaka was more satisfactory. The body of the dead Prince, which has been embalmed, and that of the chauffeur, will be removed to Paris to-morrow.—(Reuter.)

ENGLAND'S RUGBY VICTORY.

NINE POINTS IN THE LAST SEVEN MINUTES.

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.
PARIS, Monday.

Brilliant sunshine favoured the big match at Colombes to-day, and in a blaze of glory England wound up her international season with a victory over France by 1 goal, 1 dropped goal and a try (12 points) to a penalty goal (3 points).

This result leaves England the undisputed champion, with a sequence of triumphs over Wales, Ireland, and Scotland, and to-day's rivals.

To-day's margin was, however, a flattering one, for within seven minutes of the close the sides were level at three points each, and the balance of destiny appeared to be trembling ominously for the Englishmen.

France had dealt their opponents a surprise blow in the first two minutes of the game by scoring a penalty goal, neatly registered by Beguet, through a trio of the English forwards getting off-side.

A quarter of an hour later England were also awarded a penalty kick, which was taken by Luddington, whose historic kick at Edinburgh had enabled England to snap a thrilling victory in the last minute of the game with Scotland.

The huge French crowd—numbering nearly 40,000—waited in silent apprehension as Luddington took the kick, and a gratified cheer of relief went up as the ball was seen to go slithering away to the right of the goalpost. Unfortunately for their fond hopes, the supporters of France shouted too soon.

One of the French backs attempted to clear in a too casual mood, and fumbled in the attempt. Wakefield, the leader of the English forwards, the moment the ball had been kicked by his colleague, had dashed down fiercely after it, and when the French player blundered Wakefield had no trouble to pick up the ball and cross the line for a try.

Luddington tried to add the extra points with another kick, but again failed. In the second half Conway scored a try, which Luddington converted, and then Davies dropped a goal.

CRIME IN NEW YORK.

VIGOROUS POLICE CAMPAIGN.

NEW YORK, Monday.

The crime wave which "hit" New York last week has been broken, according to the police, who declare that extraordinary preparations have checked a series of "hold ups," shootings, and robberies, which came in quick succession.

Every available policeman, including the clerical staff, and every detective was placed on patrol duty. A number of arrests were made yesterday, the most spectacular being the pursuit and capture of five thieves in the fashionable Riverside Drive, which was thronged with thousands of gaily dressed Easter paraders, who scampered off into safety away from the threatened hail of bullets.

Plain clothes men, with motor cars and motor cycles, raided a number of haunts of criminals in various sections of the city.—The Times Correspondent.

FATAL MOTOR ACCIDENT.

Mr. Thomas Bradfield, 63, of Dumbarton street, Portsmouth, died yesterday in hospital at Chichester, from injuries received in a motor accident. His car, in which were two other passengers, while proceeding to Portsmouth, after passing a char-à-banc near Chichester, swerved into a ditch, the occupants being thrown on the road.

RHONDDA MINERS.

As all pits in South Wales coalfield were closed yesterday and remain closed to-day for the holidays, it will not be possible to ascertain the effect of the decision of the Rhondda miners to put into effect strike notices to compel those who have receded to rejoin the Miners' Federation. Over 40,000 men are affected.

MYSTERY IN WOMAN'S DEATH.

At the inquest at Lincoln on Dorothy Dival, 23, single, a chemist's assistant, the doctor who made the post-mortem said that he had been unable to find anything sufficient to account for death. The inquest was adjourned for an analysis of the contents of the stomach.

MILD SHOCK FOR UNCLE SAM.

FORGERIES WHICH MISLED STATE DEPARTMENT.

PIQUANT COMMENT OF MR. R. McNEILL.

FROM OUR DIPLOMATIC CORRESPONDENT.
LONDON, Monday.

I understand that some commotion has been caused in America by a written answer given by Mr. Ronald M'Neill to Sir Henry Craik last Thursday on the subject of the forged documents relating to alleged anti-American action in Burma, which various Departments of the United States Government have repeatedly treated as genuine, although definitely informed to the contrary by the British Government.

The fact that the documents are obviously forged is now officially accepted by the State Department at Washington, but the point of Mr. M'Neill's answer, which, not having been given orally, has so far escaped notice in this country, is the suggestion that the forgery was American in origin.

The Under-Secretary, having stated that the United States Government was in 1921 informed that the documents cited were forgeries, but that they were officially cited at Washington on at least two subsequent occasions, adds the following observation:—"It is not clear from the information in the possession of His Majesty's Government whether the documents originated in the Bureau of Mines in 1919 or in the United States Consulate in Bombay." The Bureau of Mines being an office of the American Government, it is this sentence which has caused a mild sensation on the other side of the Atlantic.

THE JAZZ LINE

REVUES TO BRIGHTEN "DRY" SHIPS.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.
FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
NEW YORK, Monday.

In an effort to overcome the opposition of the "wet" ships on the Atlantic passenger service, the United States Shipping Board is introducing a novel departure. The experiment of presenting a complete musical revue on board ship will be tried on the new Leviathan, which begins its first trip from New York to England on June 20th.

The revue will be staged by Mr. R. H. Burnside, of the New York Hippodrome, and music will be provided by Paul Whiteman's orchestra.

RADICAL TAX REFORMS.

SWEEPING PROPOSALS FOR U.S. CONGRESS.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.
FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
WASHINGTON, Monday.

I understand that the Radicals in the next session of the Congress propose to introduce sweeping amendments to the tax laws. They propose to place a heavier tax upon huge incomes, so the Radical leader, Representative Frear, announces.

Bills are being drawn up to tax stock dividends; to increase the inheritance tax; to provide a high rate on undistributed profits; to restore excess profits, but at a lower rate, and to add to the tax on corporation profit.

LORD CARNARVON.

"VERY LITTLE HOPE."

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.
FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
CAIRO, Monday Night.

Since last night Lord Carnarvon has been in the grip of an extremely serious crisis. He has been weakening hourly. No bulletin has been issued this evening, but inquiries have elicited replies which express very little hope.

ATTACKS AND CAPTURES.

OFFICIAL REPORTS.

The National Army Headquarters last night issued the following official reports:—

"Troops approaching a house at Lissavernane, Glen of Aherlow, were fired upon, and Captain John O'Dea was killed. The troops returned the fire, one irregular being killed. In a search of the house one Thompson machine-gun was captured.

"The following irregulars have been captured by the troops in Boyle area:—Michael Brady, Carrick, Drumlish; John Nolan, Ballygar; William Mulrooney, Ballygar; — Martin, and — Mulligan, of Craigs, County Galway. Two irregulars, one with arms, surrendered to the troops at Arigna on the 1st inst.

"In the Cork Command area troops arrested a man named Murphy at Kealkil, who was found in possession of a stolen motor car.

"In the Bantry district the following were arrested by the troops:—John Holland, Robert Lynch, Anne Duggan, Jeanette Hurley, Bridget and Ray Lehane, Bridget Monaghan.

"Two irregulars named Michael Bowen and Denis Fitzgerald have been arrested at Ballinspittle.

"At Rosscarbery troops arrested Michael Daly, of Tullyleak, and John Donovan.

"At Fermoy an irregular named Thomas Walsh, of Ballyduff, has been arrested.

"On the night of the 31st ult. Castletown post was sniped at. The troops replied to the fire, and drove off the attackers. The troops suffered no casualties.

"In Cork City area an irregular named Patrick Cronin, of 139 North Main street, was arrested. One mine exploder, capping machines, and other equipment were found in his house."

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE.

THE FIGURES FOR DUBLIN.

The report of the City of Dublin School Attendance Department for the year 1922 shows that, despite the unsettled conditions in the city during the year, the attendance at the schools was satisfactory. The average number on the rolls in 1921 was 49,475.0 and the average attendance 41,022.4, while in 1922 the figures were 50,278.2 and 41,847.8, an increase of 803.2 on the rolls and of 825.4 in attendances.

The report proceeds:—Very little progress can be reported on the question of further provision of school accommodation. The opening of the new schools at Rialto relieved to a great extent the congestion in that populous district. The Corporation scheme for building 223 houses in Fairbrother's Fields, Cow Parlour, is now rapidly approaching completion. There is a site provided for a school, which will be much needed in this area when the houses become occupied. Through the acquisition of adjoining evacuated military premises the Christian Brothers at North Brunswick street were enabled to secure temporary accommodation for upwards of 200 pupils, but even with this addition they are not yet in a position to cope with the applications for admission. The Corporation has also an extensive house-building scheme in course of preparation on the Donnelly's Orchard site, Clonliffe road. Provision is made whereby a school can be erected, and the arrangements are in charge of the clergy of St. Agatha's Parish.

The report also shows that, in the five divisions into which the city is divided the inspection staff made 50,909 visits to parents to ascertain the cause of children's absence from schools, 7,968 visits to schools, served 1,467 warning notices on defaulting parents, and warned 27 employers to discontinue the employment of children of a school-going age. The Divisional Committees interviewed 716 parents. In addition, 586 parents were summoned, 472 attendance orders were issued by the divisional magistrates, and 114 parents were fined, the total amount of penalties being £26 5s.

TO-DAY'S LONDON PAPERS.

NEAR EAST PEACE PROSPECTS.

CONCILIATION AND REASONABLENESS.

"THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY SAYS:—

The Chairman of the Turkish Foreign Affairs Commission is reported from Constantinople to find the Allies' reply conciliatory in tone. He would, indeed, be hard to please if he did not. It seems to us entirely conciliatory, and to dispose once more of the false assertion that the Allies have mishandled the situation by excessive harshness.

Wisely, it avoids contentious details, which might merely provoke a contentious rejoinder, and confines itself to laying down the principles on which negotiations can profitably be resumed. These principles involve in themselves several concessions which should facilitate a successful result. We need not share the "surprise" which the Governments of the inviting Powers "cannot refrain from expressing," that in his counter-proposals Ismet Pasha should have re-opened various questions which he had himself accepted in writing at Lausanne as closed, and should, further, have raised some entirely new points; for this, after all, is a familiar characteristic of Turkish bargaining.

Among the more important points is the acceptance in principle of the proposal that the Convention relating to judicial competence and the conditions upon which foreigners may establish themselves in Turkey shall be re-drafted with a view to securing to Turkey, so far as possible, the reciprocity which she claims.

The question of the administration of justice is apparently to be taken up at the point which it had reached on February 4th, before Signor Montagna's eleventh-hour attempt on behalf of the Allies to secure the intervention of the legal counsellors in the matter of "domiciliary visits, searches, or arrests of persons other than those taken flagrante delicto." There are still awkward places in the path, but with Ismet Pasha undoubtedly in favour of a peace, and with the prospect of the return of a more reasonable assembly as the result of the coming general election, there now seems every hope that a settlement will not be long delayed.

CANADA'S TREATY WITH AMERICA.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE EMPIRE.

The Times, in a leading article dealing with the Canadian Fisheries Treaty, which was recently concluded, observes:—The treaty, signed in the King's name, cannot rest entirely and exclusively on the responsibility of one nation of the Commonwealth, though it may be desirous and fully capable of bearing it alone. In the event of any dispute arising from the treaty, in practice, whatever the theory may be, the King's name must, in the last resort, be honoured by all his subjects.

That is what the Montreal Star means when it candidly declares that "if Mr. Lapointe did not sign Imperially when he signed the treaty between the King and the American Executive, then his signature is not worth the ink he made it with."

This being so, is it altogether reasonable that such treaties should be concluded, as the Cape Times seems to wish, solely on the authority of one Dominion Government without the association, even in form, of any other Government in the Commonwealth?

We think that if the people of this country, or other Dominions, realised that such a treaty might involve them in an international dispute, and, conceivably, even in war, they would desire that this ultimate responsibility should somehow be regarded at the moment of its conclusion.

At the same time, it must be admitted that the procedure apparently adopted over the Canadian Treaty is open to objection. The formal association of the British with the Dominion Government does not fully meet the case. It is not in strict accordance with the principle of equal status. It leaves out of account the other Dominions and India, who may be no less concerned in the long run in honouring the King's name.

What then is the alternative? That is a difficult question, not to be answered in haste. But we would suggest for consideration one possible solution. It is highly desirable on general grounds that some means of personal consultation between the Governments of the Commonwealth should be provided to span the intervals, often dangerously long, between the meetings of Prime Ministers. If a conference could be maintained in more permanent session by means of resident or regular visiting Ministers, acting as Prime Ministers' deputies, this body might be associated with the Government of the Dominion directly concerned in the procedure of concluding and signing separate treaties.

REPARATION OVERTURES.

GERMANY "DIPLOMACY."

The Times Paris Correspondent telegraphed last night:—There are suggestions to-day that the German Government is preparing a new offer. The Temps discusses seriously the possibility of Germany addressing herself to the whole world, and putting forward new reparation proposals. She would not, if this information is well founded, approach France or Belgium directly. Neither would she ask for British or American mediation. She would simply "broadcast" her offer.

It is significant that, immediately there is a hint of this kind, the procedure indicated is condemned. Were Germany to take such a step, it would be regarded here as a mere effort to provoke a movement of public opinion which would enable her to prolong the conflict. It is recalled that Germany adopted similar tactics in the summer of 1918, declaring that she desired peace, and stating, without embarrassing precision, the terms she would accept. That "peace offensive" failed, and it is asserted that it will again fail.

Two points have recently been made in France when the question of security is discussed in the Press, and it is desirable to understand them clearly in case there is fresh talk of a Franco-British pact. All these proposals, designed to calm French anxiety, do more harm than good if certain essential conditions are forgotten. The first is that no pact will be welcomed unless it follows and completes the local guarantees for the permanent neutralisation of the Rhineland. The second is that no pact will be welcomed unless it contains specific military and naval promises.

LOW POWER AEROPLANE.

The airman, Barbot, made experimental flights with an aeroplane fitted with a ten horse-power motor at Toulouse yesterday, telegraphs The Times Paris Correspondent. He made three satisfactory flights in a direct line, using only seven horse-power, or less than the power of a Paris taxicab.

SAILORS AND FIREMEN.

The conference of the National Sailors' and Firemen's Union in London on Sunday unanimously passed a resolution endorsing the proposed settlement, as agreed to by the National Maritime Board, for a wage reduction to take effect on April 16.

LAWN TENNIS.

FRENCH COVERED COURT TOURNAMENT.

PARIS, Monday.

The finals of the Paris International Easter Lawn Tennis Tournament (covered courts) resulted to-day as follows:—

Mixed Doubles—Mlle. Deve and J. Borotra beat Mdlle. Conquet and C. Ramaswami—6-3, 6-2.

Mixed Doubles, Second Category—Mlle. Huches and Huches beat Miss Dashwood and Arago—3-6, 6-1, 6-3.

Ladies' Singles—Mme. Golding beat Mme. Toussard—6-2, 6-2.

Ladies' Doubles, Second Category—Miss Laming and Miss Nuttall beat Mdlles. Nisson and Veraen—6-4, 10-8.

Men's Doubles—The final between J. Borotra and Tegner and Greig and Ramaswami did not take place owing to Greig having injured his knee.

CUSTOMS BARRIER.

EFFECT ON BORDER TOWNS.

CONCESSIONS DEMANDED.

THE DIFFICULTIES OF TRADE.

There were few incidents yesterday to record in connection with the inauguration of the Customs barrier. On the railways the traffic was confined almost exclusively to passenger trains, and the searches at Dundalk, Bessbrook, Monaghan, Clones, Newtownbutler, and Strabane caused little inconvenience.

In the border towns which are distributing centres for districts on the other side of the frontier traders have grave misgivings about the effect of the tariff, and from at least one place—Clones—there is a demand that farmers shall be allowed to take supplies of groceries and other goods across the border without restriction.

DUBLIN PORT.

A QUIET DAY.

TRAINING OF THE STAFF.

The work of the Customs officials at Dublin Port yesterday was exceedingly light.

In the early morning the small schooner, Gold Seeker—the one arrival of the day—berthed at the North Wall, and was boarded by the officers, who made the usual examination. There was no passenger traffic to or from the port during the day, and only one cargo steamer sailed.

The Customs staff at the North Wall is small, and will need to be augmented if the work of inspection is not to involve delay. The arrangements for housing the officials are of a temporary nature. The premises which do duty as offices at present would be wholly inadequate to accommodate a decent-sized staff. In all probability it will be necessary to erect stations at one or two other places around the port—like Ringsend—as the one staff at the North Wall would be unequal to the handling of the entire traffic of the port.

It will be some time before the arrangements for inspection work quite smoothly. At the moment most of the officers at the port are novices, whose training, an old official in the Customs service told an Irish Times reporter, "will take more than a week."

"Up to the present," he said, "the work has not been very onerous, but things will not be quite the same in another day or two, and the staff will have plenty of work to occupy its time. To-morrow evening there will be between ten and twenty arrivals."

When our representative called at Amiens street Station he was told that there was "nothing to report." The day being a bank holiday, no goods traffic was being handled, and consequently there were no traders worrying about the barrier.

DUNDALK.

SEARCHING TRAINS.

ONLY A SLIGHT DELAY.

With the coming into force of the Customs regulations on Sunday the staff which has been installed at Dundalk began their work of seeing that contraband was not carried between the Free State and Northern Ireland.

Yesterday little difficulty was experienced, and the work of boarding the various trains and making the examinations was got through in good time.

At the bridge over the river on the Dundalk-Newry roads the Customs officials were also on duty, and dealt with the road traffic. They were accompanied by members of the Free State Army who have been on duty at that point for months past.

Nothing of an exciting nature was reported during the day from the stations.

MONAGHAN.

FAIR NOT AFFECTED.

MOTORING ACROSS THE BORDER.

Yesterday being fair day in the town, there was a good deal of traffic around Monaghan, but little of the description affected by the new Customs arrangements. There was nothing on Sunday to indicate that any change had taken place.

The centre of greatest activity yesterday was the railway station, where the Customs officials have converted the third-class waiting-room into offices. All the trains entering the Free State from the Tynan direction were boarded and luggage searched by the officials, while trains leaving the Free State from the Clones direction were also searched. The trains were delayed some seven or eight minutes. No incidents worth recording occurred.

Farmers were very much puzzled about the effect of the regulations on cattle, but it was found that the fair was not affected in any way. Another question that arose was as to motor cars passing out of the Free State into the six counties. Inquiries from the Customs officials on the other side of the border elicited the information that a motor car going into the six counties would report at the nearest station, where particulars would be taken, and in case the car was returning within seven days no tax would be payable; if it remained for more than seven days the one-third tax would have to be lodged with the Customs officials and a refund could be obtained when the car returned.

The first consignment of goods from the six counties is expected to arrive at Monaghan to-day. All such goods must be examined at Monaghan Railway Station, and traffic by road will be examined at the Customs hut erected near the entrance to the town.

CLONES.

TRADERS' DIFFICULTIES.

AN URGENT DEMAND FOR CONCESSIONS.

Our Clones Correspondent says:—There is but one approved route for traffic passing into County Fermanagh from County Monaghan, and all vehicles must travel by it between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

All the trains coming from Belfast and Enniskillen were searched here, with the result that there were long delays. It is believed that the railway company will have to alter time-tables.

The public are in a quandary regarding the full extent of the Customs regulations. Clones traders held a private meeting yesterday to discuss the situation. One enterprising merchant has purchased a large disused mill in Clones for the purpose of opening a bonded warehouse, and he also intends to open a store on one of his farms in Northern Ireland.

If concessions are not forthcoming whereby farmers from County Fermanagh can enter

Clones by any route and take out goods for their own consumption, a great amount of inconvenience will be caused. The trade of the town, too, would suffer severely. Rumour has it that such a concession has been asked for and granted, but inquiries in official quarters failed to confirm the rumour.

Our Enniskillen Correspondent says:—The Customs barrier in the Fermanagh area was really inaugurated yesterday morning, when the first trains ran through Newtownbutler to the North-West. The day being a holiday, there were few travelling, except those going to the races at Enniskillen, and the Customs officers made only a cursory search of luggage for dutiable articles. They say that they will take things easily at first till the people get into the routine, and then the screw will become tighter.

Some motor cars crossing from Monaghan and Cavan were turned back by the constabulary to the Customs posts, and here the requisite entries had to be made. The ordinary searching of passengers for firearms was more interesting and exciting, for on one train the "bag" included two men, who were detained and turned back to the Free State.

The principal point of interest is how the barrier will affect Clones, Belturbet, and other places which hitherto have been distributing centres for districts in Northern Ireland. The trade of Clones is mostly with Fermanagh, and some merchants take an exceedingly gloomy view of the effect of the new duties. A Fermanagh farmer cannot do his shopping in Clones, as the quantities permitted to be brought home are so small.

The Customs officials in Fermanagh are mostly Scotsmen and Englishmen who were out on the Rhine, and as they are experts in the work things are running smoothly. The big tests will come later in the week, when the different markets in the county are held.

Enniskillen will lose a large trade with Cavan and Leitrim, but it will be more than compensated by the keeping of the home trade, which formally crossed the border to Belturbet and Ballyconnell. It has had experience of this. When the border was closed for two months last summer, and no one was allowed to cross, Enniskillen had large markets. New customers came and opened accounts in the local shops. Farmers from the Cavan and Leitrim side of the county made Enniskillen their shopping centre, and their custom was worth more than that which was kept outside. They were beginning to dribble back by degrees to the Free State towns, which were more convenient, and the new order of things will put an end to that for all time.

By a special order issued to the constabulary, no motor cars will be allowed to cross the border this week after 5 p.m.

STRABANE.

QUICK SEARCHES.

The coming into force yesterday morning of the Customs barrier caused considerable interest at Strabane, Lifford, Clady and Castlefin, where all traffic by road and rail was stopped and searched. The examination was carried out quickly and with the slightest inconvenience to the passengers. Very few of the trains were delayed.

LONDONDERRY.

£3 FOR LENS.

AMATEUR PHOTOGRAPHER'S SURPRISE.

No incidents of outstanding note occurred yesterday in connection with the new Customs regulations, so far as the Derry-Donegal border was concerned, with the exception of the "hold up" of an amateur photographer who crossed the border from Derry at Muff. He was going to see friends in the Free State, and took a camera to take a snapshot of the Customs post. There was a surprising experience in store for him. The Free State Customs officer examined the camera, and, remarking that the lens was a good one, said that the import duty on it would be £3.

The photographer-owner protested that he was only going to see a friend, and mentioned the name of a farmer who could vouch for him. He was allowed to pass and to return in the evening.

Much doubt was felt as to the position of motorists coming from and going to the Free State, but no trouble was experienced, cars being allowed to and fro as formerly.

There was a race meeting at Derry, and hundreds of people came from Donegal by motor, and were not in any way inconvenienced. The numbers of the cars were taken.

The Great Northern Railway have decided to run daily a special goods train from Derry to the Free State stations on its line in Donegal—namely, Carrigans, St. Johnston, and Porthall. Ordinary goods trains will not in future stop at these stations.

A DOCTOR'S WAY WITH INDIGESTION.

The wife of a well-known London physician became a sufferer from digestive disorder, and, naturally enough, she asked her husband for a remedy. The doctor made her up some medicine of the kind usually given to mild cases, but it failed, so, without more ado, he prescribed Bisurated Magnesia, and the results were astonishing, even to the medical man. From the first dose all trace of discomfort vanished, and the one-time sufferer could eat anything she fancied with relish and minus any fear of after-effects. More than that, her complexion improved wonderfully, together with her general health, and, as may be surmised, the doctor is now one of the army of enthusiastic medical men who praise Bisurated Magnesia and recommend it in cases of stomach trouble. This preparation is readily obtainable at any chemist's, and any reader who is in need of a real remedy for indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis, or other such troubles should get a package without delay.

TIPPERARY FIGHT.

TWO MEN SHOT DEAD.

CASUALTIES IN NORTH COUNTY LOUTH.

FORTY MEN ARRESTED.

The military post at Kilbarry, on the north side of Cork City, and the city Electric Power House were attacked on Sunday night, the firing lasting until after four o'clock in the morning. No casualties are reported.

Captain O'Dea, of the National Army, and a local leader named Jeremiah Kiley, were killed in a fight at a house in the Glen of Aherlow on Sunday.

National troops were attacked on Sunday night at Ballybinaby, North Louth. Sergeant Daly was killed by bomb and bullet wounds, a private soldier was wounded in the thigh, and a civilian named Morris was found dead after the fight. There were many bullet wounds on his body.

Armed men on Saturday night attacked the Carrickmacross Military Barracks, but the troops made an encircling movement, and the attackers were compelled to retreat. At the courthouse, which had been occupied by armed men, the troops found a large quantity of "cheddar" ready for use.

COUNTY CORK.

MILITARY POSTS ATTACKED.

On Sunday night the military posts at Kilbarry, on the north side of Cork City, and the Cork Electric Power House were attacked. The firing could be heard all over the city. It was particularly intense at about 4 o'clock yesterday morning. No damage was caused, and there were no casualties.

Last night two bombs were thrown at military guards in the neighbourhood of the Cork electric power house and the Blackrock railway terminus. Two soldiers and a girl were injured, but so far as can be ascertained they are not in a very serious condition. Afterwards the soldiers arrested two young men.

COUNTY TIPPERARY.

AHERLOW FIGHT.

OFFICER AND LEADER KILLED.

During a search by National troops in the Glen of Aherlow, on Sunday evening, they entered the residence of a man named McDonagh, in the village of Lissernane, whose son, Patrick, a local leader, and Denis Lacy were killed in an encounter with troops nearly two months ago. It is stated that on entering the front door an exchange of shots took place between the soldiers outside and some person inside. The result was that Captain O'Dea was killed. A man who rushed through the door from the inside was met by the fire of the troops, and was mortally wounded, dying soon afterwards. He is stated to be Jerry Kiely, a prominent local leader of the Republicans.

On Sunday morning, in the Glen of Aherlow two brothers named Leahy, of Shrough, near Tipperary, were arrested.

COUNTY LOUTH.

FIGHT NEAR DUNDALK.

TWO KILLED; ONE WOUNDED.

In North Louth on Sunday night a soldier of the National Army was killed, another wounded, and a civilian shot dead.

The shooting took place near the townland of Ballybinaby, some miles from Dundalk, and towards the County Armagh border line. It is stated that earlier in the night hostility was shown to a soldier who had been on leave in the district. One version is that the soldier was being badly handled in a house, and had to escape through a window.

Late on Sunday night a party of military left the Dundalk Barracks for the scene. They would appear to have dismounted from the Crossley car at a cross-road, and to have gone some distance in different directions. One of the parties had not proceeded far when rifle fire was opened on it. Sergeant Daly, a young man, and a native of Ballybay, County Monaghan, was hit by a bullet, and later received a frightful head wound from a bomb splinter, dying almost instantaneously. Another soldier, Private McIlvinney, was wounded in the thigh. The troops returned the fire, and when the attackers cleared away it was found that a young civilian had been shot dead. He had received many body wounds. His name is given as Morris, and his address as Culloville or Crossmaglen, County Armagh.

The troops afterwards searched the district, and among those taken into custody were forty young men who had been attending a dance. While the dance was in progress the hall was raided and the men were taken away. All were marched to Dundalk, arriving there at four o'clock yesterday morning. Before and behind them came armoured cars. While the military decline to issue an official report on the subject, it is learned that in the "round-up" after the shooting the troops succeeded in discovering some rifles, ammunition, and bombs. It is also stated that during the attack a Thompson gun was used against the troops, but the man who used it got away.

ATTEMPTED ROBBERY.

Late on Sunday night a loud knocking was heard at the door of the house occupied by Mr. Patrick Cluskey, a rate collector for the Louth County Council. Mr. Cluskey lives at Mansfieldstown, in the Mid Louth district. When he asked who was there, he was ordered to open the door, but refused, adding that he had lodged his money and books as the half-year had closed on the previous day. The leader of the party outside began to smash in the door with an iron crowbar. Mr. Cluskey shouted out that he would take the head off the first man who crossed the threshold with a slashing hook. Eventually the door was smashed in, and as Mr. Cluskey appeared to be showing some opposition the man with the crowbar flung it at him, injuring him on the forearm. Four of Mr. Cluskey's dogs were then let loose, and they attacked the armed raiders. The raiders fired four or five shots, but the dogs persisted in worrying them. Mr. Cluskey dashed for the back of the house, shouting as he went, "Come on with the rifles; they're here now." He was being followed by the raiders towards the garden, but on leaving the kitchen fell to the ground. Mrs. Cluskey urged on the dogs again, and they put the raiders to flight.

A postman cycling from Castlebellingham Post Office to the railway station on Saturday night was stopped by three armed men, who took from him the entire sum which had been collected for the licensing of dogs in his district.

One of the Civic Guards stationed in the Bridge street Barracks, Dundalk, was returning from his home at Castleblayney during the week-end, when, near the Armagh-Monaghan border, at Culloville, he was "held up" by three men armed with revolvers. They took from him his bicycle, £3 in cash, and his overcoat. In addition, they took a set of bagpipes which Guard Moorehead was bringing back to barracks. When they had robbed him they fired shots over his head.

COUNTY MONAGHAN.

BARRACKS ATTACKED.

An attack was made on Carrickmacross Barracks on Saturday night at 11 o'clock by a large body of armed men. Fire was opened on the barracks from Gallows Hill and other heights near the town. A patrol of four soldiers had just turned the corner of Monaghan street, when shots were fired over their heads from the summit of Gallows Hill. The patrol took cover, and soon found that the barracks was the object of attack.

The garrison replied with rifle and machine gun fire. Bodies of soldiers left the barracks and other premises to surround the attackers. They did very little firing, but carried out an encircling movement against the attackers. Finding the main body operating from Gallows Hill, a few men, under covering fire from the barracks, ran down the Main street and, assisted by the patrol, attacked the party on both flanks and scattered them. This movement saved the Courthouse from being blown up. The military entered it and discovered two large cans of "Cheddar" almost prepared for detonators.

FATHER MATHEW FEIS.

YESTERDAY'S TESTS: RESULTS.

In yesterday's contests at the Father Mathew Feis, Dublin, almost 400 competitors were scheduled to appear. The attendance was large, and the standard displayed by the competitors was of a high order.

The competitions were adjudicated as follows:—Dancing, Messrs. Sean O'Kieley, Joseph Dooley, and Dr. Tuohig; Miss Margaret Ryan, Miss Letty and Miss Kathleen Wright. Singing, Messrs. Robert O'Dwyer, Sean O'Keeffe, B. Fallon, and Miss K. Maureen. Piano, Messrs. R. O'Dwyer and D. Fitzgerald. Literary Section, Leon O'Brien, P. O'Ryan, and Miss Kathleen Wright.

The first prize in the Hornpipe contest went to Master George Leonard, 31 Lower Dorset street. He received a total of 90 per cent. Miss Mona Mooney (a pupil of Miss Bessie Rowe), 7 Seafort avenue, Sandymount, was the winner of the second prize with 87 per cent. Master Patrick Roche, 52 Upper Gardiner street, with 85 per cent., tied with Miss Maisie Corkery, North King street, for third place. The following were highly commended—Miss Mary M'Mahon, Miss Nora Towers, Miss Angela Farrelly, Miss Kitty Brennan, Miss Essie Ellis, and Miss M. Claffey. The standard displayed in the contest was very satisfactory.

In the Scholarship Piano Competition, Mr. O'Dwyer remarked that there had been several performers who showed really great talent. The scholarship was awarded to the competitor who proved to be most promising, and who possessed the best musical knowledge, Miss G. Hughes, 26 Clyde road, Ballsbridge. Miss M. Hughes, Miss Lily Casey, Miss Doris Solomon, and Miss May Mulcahy were highly commended.

There were 82 competitors in the Literary Section. The first prize in Class A (Division 1) for recitation in Irish was awarded to Master Justin M'Carthy, St. Joseph's Convent, Mount Sackville. Miss Mary Murphy, Dominican College, Eccles street, won the second prize. Miss Betty O'Dwyer and Miss Winnie O'Dwyer, Dominican College, Eccles street, were highly commended.

In Class B, the first and second prizes were won by Miss May Murphy, King street, and Miss Maureen Cahill, Dominican College, Eccles street, respectively. The third place was accorded to Miss Harriet O'Hanlon. Miss May Morrisey, Dominican College, Eccles street, won the first prize in Division 4. Miss Mary Murphy, of the same address, won the second prize. Miss Rose Connemara and Miss Carrie Connery were highly commended. In Division 5 the prizes went to William Honahan, 3 Annesley Bridge road (1st), and Michael Murray (2nd), Columcille Branch, Gaelic League.

In Division 7 (Special Irish Competition) the first, second, and third prizes were divided. The first was divided between Miss Maggie Jordon, Dominican College, Eccles street, and Miss Augustine Ingoldsby, 72 Fairview Strand. The second prize went to Samuel Kelly, Whitefriar street Schools, and William Honahan, Annesley Bridge road. The third prize was tied for between Miss Evelyn Ingoldsby, Dominican College, Eccles street; Miss Cora O'Gorman, Loreto Convent, Leeson street; Harry Myles, Whitefriar street, and Patricia Holland, Eccles street. Thirteen competitors were highly commended, and Mr. Ryan stated that the standard in the competition was very high.

The slip jig contest was divided into three sections for competitors under ten, fourteen, and eighteen years of age. In the first mentioned the first prize was tied for between Miss Maureen Forde, 31 Lower Dorset street, and Miss Bridie Weir. Miss Maureen Toner was awarded the second prize.

In the contest for children under fourteen, the first prize was tied for between Miss Kathleen Rowe and Miss Cissie Finegan, Dominican College, Kingstown. The second prize was won by Miss G. Larkin.

The following were the results in the contest for entrants under eighteen years of age:—First prize, Miss Kathleen Lacy. Second prize, Miss Phyllis Duhy. Highly commended—Miss Kathleen Byrne, Miss Lucy Cullen, Miss Agnes Keena, and Miss Kathleen Grace.

The sight reading in the junior piano contest was, said Mr. Fitzgerald, very good. Thirty-two competed. Miss Winifred Mackay, 23 Oxmantown road, won the first prize, and the second prize went to Miss Ria Leon, 10 Kenilworth Park. Miss Daisy Roche, Miss Kathleen Scannell, Miss Imelda Doyle, Miss Gabrielle M. Garland, and Master William Honahan were highly commended.

Competitors in the Roisin Dubh Cup solo contest, which was held in the evening, were restricted to Gaelic songs. There were five entrants. The contest was disappointing, and as none of the competitors secured the requisite 85 per cent. in marks, the prize was not awarded.

The ladies' gold medal contest, owing to the lateness of the hour, was adjourned until Friday evening.

To-day's programme is as follows:—Solo reel, gold medal Irish solo, Fitzgerald Cup, senior piano, Excelsior piano, scholarship (violin), preparatory violin and junior violin. The English recitation contest, which was postponed from yesterday, will also be held. The preparatory piano competition, which was scheduled for yesterday, will be held on Wednesday.

EASTER MONDAY.

THE HOLIDAY IN DUBLIN.

The Easter Bank Holiday in Dublin yesterday was favoured by splendid weather, which brought the citizens of all conditions and ages out into the streets and to the public parks and recreation grounds. Despite the battering which it has received in the political disturbances of recent years, the old city looked well in the spring sunshine, and the holiday garb of the people lent to Dublin an air of joyousness and festivity in keeping with the season.

There had been many rumours in Dublin over the week-end, and some rain; but the rumours and rain had alike vanished yesterday, and a blue sky and brilliant sunshine took their place. The Government offices were closed, and only the guard of soldiers and police were to be seen about them. The Post Office service was reduced to a Bank Holiday skeleton.

The tramway services to Howth, to Dalkey, and to the Phœnix Park were all taxed to their utmost capacity, while many hundreds sought a day's recreation further afield by means of train and motor car.

In the Phœnix Park the day was delightful, and those who made it their Mecca had no reason to regret their choice. Within practical certainty of the dinner tables and the teapots of Dublin, they were free to enjoy to the full the beauty of the scene, the sunshine, the gentle breeze, and the music of the birds, for after the rain of the past few days they sang in the full chorus of spring.

After nightfall the special holiday attractions at the theatres, music halls and picture houses attracted crowds.

IRELAND V. FRANCE.

AN IRISH VICTORY.

PARIS, Monday.

In the international hockey match here this afternoon Ireland, who led at half-time by 2 goals to 1, beat France by 4 goals to 1.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

THE CUSTOMS DUTIES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—In your leading article of the 28th March you hasten to criticise adversely the placing of army contracts with Irish firms whose prices were twenty per cent. higher than those across the Channel. On a subject so vital hasty criticism is to be deprecated—all the more so because the information available is altogether insufficient to enable the facts of the matter to be fully and fairly judged.

To my mind criticism is impossible without knowledge of the total extra cost involved, the articles on which the money was spent, and the extent to which Irish labour benefited. If comparison of cost be based—as it should be—on equal standard of quality, the high-class products of the Irish manufacturer are generally little, if at all, dearer than those of cross-Channel make. In fact, many high-class articles are actually produced cheaper in Ireland than in England. There may be something to be said as regards Irish-made articles being above the standard really necessary for the army. Irish manufacturers do not make low-grade goods, and some of them so far have not been able to compete in moderate-grade goods. Catering for low-grade goods may be postponed for the time—perhaps, for ever; but the requirements of the army can undoubtedly be of material assistance in enabling Irish manufacturers to arrange for the bulk-making of satisfactory articles of moderate quality.

The demand for the articles in such large quantities has come suddenly on Irish manufacturers, and conditions have not been favourable for altering or extending factory arrangements quickly to secure the full benefits of bulk-making. There will be an interim period during which certain Irish-made goods will cost more than similar goods. Is that interim period to be the present time, or should it be, as your article suggests, postponed? Is it possible to anticipate without a test what goods can in the near future be produced in Ireland on a keenly competitive basis? Will the present opportunity for testing the matter ever recur? Is it really cheaper to import even when so much as twenty per cent. reduction of price is secured? Although I am unable to reply to the foregoing queries, I think that it is obvious that they indicate how gravely dangerous is the policy advised in your article.—Yours, etc.,

W. T. CRAWFORD.

Maryville, Blackrock, Co. Dublin,

FATHER MATHEW.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Whatever may be the truth about "wet" or "dry" America, no one can shut his eyes to the drinking that is going on in Ireland, and that has much to do with the robbery and destruction that is rampant. Drink should not be obtainable in a country full of armed men. To compensate the publicans would be a small part of what would have been saved. It is said that women are drinking even more than men are.

There is still living in this diocese a clergyman's widow who took the pledge from the good and great Father Mathew, who was urged by a Cork Quaker to begin his crusade against drunkenness. Eighty years ago Jane Welsh Carlyle described him in a letter to her husband, then in Scotland. I think even the "wettest" of your readers would be interested by it:—

"August 9, 1843.—And now let me tell you something which you will, perhaps, think questionable, a piece of hero-worship that I have been after. My youthful enthusiasm, as John Sterling calls it, is not extinct then, as I had supposed; but must certainly be immortal! Only think of its blazing up for Father Mathew! You know I have always had the greatest reverence for that priest; and when I heard he was in London, attainable to me, I felt that I must see him, shake him by the hand, and tell him I loved him considerably! I was expressing my wish to see him to Robertson, and he told me it could be gratified quite easily. Mrs. Hall had offered him a note of introduction to Father Mathew, and she would be pleased to include my name in it. 'Fix my time, then.' He was administering the pledge all day long in the Commercial road.' I fixed next evening.

"Robertson, accordingly, called for me at five, and we rumbled off in omnibus, all the way to Mile End. Then there was still a good way to walk; the place, 'the new lodging,' was a large piece of waste ground, boarded off from the Commercial road, for a Catholic cemetery. I found 'my youthful enthusiasm' rising higher and higher as I got on the ground, and saw the thousands of people all hushed into awful silence, with not a single exception that I saw—the only religious meeting I ever saw in cockneyland which had not plenty of scoffers hanging on its outskirts. The crowd was all in front of a narrow scaffolding, from which an American captain was then haranguing it; and Father Mathew stood beside him, so good and simple-looking! Of course, we could not push our way to the front of the scaffold, where steps led up to it; so we went to one end, where there were no steps or other visible means of access, and handed up our letter of introduction to a policeman; he took it and returned presently, saying that Father Mathew was coming. And he came; and reached down his hand to me, and I grasped it; but the boards were higher than my head, and it seemed our communication must stop there. But I have told you that I was in a moment of enthusiasm; I felt the need of getting closer to that good man. I saw a bit of rope hanging, in the form of a festoon, from the end of the boards; I put my foot on it; held still by Father Mathew's hand; seized the end of the boards with the other; and, in some, to myself (up to this moment), incomprehensible way, flung myself horizontally on to the scaffolding at Father Mathew's feet. He uttered a scream, for he thought (I suppose) I must fall back; but not at all; I jumped to my feet, shook hands with him and said—what? 'God only knows.' He made me sit down on the only chair a moment; then took me by the hand as if I had been a little girl, and led me to the front of the scaffold to see him administer the pledge. From a hundred to two hundred took it; and all the tragedies and theatrical representations I ever saw, melted into one, could not have given me such emotion as that scene did. There were faces both of men and women that will haunt me while I live; faces exhibiting such concentrated wretchedness, making, you would have said, its last deadly struggle with the powers of darkness. There was one man in particular with a baby in his arms, and a young girl; that gave me an insight into the lot of humanity that I still wanted. And in the face of Father Mathew, when one looked from them to him, the mercy of Heaven seemed to be laid bare. Of course I cried; but I longed to lay my head down on the good man's shoulder and take a hearty cry there before the whole multitude. He said to me one such nice thing. 'I dare not be absent for an hour,' he said. 'I think always if some dreadful drunkard were to come and me away, he might never muster determination, perhaps, to come again in all his life, and there would be a man lost!'

"I was turning sick, and needed to get out of the thing, but in the act of leaving him—never to see him again through all time, most probably—feeling him to be the very best man of modern times (you excepted), I had another movement of youthful enthusiasm which you will hold up your hands and eyes at. Did I take the pledge then? No; but I would, though, if I had not feared it would be put in the newspapers. No, not that; but I drew him aside, having considered if I had any ring on, any handkerchief, anything that I could leave with him in remembrance of me, and having bethought me of a pretty memorandum book in my reticule, I drew him aside and put it in his hand, and bade him keep it for my sake, and asked him to give me one of his medals to keep for his! And all this in tears and in the utmost agitation! Had you any idea that your wife was still such a fool! I am sure I had not. The Father got through the thing admirably. He seemed to understand what it all meant quite well, inarticulate though I was. He would not give me a common medal, but took a little silver one from the neck of a young man who had just taken the pledge for example's sake, telling him he would get him another presently, and then laid the medal into my hand with a solemn blessing. I could not speak for excitement all the way home. When I went to bed I could not sleep: the pale faces I had seen haunted me, and Father Mathew's smile, and even next morning I could not anyhow subside into my normal state until I had sat down and written Father Mathew a long letter—accompanying it with your 'Past and Present'! Now, dear, if you are ready to beat me for a distracted Gomeril I cannot help it. All that it was put into my heart to do, Ich konnte nicht anders." ["Letters and Memorials of Jane Welsh Carlyle." Vol. I. Page 220.]—Yours, etc.,

"K."

LIQUIDATION IN RAILROADS.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.)

NEW YORK, Monday.

Stocks opened firm, the statement by Mr. Davis, the Secretary of the Labour Department, as to the industrial conditions, strengthened industrials temporarily, but the whole market was subsequently unsettled by drastic liquidation in investment Railroads, Union Pacific and Delaware and Hudson falling 4 points. Speculators were puzzled by the selling, and unloaded hastily elsewhere. A rumour was circulated that the Union Pacific dividend would be cut. The market closed weak.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Monday.

WHEAT on spot steady, with mixed Durum 1 cent. up. Statistician Snow's estimate of the winter wheat crop is 560 million bushels, and the condition 74.8. The visible supply of wheat in the United States has decreased 760,000 bushels on the week, and now totals 45,785,000 bushels. Last year it was 18,463,000 bushels.

The week's export clearances from Atlantic seaboard total 3,263,000; last year, 5,207,000 bushels.

Receipts—Atlantic, 705,000; last year, 202,000. Clearances—133,000; last year, 790,000.

CORN on spot easy at ¼ fall. The visible supply has decreased 1,132,000 bushels on the week, and now totals 28,742,000; last year, 33,000,000.

The week's export clearances from Atlantic seaboard total 713,000 bushels; last year, 2,245,000. The week's export clearances:—Oats 447,000 bushels, last year 50,000; flour 306,000 barrels, last year 349,000.

Receipts:—Atlantic, 173,000; last year, 654,000. Clearances:—156,000; last year, 1,111,000.

LARD—Cash firm, with prime Western 17½ and Middle West 15 points higher.

COFFEE opened irregular, 5 points up to 8 down, and then fell all round on liquidation and selling by metal and commission houses. A rally, however, followed on better Brazilian market news, shorts covering, and buying by trade interests, and the market closed steady 1 to 6 points higher. Spot quiet, ⅛ down. Stocks of Brazilian coffee total 874,000 bags, compared with 840,000 last week. Week's warehouse deliveries aggregate 224,000 bags, against 142,000 last week. Approximate sales—19,000. May, 10.69; July, 9.88; September, 9.08; December, 8.80; March, 8.90.

RUBBER steady, ⅛c. lower. First latex crepe, 33½; smoked ribbed sheets, 33½.

SUGAR steady. Centrifugal Cuban, 7.28; Porto Rica, 7.41. Futures steady, 5 to 4 points down; May, 5.57; July, 5.77; September, 5.92; December, 5.71.

COTTON opened firm, and rose under adverse weather reports, bullish visible supply figures, foreign buying, and shorts covering; then declined on lower Manchester advices, liquidation and selling by Wall street, and spot and New Orleans interests, but again advanced on improved Southern spot market. Another decline ensued on disappointing conditions in the cotton goods trade and bear pressure. Then, on heavier exports, the market closed steady, with rates showing declines of 38 to 2 points. Spot quiet at 30 points fall. New Orleans spot declined 50 points.

Receipts:—Atlantic 15,000 (Friday 3,000), Gulf 11,000 (Friday 3,000). Exports—Britain 4,000 (Friday nil), Continent 27,000 (Friday 3,000), Japan 19,000. April 28.15, May 28.30, June 27.96, July 27.62, August 26.50, September 25.60, October 25.22, November 24.98, December 24.73, January 24.44, February 24.30, March unquoted.

COTTON OIL steady. Summer yellow spot unquoted. July option 11.49.

PETROLEUM steady.

TALLOW steady.

KANSAS CITY—Wheat steady, unchanged. No. 2 hard winter, 119.

ST. LOUIS—Wheat steady. No. 2 red winter, 133½.

MINNEAPOLIS—Wheat easy at ⅛c. fall. No. 1 Northern spring, 123⅞.

WINNIPEG—Wheat opened steady, unchanged; but declined later, and closed easier ⅛c. to ⅜c. down. May, 116⅝; July, 118¼. Oats steady; July, 49.

CHICAGO, Monday.

WHEAT opened firm, ⅛c. to ½c. up, and went higher on bullish weekly foreign statistics, adverse South-West crop news, a bullish report by Mr. Snow, a better cash inquiry, and foreign buying of July; but later fell away, due to wet weather in Missouri, lower outside markets, larger North-West receipts, a slow export and outside demand, and realising. The market closed easy, ⅛c. to ⅜c. down. Spot steady. No. 2 hard winter, spot, 122¼; No. 3 hard winter, spot, 121. May, 120¼; July, 117; September, 115½.

CORN opened steady and unchanged to ⅛c. up, and, after improving further on small receipts and in sympathy with wheat, took a lower range under large stocks, a poor cash and outside demand, commission house selling, and bulls unloading. The market closed easy, ⅛c. to ½c. lower. No. 2 mixed, spot, 75½; May, 73⅝; July, 76¼; September, 77¼.

OATS easy, ⅛c. to ⅜c. loss. May, 44⅞; July, 44½; September, 43½.

PROVISIONS opened steady, and advanced on higher hog prices, large exports, and a moderate commission house demand; then reacted on liquidation and slack cash trading. Light stocks and foreign buying, however, caused a firm close, with lard 15 to 12½ and ribs 22½ to 20 points up. Lard—May, 11.35; July, 11.50; September, 11.57½. Pork unquoted. Ribs—May, 10.02½; July, 10.35; September, 10.62½.

BACON firm, 25 points up to unchanged. The receipts of hogs at 15 principal Western centres, including Chicago, since March 1, total 3,918,000, against 2,470,000 for the same season last year.

HOGS firm, with light 25 to 10 and heavy 10 points dearer.

DISTRIBUTIVE WORKERS' CONGRESS.

STRONG POSITION OF THE UNION.

CONTRACTS AND SWEATING.

The twenty-first annual congress of the Irish Union of Distributive Workers and Clerks was held in the Town Hall, Limerick, yesterday. The President, Miss C. Cahalan, presided, and upwards of fifty delegates were present from all parts of the country.

The following centres were represented:—Bray, J. W. Kelly; Castlerea, P. J. Hegarty; Carrick-on-Suir, Patrick Sexton; Clonmel, T. O'Gorman; Carlow, T. O'Lennon; Cork, J. J. Scannell, J. O'C. Burke, M. J. Murphy, D. Higgins, M. J. Sheehan and V. J. Aherne; Dublin, J. A. Gordon, W. Drumgoole, Miss E. Murray, M. Brogan, D. Digan, W. Spillane, M. Kincart, Miss F. Joyce, R. Connolly and J. Peppard; drapery buyers, M. Fahy, B. Keough; Drogheda, J. J. Doyle, J. Smith; Fermoy, C. S. Maye; Kanturk, Timothy Murphy; Kilkenny, R. Holohan; Limerick, Joseph O'Flanagan, James McMahon, John Quinlan; Midleton, E. Power; Nenagh, M. J. Greene; Rathdowney, W. Bonham, Miss B. O'Connor; Sligo, John Ryan; Tralee, William McAllister, Jeremiah B. O'Connor, E. J. Walsh; Tipperary, James O'Riordan; Thurles, P. J. Meagher, P. J. Murphy; Waterford, Thomas Ryan, William Walsh, Thomas Smith; Youghal, J. J. O'Shea.

The officials present were:—Miss Cahalan, Frank McHugh, L. J. Duffy, W. J. Byrne, J. F. Fitzgibbon, James Carr, L. J. Larkin and James Hunt.

The Deputy Mayor (Mr. Thomas Bourke) welcomed the delegates on behalf of the Municipality. He said that he was proud to occupy that position, being a member himself of the union and having for the past twenty-three years worked side by side with members of the congress. He hoped that their deliberations would be fruitful of good results.

Mr. James Carr, secretary of the Limerick district, also welcomed the delegates.

The President, in reply, said that it was good for the workers to have Mayors of important cities like Limerick sympathetic to the workers, but it was particularly important to have Mayors definitely Labour; it was an indication of where Labour was going, and their aim now should be to control the Parliament under which they lived. (Applause.)

In opening the congress, the President said that since the inception of the organisation twenty-one years ago—originally the Drapers' Assistants' Association—they had never looked back, and it was not their intention to do so. The achievements of the past were not comparable with the work before them. She believed that they were only beginning to work, and she exhorted them to be earnest and do their "little bit."

GOOD PROGRESS.

Dealing with the annual report, she said that, notwithstanding the unfortunate state of the country, which they all deplored, they had progressed numerically and financially. But what appealed to her most was the moral and enthusiasm permeating the organisation. (Applause.) The executive committee during the year had a very arduous time, but had made remarkable achievements. They had broken new ground and widened the scope of the organisation, which now embraced all distributive workers and clerks. In her opinion it would have been suicidal for the Drapers' Assistants' Union not to have enlarged the scope of membership, and if they had not they would now be but a little speck. She was glad to say that, in view of the condition of the country, there was very little unemployment within their ranks, because they did not permit employers to dispense with some of their assistants; neither had they accepted any reduction in wages. They would never agree to accept a wage reduction until they first found the companies unable to pay a dividend. While they were paying dividends employers had no right to demand reductions in the wages of the people who made the profits.

Referring to the O'Lehane Memorial Fund, she expressed surprise at the apathy of members generally towards the movement to perpetuate the memory of the man who had shown them all the way, and who kept the organisation. Less than £500 had been subscribed, while ten times that amount was required. She appealed to the Congress to make a determined effort on their return to secure the necessary funds to complete the memorial.

In many centres—notably Dublin, Cork and Waterford—they had secured guarantees that none but union labour would be engaged. That was a remarkable achievement.

In conclusion, she made an appeal for support of the union journal, of which she said the employers were most afraid. It should be their aim to make it a weekly journal.

ANNUAL REPORT.

The President then moved the adoption of the report, which referred to the stability of the organisation and its effectiveness in performing the task for which it was called into being. The fact that it had won the adhesion of 29,000 shop-workers since its inception was evidence that those to whom they appealed were satisfied on these points.

When the last report was being presented, hopes of a new era of political peace ran high. Every organisation, their own included, was making a fresh effort to solidify the position it occupied, and win a more secure hold on the masses to whom it appealed. However, after the first months of 1922 had passed, it became evident that all these plans should be scrapped, and that the trade union's movement, because it had relied on non-military weapons for its advancement, should betake itself to the wilderness again.

Yet the report recorded the fact that during the year 3,277 members were enrolled. They had lost through one cause or other 2,272 members. The total effective membership stood, at December 31st, at 7,401, an increase of 1,500 over the previous year.

They were to-day the one union in Ireland effectively catering for all workers in the clothing trades, as well as being the only union that advanced any pretension to represent all shop-workers and clerks. Their activities had a marked influence on the conditions of employment, and had rendered it more stable than it might otherwise have been.

IMPROVED FINANCES.

The finances of the Association show a marked improvement over any previous year. The total income for the year was £14,443 12s. 6d., an increase of £2,782 11s. 1d. over the previous year. The total expenditure, including £6,598 10s. 8d. paid in respect of sickness, unemployment, and death benefit, and disputes pay, was £11,999 15s. 9d.

To the amount set out above in respect of benefit must be added £4,087 5s. 3d. paid in benefits under the National Health Insurance, which brought the total amount paid in benefit for the year to £10,685 15s. 11d. The excess of increase over expenditure was £2,443 16s. 9d., net gain on the year's working.

The President of the Limerick Branch (Mr. Joseph Flanagan) seconded the adoption of the report, and congratulated the Executive Committee on the year's working.

The report was adopted, as also was the report of the Approved Insurance section of the Union.

IMPORTED FLOUR.

Mr. Floyd, Tralee, addressed the Congress on the question of imported flour, and urged that the Distributive Workers' Union should see to it that foreign flour was not pushed to the detriment of the home-manufactured article. At the present time more than half the flour consumed in Ireland was imported.

The President said that the Distributive Workers' Journal had declined to insert advertisements relative to foreign-manufactured goods.

The Congress then discussed the alteration of rules, and accepted amendments and additions as outlined in the agenda.

The President, referring to the Shops Act, said that she thought that the piece of legislation should be amended as follows—maximum working week 44 hours, working day not more than eight hours, payment for overtime, application of the Act to shops in rural as well as in urban or municipal areas, and proper heating of shops. She proposed a resolution to that effect.

Mr. Byrne, Dublin, seconded the resolution, and it was passed.

Mr. Gordon, Dublin, proposed, and Mr. Kelly, Limerick, seconded:—"That all shops' workers should join the Irish Union of Distributive Workers and Clerks, and insist on rescuing these classes from the obsolete conditions of employment so familiar to shop and office life."

The motion was put and carried.

PENSIONS SCHEME.

Mr. Walshe, Tralee, proposed that the Executive Committee be instructed to prepare a scheme of pensions for workers in distributive trades, such as is granted and awarded to public officials on retirement, and that if such scheme was approved the Executive Committee should take steps for its universal application.

Mr. Bourke, Cork, seconded the motion.

Mr. Kelly, Dublin, opposed the motion, on the ground that this was a question for the State, and not for sectional effort. He proposed a direct negative.

This was seconded by Mr. Gordon, Dublin.

The President disagreed with the motion, which, she said, struck at the virility of trade unionism. The way in which to deal with this question was through the representatives of the people in the Dail.

The notice was withdrawn.

On the proposal of Miss Joyce, Dublin, seconded by Mr. G. Rogan, Dublin, a resolution was adopted demanding the enactment of legislation against the sweating of women and young girls in the clothing trade and in trade generally.

Mr. McHugh, Dublin, moved that members of the Union should use their position for furthering the development of such native industries as are carried on under fair conditions of employment, by pushing the sale of their products.

Mr. Kincart, seconded the motion, and it was carried.

The General Secretary proposed that, in view of the flagrant abuses to which the issuing of Government and Local Government contracts had given rise for some time, the Congress demanded that an advisory committee be set up to enquire into and examine the bona fides of clothing contractors, and that legislation should be passed on the issuing of contracts in accordance with the principles enunciated by the Ministry of Industry and Commerce. He gave instances of the indifferent contract system operating in Government circles, and thought that every effort should be made to prevent Government contracts from going to sweated houses.

Mr. McHugh seconded the motion, and it was adopted.

The following officers were re-elected unanimously, on the motion of Mr. Bourke, Cork, seconded by Mr. Flanagan, Limerick:—President, Miss C. Cahalan, Dublin; Vice-President, V. J. Aherne, Cork; General Treasurer, E. J. Hayes, Dublin; three Trustees—H. Batt, Dublin; W. Drumgoole, Dublin and Liam Spillane, Dublin. Auditors—Messrs. D. O'Connor and Co., Chartered Accountants, 13 Westmoreland street, Dublin.

SHOTS AT A SENTRY.

At 8.15 o'clock on Sunday night, four or five shots were fired at the sentry behind the Fowler Memorial Hall, Rutland square, Dublin, by men wearing the uniform of the National Army. None of the shots took effect.

Virol is used in 3,000 Hospitals and Clinics

In Hospital the Doctor's word is law. It is because the opinion of the Medical Profession is overwhelmingly in favour of the use of Virol that Virol is given to the patients in so great a number of Hospitals and Institutions. What other food can claim this medical endorsement?

Virol supplies these essential food substances in which other foods are lacking, and in other special preparations. It nourishes the blood on which the vitality of the whole body depends; and it provides the power of the body to transform food into living tissue.

Take Virol yourself and give it regularly to your children. Virol is the best of all foods for building up sound constitutions.

CAPTURED DOCUMENTS.

ATTITUDE TO MR. LIAM DEASY

The Irish Free State Government's Publicity Department issues the following:—

"Documents captured by the Irish Army include a 'special bulletin,' which was issued by the so-called 'Adjutant-General' of the Irregulars, to counteract the peace influence of Mr. Liam Deasy's declaration. The writer, discussing the action of Irregular prisoners who supported Mr. Deasy, says: 'It was gross indiscipline on the part of these—officers especially—who were aware before their capture of an order forbidding the members of the Army from taking part in matters connected with peace negotiations. . . No tampering by civilians with individual officers regarding peace must be tolerated; instructions as to action to be taken in such cases have been issued.'

"Discussing America, the writer depicts a rosy situation from the Irregulars' point of view, in direct contradiction to the secret reports from Irregular agents in U.S. recently captured and published. 'Latest despatches from our military representative (Sean Moylan),' he says, 'record great progress. . . Contributions are flowing in steadily to our funds. In a short time the Republic will again be supported by all the best elements.'

"What Sean Moylan really said was: 'The story about this being the land of flowing gold is all rot. I'm always on the bum, and shall be under the necessity of holding up a bank if the fellows here don't come across with a more plentiful supply of cash.'"

ROYAL WEDDING.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR ABBEY CEREMONY.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Monday.

The arrangements for the wedding of the Duke of York and Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon at Westminster Abbey on April 26 are now almost complete, and they will be officially published as soon as they are approved by the King.

The decorations within the Abbey will be simple, so as not to be out of keeping with the building. Bright crimson carpet will be laid from the west door to the sacrarium, where the actual ceremony will take place, and in the sacrarium itself rich carpets will completely cover the wonderful mosaic pavement, which is more than 700 years old.

On either side of the sacrarium will be gold chairs for the relatives and more intimate friends of the bride and bridegroom.

The members of the Royal Family will be ranged on the south side, and in the centre of their group will be three golden thrones for the King and Queen and Queen Alexandra. Directly facing these on the north side will be two chairs for the Earl and Countess of Strathmore and Kinghorne, the parents of the bride.

The choir will be lined by the Gentlemen-at-Arms, with their standard and in their old-time full dress of scarlet, black, white, and gold, and their high helmets with drooping white plumes. Yeomen of the Guard will line either side of the nave.

There will be three processions through the Abbey to the sacrarium. The first will be that of the Royal Family, headed by the King and Queen, and followed by Queen Alexandra, escorted by the Duke of Connaught. Closely following them will come the impressive procession of the principal clergy who are to assist in the ceremony.

The bridal procession will be headed by the minor clergy of the Abbey and the choir in their rich scarlet cassocks. Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon will pass through the nave with her father. Two of her eight bridesmaids will carry her train, and the rest will walk in pairs behind.

Opening sentences for the Service will be read by the Dean of Westminster, and have been specially written for the occasion. The Archbishop of Canterbury will then deliver his charge to the bride and bridegroom, and the ring having been placed on the finger of the bride, the blessing will follow, and then the psalm, "God be merciful unto us and bless us," the responses and prayers.

The register will be signed in the Edward the Confessor Chapel in the presence of Mr. E. F. Knapp-Fisher, the Receiver-General and Chapter Clerk of the Abbey; Lord Muir Mackenzie, High Sheriff of Westminster, and the Canons of the Abbey. The registers will be on a huge table of ancient oak directly under the tomb of the Confessor.

The King and Queen and other members of the Royal Family will leave the Abbey almost immediately after the registers have been signed. As the Duke and Duchess of York are to take a slightly extended route on their return to Buckingham Palace, Their Majesties will arrive there in time to offer them formal greeting at the head of the grand staircase.

POOR LAW OFFICIALS.

POWERS OF GUARDIANS TO GRANT PENSIONS.

The annual conference of the National Union of Poor Law and District Council Workers was opened at the Union Offices, Upper Sackville street, Dublin, yesterday, Mr. John Leone, President, in the chair.

The President in his address, said that he had thought, at the conference last year, that they were about to see the end of the Poor Law system, but unfortunately they had it still. Referring to the Local Government Board's attitude to the 1919 Act, he said that he was unwilling to commit himself by expressing an opinion, but he felt that nothing could now settle the prevalent dissatisfaction on the matter except a decision of the Supreme Court, and that several cases were bound to come to the courts for adjustment.

He held that the Local Government Board was not justified in attempting to deprive the Guardians of the power to grant pensions, and he said that they should represent to the Local Government Minister that he should allow Boards of Guardians to use their discretion in all matters relating to superannuation.

The sooner the Government rid itself of the impression that Poor Law officials were responsible for the continuance of the Poor Law system the sooner would the Poor Law question be solved. None were more competent to advise the Government on matters connected with the Poor Law than were officials who had spent the best part of their lives in the Poor Law service.

The secretary's report, which showed that the membership had been well maintained and that the Union was in all respects in a flourishing condition, was adopted.

The outgoing officers and Committee were re-elected for the coming year.

CLOSING HOURS FOR SHOPS.

At the annual conference of the Shop Assistants' Union at Edinburgh yesterday, a resolution of the Executive was adopted expressing the opinion that local authorities should take power to promote closing orders for shops for an hour earlier than 7 o'clock, and representing that adult shop assistants with three months' service in a district should be entitled to vote in respect to the operation of closing orders in such districts.

DUBLIN'S MUNICIPAL RATES.—The report of the Finance Committee as to the rates for the coming year is not yet ready. Last year's rates were 20s. 6d. in the £. A member of the Corporation said yesterday to an Irish Times representative that there would be a decrease of a shilling. He added that the decrease would have been 2s. 6d. but for the necessity of providing new motor appliances for the Fire Brigade and new sweeping motor machines for the Cleansing Department. The Government is giving serious consideration to the representation made the other day to the Minister for Local Government by the Ratepayers' Association in reference to the appointment of Commissioners to take charge of the municipal administration of the city. The Government would have little or no hesitation in taking action in that direction if it was indicated that a considerable proportion of the Municipal Council was favourable to the change. It is not likely, however, that a democratic body will consent to its own extinction, and, therefore, unless the Government makes up its mind to grasp the problem with vigour, it is to be feared that the ratepayers must, for some time longer, have their business conducted in the wasteful and extravagant manner of which bitter complaint has been made.

DEAF MUTES' PERFORMANCE.—Last night, at the Pioneer Hall, Sherrard street, Dublin, a pantomimic rendering of some leading scenes in the life of Joan of Arc was given by forty deaf mutes from St. Joseph's, Cabra. There was a good attendance, and all thoroughly appreciated the presentation, which showed the wonderful training that the boys receive from those in charge of the institution. Some of the boys performed step dances, keeping perfect time with the music although they could not hear. The performance will be repeated on Thursday at 7.45 and on Sunday at 4 p.m.

JUVERNA SOCIAL CLUB.—This club, after a very successful season last year, is meeting again on Saturday. The venue will be Howth, and members will assemble at 61 Upper Sackville street at 3.30. The annual elections will take place after tea. The object of the club is to have social week-end outings during the summer months.

ACCIDENTAL SHOOTING.—While a number of men were practising revolver shooting in a field near Monaghan on Sunday afternoon J. Hughes, Market street, was accidentally shot through both thighs. He was taken to Monaghan Hospital in a serious condition.

NORTHERN IRELAND.

ULSTER'S DEBT TO "SPECIALS."—The Rev. R. Hyndman, preaching at a Parade Service of the C 1 Special Constabulary in Belmont Presbyterian Church, Belfast, on Sunday, said that they in the North owed their safety and peace in a supreme degree to the Special Constabulary. They had proved absolutely trustworthy men, with a deep sense of responsibility and restraint. The formation of this Force was the salvation of the province. It stood for law, order, and right, and its members had made law and order respected throughout the six counties. They had been a terror to the evil-doer, suppressing crime wherever it appeared. The area had had many months of peace, and they owed it to the men who had faced danger and death for the sake of the country of their birth.

CARRICKMORE AND SIXMILECROSS.—At a meeting of Omagh Board of Guardians on Saturday a letter was read from the Ministry of Home Affairs for Northern Ireland, regarding the report of the inspector in reference to the inquiry held into the advisability of amalgamating the Carrickmore and Sixmilecross dispensary districts. The proposal had originated at the Board of Guardians on October 28, but had not been passed. It was stated in the letter that there appeared to be a strong feeling locally against the amalgamation of the two districts, and the inspector stated that, having regard to the area, number, and poverty of the inhabitants, and the difficulty of locomotion, he was unable to report in favour of the proposal. The Ministry endorsed the recommendation that no case had been made out for the amalgamation.

WEATHER FORECAST.

General Inference.—The general distribution of pressure is changing very little, and winds from between S. and E. will continue over the British Isles. Rain is likely to be confined mainly to Eastern Scotland and North-East England, although there is a risk of local showers on our North-West coasts, while in the South fair weather may be expected.

North-West Ireland.—Moderate S.E. to S. winds; mainly fair, but local showers not improbable; visibility moderate; moderate temperature.

North-East, South-East, and South-West Ireland.—Light to moderate E. to S.E. winds; fair; some mist; moderate temperature.

South-West Seaboard.—Light E. to S.E. winds; mainly fair; visibility moderate to good; sea slight.

Irish Sea and St. George's Channel and North-West Seaboard.—Moderate S.E. wind; varying amount of cloud; visibility moderate; sea slight to moderate.

ROYAL ULSTER SHOW.—Schedules of the prizes to be offered for competition at the annual Show of the Royal Ulster Agricultural Society, to be held at Balmoral, Belfast, on May 24 and 25, have been issued. The prize list makes provision for cattle, horses, sheep, goats, large white Ulster pigs, draught horses in gear, and trade turnouts, poultry, dairy produce, butter-making contests, and jumping and driving competitions. Altogether there are 210 classes, and prizes amounting in the aggregate to £3,647 are offered.

YORK ROAD STATIONMASTER.—Mr. James A. Parker has retired from the position of stationmaster at the Belfast terminus of the Midland Railway (Northern Counties) after 45 years' service, and Mr. E. A. Montgomery, chief goods inspector at Belfast, has been appointed his successor. The parcels department and several other office staffs are being brought under the supervision of the stationmaster.

DELIBERATE SUICIDE.—Patrick Devanney, of Townamoile, County Leitrim, was arrested by the Enniskillen constabulary, but released at noon on Sunday. At 3 o'clock he was seen at Innismore viaduct, about six miles from the town, and observed to wade into Lough Erne. When some people shouted, he said: "If you come near me I will dive." Some police attempted to seize him, but he dived, and, despite all endeavours to save him, was drowned. The body has not yet been recovered.

A SACKVILLE STREET MEETING.

MAN ARRESTED.

A meeting addressed by Miss Mary MacSwiney, Madame Gonne MacBride, and others took place at the ruins of the old General Post Office, Sackville street, Dublin, yesterday morning, when references were made to Easter Week of 1916. A green, white and yellow flag hung across one of the empty window basements, and three cheers were called for the Republic and for Mr. de Valera. At the conclusion of the meeting the "Soldier's Song" was sung. The crowd extended across portion of the tramway line, interrupting the tramway service.

A man who was selling copies of the Worker's Republic was arrested by three men in civilian clothing. Some women attempted to rescue him, but the three men drew revolvers and took their prisoner away.

REMANDED IN CUSTODY.

MAN CHARGED WITH RAIDING DUBLIN BONDED STORES.

At the Dublin Police Court yesterday James Kelly (37), alias Coleman, of no fixed address, was charged by Detectives Mahon, Donnelly, and Gibney with conspiring with four other men, who have been sent for trial, to break and enter the bonded stores of the Dublin Distillers Company, Bonham street, on January 31, and with stealing two casks of whiskey, value £311 5s. 5d., the property of Geo. Roe and Company.

There was a second charge of stealing two quarter-casks of sherry and a five-gallon jar of whiskey from the wine and spirit store of Thomas Kelly, Lower Sheriff street, on January 22, and with illegal posession of same.

The accused was remanded in custody.

ILLEGAL POSSESSION.

James McCann, alias Burke, was remanded on the charge of illegal possession of a blue nap overcoat, value £2. Pawn tickets and a reference, alleged to be bogus, were found in his possession.

The Victorian Labour Conference which is meeting in Melbourne has successfully withstood all the efforts of the militants to revert to the revolutionary methods, says a Reuter's telegram.

HOLIDAY WEEK IN THE THEATRES.

MUSIC, COMEDY, AND VAUDEVILLE.

The Gaiety Theatre was crowded in every part last night with a typical Bank Holiday audience, which received with great enthusiasm a very enjoyable performance of "Sally," a new musical comedy—new to Dublin—presented by George Grossmith and J. A. E. Malone. The piece possesses all those features one would expect to find in a really good musical comedy—catchy songs and graceful dances, funny "patter," clever comedians, pretty girls attired in beautiful costumes, and a series of striking spectacular scenes. In addition, all the principal parts are taken by capable artists, among whom Miss Joyce Barbour stands out in marked pre-eminence. She throws herself into the part of "Sally of our Alley" with great spirit, and proves herself not only an accomplished actress, but a good vocalist and a clever dancer. Miss Doree Hanbury also merits praise for her contribution to the success of the evening in the part of Rosalind Rafferty. Quite a host of capable comedians contribute to the merry-making, including Mr. Hal Gordon as Otis Hooper, Mr. Thomas Pauncefort as Constantine, and Mr. Philip Simmons as Blair Farquar. The comedy is in three acts, and some of the scenes are especially well staged.

"Sally" will be performed nightly during the week at 7.45, with matinées on Wednesday and Saturday at 2.30 p.m.

THEATRE ROYAL.

Mike S. Whallen, an old favourite with Dublin theatregoers, was given a hearty reception at the Theatre Royal last night. Mr. Whallen has some good stories to tell about the lively life of his friend "Moloney," and his improvised rhymes about individuals in the parterre and gallery—not very personal—created a great deal of amusement. Eleanor Kendall, a charming soprano, treated the audience to three songs, for which she was warmly applauded. One of the outstanding items in the programme is that contributed by Kafka and Stanley, whose performance on the trapeze is very thrilling. The Ivyrose Sisters give a good musical and dancing performance. Willie Gardner and Irene Miller gave a pretty exhibition of dance and song. June and Betty, dancers; Billy Camp, comedian, and Jack and Evelyn, in "Funland," contributed to a successful "show."

QUEEN'S THEATRE.

Fairly large audiences attended at both performances of "The King of Dublin" at the Queen's Theatre last night. This musical comedy contrasts the year A.D. 450 with the present time. It is full of humour, and the topical allusions and songs created much merriment. Harry O'Donovan portrayed "The King of Dublin" with ease and dignity, while the honours were shared by Eileen Hayden as the Queen. She was a marked success in the song, "Because I love you so." Tom Dunne, as the good-humoured policeman, whose lot is by no means a happy one, and Jimmy O'Dea, master of ceremonies, afterwards a burglar, were excellent in joke and song. All the other artists filled their parts capably. A pleasing feature was the graceful exhibition of dancing by the Lennox troupe. The scenery, specially painted by Mr. George Wilde, Queen's Theatre, was creditable, while the costumes were artistically designed and executed by Miss Rogers, Dublin. The orchestra contributed to the success of the entertainment. The comedy will be performed twice nightly during the week.

OLYMPIA THEATRE.

The Easter week attraction at the Olympia (Empire) Theatre is a musical comedy, entitled "Smilin' Through," by Oswald Gray and Will Parkin. It is a racy production, which was well received by both houses last night. The chorus work, which is a feature of the comedy, was done with a happy animation, while the costumes were rich in colour. The Palmyra Gross Trio were especially good, the performance of the "elastic lady" being a very clever exhibition. The Tivoli Girls, "pony trotters," Darby and Tess, "revusical revellers," and Grar and Groh, dancers, were among the "extras," and added considerably to the enjoyment of the programme. Allan Hanbury supplied a considerable portion of the comedy, and with Jack Darby kept the audience in merry mood. Mira Yorke made a very good impression as a vocalist. The other artists who had principal parts were Gladys Roberts and H. Doubleday, Will Parkin and Lance Brett. There will be two performances every night this week.

TIVOLI THEATRE.

The vaudeville act of "Southwood and Pink Lady," the comedy acrobatics of Ford and Downs, and the parodies of popular songs by Tom E. Dean are outstanding items in this week's Tivoli programme. Baker and Raymond, two xylophone players, gained plenty of applause; the "few novel tricks" of Carrie and Dick, equilibrists, were interesting, and Max Garland's songs at the piano the audience found enjoyable. Hilda Gray, comedienne and vocalist, sang well.

Thousands of ladies keep a box of Martin's Pills in the house. Those who use them recommend them, hence their enormous sale. Price 5s. Sold by all Chemists and Stores; or post free from Proprietors, Martin, Chemists, Southampton.—(Advt.)

WHAT IRELAND COULD DO

Remarkable Answers to Questionnaire.

THAT immediate employment could be found for vast numbers of Irish workers was one of the remarkable facts elicited as a result of a questionnaire addressed to the representative Irish Manufacturers whose names appear below.

The Questionnaire asked:

(1) What proportion does your present volume of business bear to what you were doing 18 months ago?
(2) Is your factory working short time?
(3) How many additional hands could you employ in the next six months if the Irish people bought your products in preference to those imported?
(4) Are you in favour of Government action to protect your industry either (a) in the form of a tax on imported goods; (b) complete prohibition; or (c) a form of bounty?

Replies to Question 1 showed that with 10% of the firms business had fallen off by 70% to 90%; with 33% by 50% to 60%; with 21% by 20% to 40%; 6% reported no change, and 14% a slight increase.

Question 2 showed that 59% of the firms are working short time, or with reduced staff.

Question 3 demonstrated what could be done at once to relieve unemployment if the Irish people simply insisted on buying Irish goods. The additional number of hands which the firms mentioned below could employ is indicated in the subjoined list of names. Sixty per Cent. believe, as shown by answers to Question 4, that a tax on imported goods is necessary. Four per Cent. hold that the case can only be met by complete prohibition of imported competing articles. Six per Cent. favour a Government bounty, and 30% are against any Government action.

The big startling fact that emerges is that here ready to our hands are the means to build up in an incredibly short time a wonderfully virile and progressive nation, self-contained, self-supporting, prosperous, affording employment for all its people. There is nothing visionary about it. You can help to make it an accomplished fact by deciding now to purchase only Irish goods in future. The firms whose names appear below are real Nation-builders. They are doing their part; they are producing articles that compare favourably with anything imported. They ask you to do your part by buying these articles in preference to the imported ones and so prove that you, too, are a Nation-builder.

FISHERMEN STRIKERS.

POLICE SUMMONED TO QUELL ABERDEEN OUTBREAK.

Three thousand striking fishermen invaded Aberdeen fish market yesterday morning and showed active hostility towards three German vessels which had put in with catches of Icelandic fish.

The strikers pelted the crews with lumps of ice. Four German trawlers were set adrift, but three were later berthed safely.

Police reinforcements were rushed to the spot to quell the disturbance.

Spain's Council of Ministers has decided in favour of a Civil Protectorate in Morocco.

HACKNEY HORSE SHOW.

BIG ENTRIES AT DONCASTER FUNCTION.

The Hackney Horse Show opened yesterday at Doncaster, the event being favoured with fine weather. The number of entries—575—constituted a record, and the many interesting events were witnessed during the day by some 5,000 people.

The junior stallion champion was adjudged to be Albin King's Heir, belonging to Mr. Walter Briggs, of Carnforth, Lancs., while the senior championship fell to Bertrans, owned by Mr. H. Henrichsen, of Sandbach, Cheshire.

Established 1815. 'Phones 48 and 49.

"MAHON'S FINGALLIAN."

MR. WILLIAM COTTER'S NEW SEEDLING POTATO has been the Success of the Season. One side of the Co. Dublin, to Lord Cloncurry, was paid quite £100 per Statute Acre, whilst on the other side, to M. F. O'Brien, Esq., Dean's Grange House, Foxrock, was paid better than £100 per Statute Acre. In proof of which Mr. J. Ferguson, Manager to Lord Cloncurry, and Mr. King Hall, Manager to M. F. O'Brien, Esq., can be referred to.

To make certain that a full and fair trial shall be given to this Potato this year it may be purchased through any of the leading Seed Houses throughout Ireland at £12 10/- ton, or 12/6 cwt. Any grower worth his salt will give it a trial, the cost of doing so being now reduced to a minimum.

Growers in every case must buy from their own Seedsmen, as our Trade is exclusively Wholesale.

WILLIAM COTTER AND CO., LTD.,
CORPORATION MARKET, DUBLIN. 24 F

"MAHON'S FINGALLIAN."

The following, which has been received this morning from the Steward of one of the most noted Growers in the country, is surely a feather in the cap of "MAHON'S FINGALLIAN," Mr. Wm. Cotter's new Seedling Potato:—

Lyons, Straffan, Co. Kildare,
March 23rd, 1923.

To Messrs. Wm. Cotter and Co., Ltd.,
Corporation Market, Dublin.

Gentlemen,—I am very pleased to inform you that your new Seedling Potato, "MAHON'S FINGALLIAN," has been with us the success of the season. The result, better than £100 the statute acre, has quite pleased Lord Cloncurry, and I must say his Lordship and myself look forward to its development and growth with much interest.

I am, Gentlemen,
Yours faithfully,
JAMES FERGUSON,
Land Steward to Lord Cloncurry. 24 F

"MAHON'S FINGALLIAN."

MR. WILLIAM COTTER'S NEW SEEDLING POTATO has been the Success of the Season. One side of the Co. Dublin, to Lord Cloncurry, was paid quite £100 per Statute Acre, whilst on the other side, to M. F. O'Brien, Esq., Dean's Grange House, Foxrock, was paid better than £100 per Statute Acre. In proof of which Mr. J. Ferguson, Manager to Lord Cloncurry, and Mr. King Hall, Manager to M. F. O'Brien, Esq., can be referred to.

To make certain that a full and fair trial shall be given to this Potato this year it may be purchased through any of the leading Seed Houses throughout Ireland at £12 10/- ton, or 12/6 cwt. Any grower worth his salt will give it a trial, the cost of doing so being now reduced to a minimum.

Growers in every case must buy from their own Seedsmen, as our Trade is exclusively Wholesale.

WILLIAM COTTER AND Co. LTD.,
CORPORATION MARKET, DUBLIN. 24 F

"MAHON'S FINGALLIAN."

The following, which has been received this morning from the Steward of one of the most noted Growers in the country, is surely a feather in the cap of "MAHON'S FINGALLIAN," Mr. Wm. Cotter's new Seedling Potato:—

Lyons, Straffan, Co. Kildare,
March 23rd, 1923.

To Messrs. Wm. Cotter and Co., Ltd.,
Corporation Market, Dublin.

Gentlemen,—I am very pleased to inform you that your new Seedling Potato, "MAHON'S FINGALLIAN," has been with us the success of the season. The result, better than £100 the statute acre, has quite pleased Lord Cloncurry, and I must say his Lordship and myself look forward to its development and growth with much interest.

I am, Gentlemen,
Yours faithfully,
JAMES FERGUSON,
Land Steward to Lord Cloncurry.
